Tribune Ship Opens New Illinois Waterway

FIRST FREIGHT CARRIED OVER FINISHED ROUTE

Towns Along Course Greet Craft.

Ottawa, Ill., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—THE TRIBUNE today took the first boat, the first passengers, the first cargo over the new Illinois waterway. In the motorship Sea King it is making the first continuous passage of the sixty mile channel between Joliet and Utica in an opening of the lakes to gulf route, a dream of generations which now is actually realized. The voyage will continue to Cairo and possibly to New Orleans. Tonight the Sea King is docked here in the fourth and last pool.

Crowd Greets Tribune Boat.

When THE TRIBUNE'S boat reached Ottawa a large crowd was assembled at the athletic field at the river's brink. Salutes were fired from the high school lawn, and a band furnished music.

Words of welcome were spoken by leading citizens. Among these were L. F. Follett, president of the Chamber of Commerce; L. C. Carroll, secretary of the chamber; L. A. Wilson, F. A. Knowles, Mayor H. J. Hilliard, Owen Fox, president of the Ottawa Business men's association, and Harry J. Miller, city commissioner.

Mayor Heads Delegation.

At Marseilles up the river THE TRIBUNE'S ship was met by a delegation at the locks, headed by Mayor I. N. Baughman. Col. Dan I. Sultan, United States district engineer, who had joined the party on the boat at Lockport, presented George Follis the treasury department's life saving medal of honor in recognition of a deed of bravery.

The completion of the Illinois waterway now establishes new trade barge routes affecting some 22 states in the Mississippi valley. It now links the great lakes and their ports with southern salt water, through the Chicago gateway which lies about midway of the continental valley, extending 2,300 miles by water from the Gulf of Mexico to the Gulf of St. Lawrence. The government has set June 15 for a formal opening, a day of celebration in the valley.

See Big Trade Value.

AS THE TRIBUNE'S craft sailed over the course today citizens in towns along the route dwelt upon the economic significance of the day. Consignments of freight were carried to Joliet, Morris and Ottawa, cities fronting the newly completed waterway.

Estimates are that a barge traffic of between seven and ten million tons a year is available for the waterway in normal times and how fast the commerce develops is expected to depend upon how soon business revives. Citizens along the route have declared a belief today that the opening of the waterway itself will prove a stimulant to recovery.

The opening of the course by THE TRIBUNE, in a voyage to demonstrate that the channel with a nine foot depth is open to commercial barge navigation through the valley, was hailed by citizens who greeted the Sea King at Joliet and other ports as signalizing the completion of a project which, in terms of traffic, places the heart of the continent on salt water.

START OF VOYAGE

The Sea King got under way at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon after its cargo had been loaded from the dock at the Michigan avenue bridge near the Tribune Tower and in sight of the open waters of Lake Michigan.

E. M. Antrim of THE TRIBUNE served as general freight agent, George Schreiber of THE TRIBUNE staff as navigator, and Capt. John Anderson, in charge of the Chicago coast guard stations, as pilot. Aboard was Dr. O. E. Madsen, representing the Lake Michigan Yachting associations.

The Sea King first traversed some six miles of the Chicago river, with lake freighters, barges, and lighters

U. S. INDICTS 19 ON INSULL MAIL FRAUD CHARGES

The first indictment in the federal government's investigation of the Insull crash, accusing nineteen individuals of a gigantic mail fraud through the selling of Corporation Securities stock, was returned by the grand jury before Judge Charles E. Woodward yesterday.

Among those indicted, besides Samuel Insull Sr., Samuel Insull Jr., and Martin J. Insull, are Stanley Field, banker, president of the Field museum and nephew of the late Marshall Field; Harold L. Stuart, president of Halsey, Stuart & Co., internationally known bond house, and Edward J. Doyle, president of the Commonwealth Edison company. Mr. Field was a director of Corporation Securities company.

Other Defendants Named.

The other defendants, officers or directors of the defunct $153,000,000 Insull investment trust, or its affiliates, are:

JOHN W. GULICK, director Corporation Securities and Utility Securities companies, the latter an Insull stock sales concern.

CLARENCE T. MacNEILLE, secretary-treasurer Corporation Securities, vice president and secretary-treasurer Halsey, Stuart & Co.

GEORGE A. KEMP, assistant secretary Utility Securities company.

WALDO F. TOBEY, member of the law firm of Isham, Lincoln & Beale, counsel for Corporation Securities and director of Insull Utility Investments, Inc.

CLARENCE E. B. WHITWORTH, resident partner Touche, Niven & Co., auditors for Corporation Securities company.

The action by the grand jury yesterday was preceded by four months of investigation by department of justice agents, centered largely on the books of Corporation Securities company.

"This indictment is only the beginning," said United States Attorney Dwight H. Green. "I propose to investigate fully all the ramifications of the so called Insull empire, its creators and sponsors."

Accompanied by Attorney Fred Burnham of the firm of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt, Mr. Field made a surprise appearance at the federal building during the afternoon and posted a $10,000 surety bond with the criminal division of the clerk's office.

Escapes Finger Printing.

Mr. Field was the first man indicted by the federal grand jury since more than a year ago, when new regulations were adopted, to escape the formality of having his finger prints taken before being released in bond. The bench warrants had not arrived at the marshal's office and Mr. Field's appearance was not known there.

Prosecutor Green first learned of the bond action from reporters. The finger prints of Harold L. Stuart were taken several months ago when he surrendered and posted bond on a mail fraud indictment voted in Milwaukee.

Later in the afternoon seven other defendants, Evers, Scheel, O'Keefe, McEnore, Gulick, Doyle, and Samuel Insull Jr., with a retinue of lawyers appeared and posted bond. None was taken to the marshal's office for finger printing. As the defendants appeared Judge Woodward ordered the withdrawal of the bench warrants.

Others Prepare to Surrender.

Attorneys for the remaining defendants informed the district attorney's office that they would surrender and post bonds during the week.

The indictment contains 120 pages, with numerous photostatic copies of letters and statements sent through the mail to stockholders and investors, and there are 25 counts alleging use

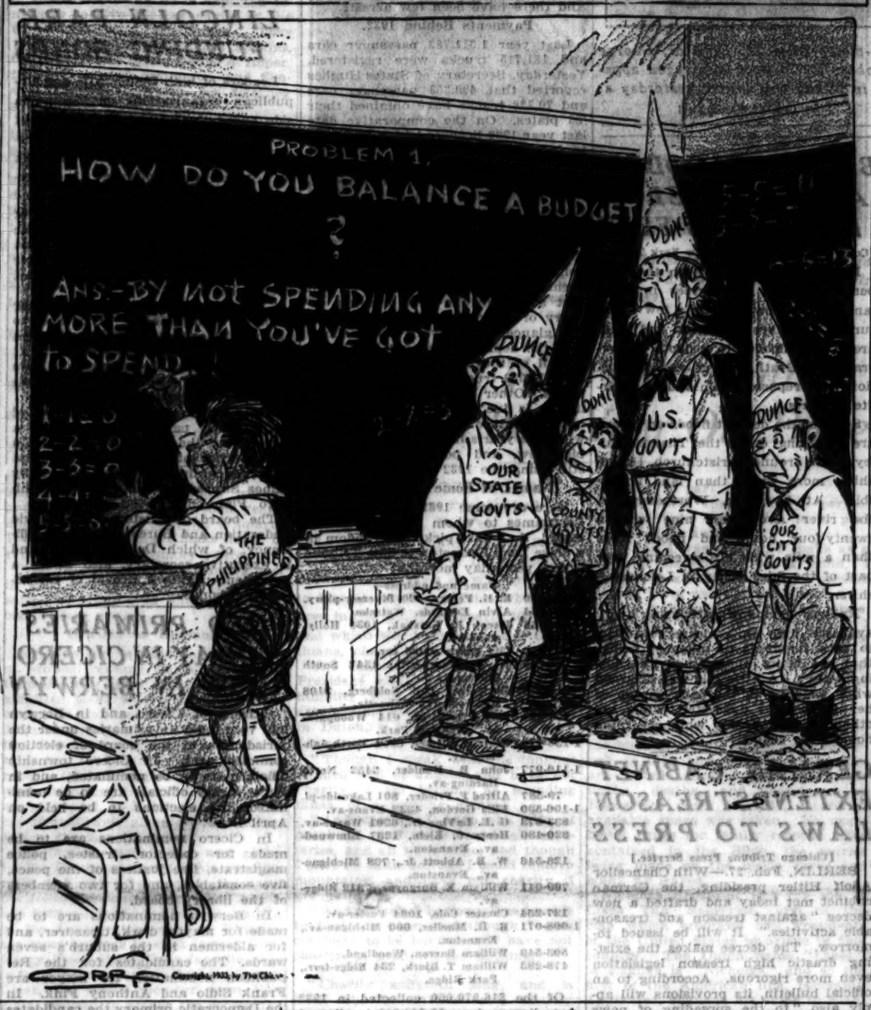
SHOWING UP THE REST OF THE CLASS



MISS DENNEHY AND ISHAM GET LICENSE TO WED

Miss Eleanor Dennehy, daughter of Thomas C. Dennehy, for many years identified with the wholesale liquor business in Chicago, and Ralph N. Isham, sportsman and aviator and scion of a pioneer Chicago family, obtained a marriage license Saturday, it was learned last night. Miss Dennehy gave her age as 24. Mr. Isham is 31.

Announcement of the engagement was made Feb. 18 at a week-end party given by Mr. Isham's brother, Henry, and Mrs. Isham, at their Lake Geneva home.

It was reported among their friends that they would be married today. At the Dennehy home at 1439 North State parkway last night it was said Mrs. Dennehy and Miss Eleanor Dennehy were at the theater. Mr. Isham, reached by telephone in his apartment at 70 Cedar street, said plans for the marriage were indefinite because Mrs. Dennehy was ill.

Mr. Isham was divorced on grounds of cruelty by his first wife, the former Grace McCall of Marquette, Mich., in Reno on May 18, 1931. Their marriage Feb. 20, 1930, in the First Presbyterian church in New York came as a surprise to Chicago society.

UKULELE PLAYER WILL PLAY NOW FOR UNCLE SAM

William G. Lutz, 38 years old, was arrested by a United States deputy marshal and two policemen last night as he was playing a ukulele in his flat at 219 North Francisco avenue. He readily admitted that he was the "George Walker" who escaped from the Atlanta penitentiary on Nov. 29, 1924.

"I was wondering," he said, "why it took Uncle Sam so long to catch up with me."

Lutz was sentenced in West Virginia to 18 months in prison for stealing from an interstate shipment. When he fled he had only four months to serve. Now he will have to put in more than seven months to complete the whole term.

"It doesn't matter much," he asserted. "I'm out of a job and time hangs heavy on my hands."

Brother and Sister Die as Plane Hits Power Line

City to Elect New Council in Vote Today

Facts of Today's Election

POLLS OPEN—6 a. m. to 5 p. m.

TO BE ELECTED—Fifty aldermen. In wards where no candidate receives a majority of the vote cast a runoff election will be held April 4. In addition to the ward elections today the city at large will elect one Municipal judge, the 11th senatorial district will elect a state senator to fill Thomas J. Courtney vacancy, 14 small park districts will elect commissioners, and Lincoln park district voters will ballot on park refunding bond issue proposition.

The Municipal Voters' league, in a last minute statement last night, cautioned the voters of Chicago's 50 wards that in casting their ballots for aldermen today they will have a hand in writing the record of the city's government for the next two years, the term of the new city council. The league urged the voters in each ward to select an alderman upon whom they can depend for support and promotion of the public interest in this year of A Century of Progress.

In 21 of the wards only one name will appear on the aldermanic ballot, that name being in all except three cases that of the present alderman. However, aspirants whose petitions were ruled out by the election commission are conducting active campaigns in several of these wards to have their names written in on the ballots.

Police to Guard Polls.

There are bitter contests for the council seats in the 29 wards where two or more names are on the ballots. Largely as a preventive measure, Commissioner of Police Allman has detailed two policemen to each polling place in the 5th, 18th, and 20th wards, and also in 12 precincts of the 43d ward.

One of the hottest ward fights is that between Ald. Oscar F. Nelson and Arthur B. Dehmlow in the 45th ward. Dehmlow has the support of the Lyle and Brundage Republicans and of Joseph L. Gill, Democratic ward committeeman, but Ald. John S. Clark [50th], a Democrat, went into the ward to campaign for Ald. Nelson, who in recent years has been listed as a Republican.

Sloan Against Pacelli.

Two sitting aldermen, Frank A. Sloan and William V. Pacelli, are fighting for the seat from the 36th ward. Ald. Sloan was elected to his present term from the 26th ward, but the ward redistricting threw his home into the new 20th.

There are nine candidates in the 7th ward, but principal contestants are Edward J. Hess, behind whom the Republican factions are united, and Thomas J. Daley, the candidate of the Democratic organization.

Judge To Be Elected.

Besides the ward elections the voters of the city will elect a Municipal judge to fill the vacancy caused by the election last year of Francis B. Allegretti to the Superior court. The only candidate is Gibson E. Gorman, Democrat, an assistant corporation counsel.

A state senator will be elected in the 11th senatorial district to succeed Thomas J. Courtney, who resigned from the senate after his election as state's attorney. John M. Lee, a Democrat, has no opposition for the senatorship.

In the Lincoln park district the voters will decide upon a $3,757,000 refunding bond issue for the park's use in meeting payments on maturing bond principal and interest. In each of fourteen small park districts, which lie wholly within Chicago, one commissioner is to be elected to a regular term. In several of the districts vacancies are also to be filled.

In wards where there is only one aldermanic candidate on the ballot and no park commissioner or proposition to vote upon, the number of polling places has been reduced, saving approximately $30,000.

Fire Rages in Reichstag; Nab Red for Arson

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, Feb. 28 (Tuesday).—(AP)—Wilhelm Goering, minister without portfolio, today ordered the arrest of 100 communist members of the reichstag a few hours after fire of incendiary origin had swept the reichstag building. Police began making the arrests shortly after 4 a. m. Goering also ordered the suspension of the entire leftist press.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

(Picture on Back Page)

BERLIN, Feb. 28 [Tuesday].—Fire of incendiary origin partially destroyed the massive $6,500,000 reichstag building last night. The flames licked up to the high glass and gold cupola. Sparks rained down on Bismarck's statue and the square of the republic, formerly known as the King's square.

The reichstag's main session hall was gutted by flames. The frame work of the cupola cracked and threatened to collapse. The fire, feeding on the wooden paneling and upholstery of the benches used by ministers, deputies, spectators and diplomats, spread rapidly from twenty different centers. The damage was estimated at $1,000,000.

Arrest Dutch Communist.

Police upon entering the building discovered a man clothed only in trousers crouching in one of the corridors. He was arrested and gave his surname as Van der Luebbe. The prisoner, who is 24 years old, said he is a Dutch communist. He admitted having used his shirt to start one fire. He said he had set fire to the former palace of the Hohenzollerns on Saturday night. [The damage there was slight.]

"My motive was to get revenge on capitalism," the young man told police.

Last night's conflagration was started by means of oil soaked heaps of coal waste and shavings.

A policeman on duty at the north side of the building reported that he saw a man with a flaming torch in his hand slide past a window when the fire broke out. He said he fired through the window and is convinced that he wounded the torch bearer.

Reds Flee Building.

Police also were informed that some communist members of the reichstag were seen rushing from the building shortly before the fire started. Several prominent communist leaders have been arrested. They are suspected of having covered the traces of the incendiaries.

The first alarm was sounded at 9 o'clock. At first ten fire companies were called, but immediately every station in Berlin was summoned. Two fireboats on the River Spree were also brought into action.

At 11:45, when the fire companies began to withdraw, flames flared anew, spreading to the refreshment rooms, press rooms and the lobby of the national council rooms. The heat was so terrific that firemen declared they could only protect the more valuable parts of the building from further destruction. At 1 a. m. the chief of police announced that the fire was completely under control.

Thousands View Fire.

Nobody was injured except one fireman who was overcome by smoke. All reichstag officials had left for the day and only attendants and a number of legislators who were working in their offices were in the building. All escaped.

Thousands of persons gathered in the Tiergarten, adjacent to the structure, to view the blazing parliament building. Police threw a heavy cordon around the square as well as the Prussian diet building as a precaution.

Capt. Hermann Goering, National Socialist president of the reichstag, and Prussian minister of the interior, was among the first to enter the building. He was followed by Chancellor Adolf Hitler and Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen.

Police are searching all nooks and crannies of the building for accomplices of the Dutch communist. A complete search of the vast structure is expected to require days.

Since the plenary hall was destroyed it will be impossible for the new reichstag, which is to be elected next Sunday, to hold its first session there. It will be months before the damage can be repaired.

The last previous attempt to damage the reichstag building was in September, 1929, when a bomb exploded in the basement with only minor damage.

Movie Theater Owner Tries 'Pay on Honor' for Patrons

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Phillip Miller, owner of an Annapolis motion picture house and a member of the Maryland house of delegates, announced today that customers who wanted to see shows during the bank holiday might attend and "be on their honor to pay later." He said he would not ask for an I. O. U. or keep a record of persons admitted.

RALLIES AGAIN; MIND CLEARER; LUNG IS BETTER

BULLETIN.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 28 (Tuesday).—(AP)—At 3:30 a. m. today hospital attaches said Mayor Anton Cermak was sleeping and his condition was unchanged, from the 1 a. m. bulletin. The mayor had been taken out of the oxygen tent for a while in order that he might rest better.

BULLETIN.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 28 (1:30 a. m.).—A bulletin issued at 1 a. m. read as follows:

"There is no apparent change in Mayor Cermak's condition since the last bulletin. His slumber is broken by occasional moments of restlessness. Otherwise, he has had an uneventful night so far. Temperature, 100; pulse, 126; respiration, 36."

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Jackson Memorial Hospital, Miami, Fla., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Amazed and almost incredulous, the specialists attending Mayor Cermak of Chicago at midnight issued a bulletin which recorded the fact that the patient is not only holding his own in his battle with pneumonia but is actually in better shape than before the pneumonia developed.

"At midnight," the bulletin read, "Mayor Cermak was fairly comfortable and in spite of the right lower lobar pneumonia, his circulatory and kidney functions are being maintained in a satisfactory manner. We feel that his condition is somewhat hopeful at this hour. Temperature 100; respiration 36; pulse 120."

Rally Amazes Doctor.

"I am frankly astonished," said Dr. E. S. Nichol, who framed the bulletin. "I did not believe yesterday that the mayor would be alive by tonight. Yet, unbelievably he is not only alive, but actually improved. This does not mean that he will live. But his heart has stood up under a strain that I thought would mean the end."

Questioning of the physician revealed some rather sinister details which were not included in the bulletin. Bleeding of the patient's intestines had been resumed shortly before midnight. His respiration, given as 36, is much higher when he is not under the oxygen tent, Dr. Nichol admitted. When he has not the aid of oxygen, his rate of breathing each minute mounts to 42. Even under the tent, the mayor's breathing is so rapid that it is practically gasping and thus places a strain upon the heart, he said.

Denies Taking Political Tone.

Dr. Nichol was indignant when told that there were rumors that the bulletins had been couched in optimistic language, disguising the real condition of the patient, because of the possible effect upon the aldermanic election in Chicago Tuesday if it were known that the mayor was dying.

"I didn't even know there was such an election," he said. "I can assure you that the bulletins have always given the true condition of the mayor."

The pulse reading, the physician said, aroused apprehension in the physicians, as well as the high respiration record. A normal pulse is 72, he pointed out and the mayor's pulse has averaged 120 or more for a number of days.

The mayor is being continually rolled from side to side of his bed by two husky interns in an effort to exercise the upper half of his body and keep the pneumonia from spreading to the companion lung.

Other Hopeful Bulletins.

Two earlier evening bulletins had also been hopeful in tone. A bulletin issued at 8:30 p. m., said the mayor was "showing surprising resistance to the pneumonic process."

Bromides instead of opiates were given the mayor tonight to quiet his nerves and help him to sleep.

"We are happy when he sleeps," remarked Dr. J. W. Snyder. "The only danger in sleeping is in slipping into a coma, and that does not seem probable in his case."

Dr. Frederick Tice said that when he entered the sickroom tonight the mayor almost brusquely pushed aside the oxygen tent and inquired: "Am I going to get well?"

"Sure, you are," responded Dr. Tice, he said. "That's good," answered the mayor, and let the canopy fall back over the upper part of his body.

The pneumonia which invaded the mayor's right lung last night had filed in area by noon today, but from then on it failed to spread.

"He is not a dying man yet," said Dr. Karl A. Meyer when a bulletin was issued. "Any one who makes any such statement is making an absolute misrepresentation of the facts.

"His mind is clear. He gargles without help and has strength enough to wipe his own forehead when he perspires. He has rested well during the afternoon. The pneumonia which was the size of a golf ball in the base of the right lung doubled in area to the size of a tennis ball, but it was checked there, at least for the time."

Senator Walsh a Visitor.

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, slated for the post of attorney general in the next cabinet, and in Miami with his Cuban bride, was a visitor late this afternoon at the Jackson Memorial hospital. He conversed with State Senator Richey V. Graham of Illinois, telling him that the whole country was "pulling for the mayor and grieving at his distress."

An early afternoon bulletin had declared that the patient's condition remained "practically unchanged."

"He has had a restful day without opiates or sleeping medicines," it read. "His color is good and his pulse full and strong. He has taken considerable nourishment."

Heart Specialist Pessimistic.

The most pessimistic comment of the day came from Dr. Walter Wile Hamburger of Chicago, heart specialist, who declared that "Mayor Cermak has been slipping slowly but progressively since Saturday." At the time he made his statement the mayor's respiration was 40. Later it was reduced to 36, still alarmingly high.

"He has been going down grade for two days," said Dr. Hamburger. "I have not completely abandoned hope, but every day that passes without a noticeable improvement means that his chances are less. The high respiration is a dangerous symptom. His normal respiration is 16 to 18. He is now breathing in gasps."

Moreover, Dr. Hamburger revealed, the oxygen tent has not benefited the patient as much as was expected.

"The tent has not accomplished its purpose," he said. "The mayor is so sick that this measure does not work so well as we had hoped it would."

Tice Remains Hopeful.

But Dr. Tice, another heart specialist, added this statement tonight to the sometimes contradictory reports of the many physicians in attendance:

"There is no earthly reason why it is not possible for the mayor to pull through. Comparatively more favorable is the form of pneumonia which affects the mayor (lobar pneumonia) than other forms."

And Dr. Nichol, who has been one of the least optimistic of the physicians, suddenly switched to a hopeful view of the situation.

"I am less pessimistic about the mayor's condition today, despite the pneumonic development, than I was two days ago," he said. "I base my attitude on the ability of the mayor's heart to withstand the increased burden placed upon it over the week-end. He has a much stronger heart than I thought he had two days ago."

Lungs Fight for Air.

Shortly before noon the mayor's respiration leaped to a mark of forty. Forced to take that many inhalations and exhalations each minute, his broad chest rose and sank rapidly as his lungs fought for air. His face was flushed under a temperature of 101 and his pulse was rapid at 128.

Previously the highest respiratory mark was 36, which was reached yesterday. The rapid breathing was explained by the physicians as indicating that more work was being thrown on the balance of the right lung not affected by the pneumonia. The consolidated area of the lung, or pneumonia area, was not functioning.

The panting of the patient was also partly ascribed to the frequent changes of his position in bed. Two internes continually rolled him from side to side to give the upper part of the body some exercise in an attempt to prevent the spread of pneumonia to the remainder of the right lung and to the left lung.

Hope for Early Crisis.

"We'd like to see a crisis in the pneumonia immediately, but it probably won't be for from four to seven days," said Dr. Meyer. "The longer the crisis is delayed, the less strength the mayor will have to combat it."

Injections of the glucose solution into the mayor's veins were also continued today. This is practically the only method of nourishment the patient has had in his battle against the onslaught of a number of maladies.

After a bullet had pierced a lung and lodged in his back the patient suffered under attacks of enteritis, colitis, kidney disease, cyanosis, parotitis, traumitic pleurisy, and now pneumonia. In his fight against these grim assailants he has been handicapped by a severely damaged heart muscle.

Dislikes Oxygen Tent.

The oxygen tent was removed at intervals during the morning and afternoon, the mayor expressing an aversion to it. However, he usually asked that it be placed over him again when the strain of breathing ordinary air became too severe, the physicians said. A mixture of from 40 to 50 per cent oxygen and air is pumped into the tent. Ordinary air has about 20 per cent oxygen in it.

Diathermy treatments were also continued today in attempt to relieve the inflamed lung. This is a heat treatment which thus far has not accomplished much good, the physicians admitted.

Mrs. Joe H. Gill, who was wounded at the same time as Mayor Cermak, was reported as "progressing splendidly" by her physician. He said he saw "no indication of any unfavorable developments" and believed her recovery was certain.

Criminal Branches of City Court to Close for Election

The criminal branches of the Municipal court, both in the central police building and the outlying police stations, will be closed today for the aldermanic election, Chief Justice Sonsteby announced yesterday. The civil branches will convene as usual, but court attachés will be allowed time to vote. The city hall will be open, but the employés will be allowed two hours to vote.

E. J. Tobin, County School Head, Is Seriously Ill

County Superintendent of Schools Edward J. Tobin is seriously ill at his home, 11350 Longwood drive, it was learned yesterday. His illness, a kidney complaint, has kept him in bed for three weeks, but physicians say they hope for his eventual recovery. Mr. Tobin has been county superintendent for 22 years, having been elected five times.

PLANE SPEEDS NEW OXYGEN APPARATUS TO CERMAK BEDSIDE

At noon yesterday a plane took off from the Chicago airport for Miami carrying an apparatus which may replace the oxygen tent which Mayor Cermak has indicated bothered him in his battle against pneumonia.

The new equipment, which will arrive in Miami about 6 o'clock this morning, was first manufactured only four months ago. It was invented by Dr. R. M. Waters and Dr. E. A. Rovenstine of the department of anethesia at the State of Wisconsin General hospital at Madison, affiliated with the University of Wisconsin.

Instead of employing a tent to keep the oxygen confined to the area about the patient's head and shoulders, the "pharyngeal insufflation of oxygen," as the new method is known, carries the gas directly from the tank beside the bed, through a humidifier and into the patient's lungs through a small rubber tube passed through one nostril. No face mask is necessary.

The humidifier, filled with distilled water, is one of the most important features of the equipment. The pneumonia patient when under a tent is subject to considerable irritation of nasal and throat passages because of the dryness of the gas and the constant inhalation. The new method of giving the oxygen through the humidifier and the nostril tube is said to eliminate the irritation.

DIVORCED WIFE OF ARCHDUKE TO GET DAUGHTER BACK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Feb. 27.—Dagmar Hapsburg, divorced wife of Archduke Leopold, will get back her 10 year old daughter, Maria Gabriele Hapsburg, according to advices she received here today.

Dagmar, who occupies the former Toscana palace, is a daughter of the 80 year old Jugo-Slavian landowner, Baron Wladimir Nicolitsch. When Dagmar and her daughter visited the baron at Zagreb two years ago the latter decided his daughter was not taking proper care of the child.

The baron kidnaped the little girl and took her to a small Rumanian village. The mother protested to authorities in Vienna and Jugo-Slavia and diplomatic intervention led to negotiations to settle the matter peacefully. Today's news from Zagreb says Maria is returning to Vienna.

DRYS RAID AND DEMOLISH TWO BIG BREWERIES

Federal prohibition agents yesterday raided and demolished two large breweries, one in Chicago and one in Blue Island. Two alleged operators of the plants were arrested in each place.

The first place visited was at 6150 Cottage Grove avenue. Its equipment was valued by the agents at $100,000, and included twenty 3,000 gallon tanks. Those arrested were Frank Carey, arrested with Al Capone for a dry law violation several years ago, and Henry Foster.

The second plant was in a garage in the rear of 13458 California avenue, Blue Island. Several thousand gallons of beer were found all ready for delivery. The men seized are Albert Strietzel, the alleged owner, and Peter Novak, 142 154th street, Calumet City.

BRITAIN FLOODED AS SNOW MELTS; RIVER UP 9 FEET

[Copyright; 1933; By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 27.—With the temperature rising 10 degrees in England today, snow fields in a few hours turned to lakes of slush and vast areas were flooded to a depth of several feet. Death, danger, and destruction were reported from widely separate districts.

Some of the deepest floods on record are sweeping down the Thames valley, while around Christchurch, Hampshire, more water than land is visible. At Evesham, Worcestershire, the river Avon rose nine feet in twenty-four hours and floods more than a mile wide are sweeping over part of the Soar valley in Leichestershire.

Railway companies are using every available man in a desperate effort to save hundreds of miles of tracks that are being undermined by rushing waters. A little girl was drowned while paddling in the back garden of her home near Leicester, while another was swept away while returning home from school.

GERMAN CABINET EXTENDS TREASON LAWS TO PRESS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—With Chancellor Adolf Hitler presiding, the German cabinet met today and drafted a new decree "against treason and treasonable activities." It will be issued tomorrow. The decree makes the existing drastic high treason legislation even more rigorous. According to an official bulletin, its provisions will apply also "to the spreading of news and information to foreign countries." Details are withheld pending publication.

Meanwhile, the wholesale prohibition of republican and communist newspapers continue. Twelve papers were suppressed today. Most of the newspapers are appealing to the Supreme court.

Youths, reported to have been clad in Nazi uniforms, broke into the home of Dr. Kurt Loewenstein, a Jewish socialist city councilor, member of the school board, and a former member of the reichstag, at dawn today. They shot at Loewenstein, who was in bed, but missed.

ALDERMEN WILL AVOID POLITICAL TEST TOMORROW

Leaders of the city council agreed yesterday to avoid anything like a test of political strength at the meeting tomorrow afternoon.

Ordinarily, Ald. John S. Clark, as chairman of the finance committee, would preside in Mayor Cermak's absence. But he said he would waive any such rights because, without his authority, his name has been mentioned as a possible selection for temporary mayor.

"Like every one else," he said, "I am hoping fervently for the mayor's recovery."

Ald John Coughlin of the First ward, it was agreed, will call the meeting to order at 2 o'clock and an adjournment will be taken immediately. This was the plan formulated at a conference of Corporation Counsel Sexton, Ald. Clark, and Ald Jacob M. Arvey, Democrats, and Ald. John A. Massen and Ald. Oscar F. Nelson, Republicans.

FIND 60 PER CENT OF AUTOS LACK NEW LICENSES

Delinquencies Laid to Lax Law Enforcement.

BY HAL FOUST.

More than 60 per cent of the passenger cars and trucks operating on the streets and highway of Illinois are without their 1933 state license plates. The tax revenues, devoted by law to road purposes, was due under the statute on Jan. 1.

A large percentage of Illinois motorists every year are delinquent in paying this fee because authorities are lax in enforcing the law. This year, probably due to the depression, the percentage is larger than ever before. And there have been few arrests.

Payments Behind 1932.

Last year 1,311,783 passenger cars and 181,715 trucks were registered. Yesterday, Secretary of States Hughes reported that 490,355 passenger cars and 70,326 trucks have obtained their '33 plates. On the comparative date last year 1932 licenses had been issued to 570,355 passenger cars and 80,580 trucks.

Even the city of Chicago is operating automobiles without the new plates. Detective bureau squad car No. 10 was seen cruising in Sheridan road yesterday with 1932 license 138-610. The office of the secretary of police said applications for 212 licenses were mailed on Nov. 20, but that some mistake was delaying delivery of sixty-three of them.

A glance at boulevard traffic shows that the depression cannot be blamed for all of the 821,428 passenger cars and 111,389 trucks being without 1933 plates. Other states collect when the license is due. On the streets of Chicago there are little, old automobiles with this year's licenses and there are big, new, and polished automobiles still using the 1932 plates.

Names of Some Delinquents.

Here are some 1932 numbers, with the names to whom the plates were issued, that were picked at random in a drive from Evanston to The Tribune Tower yesterday morning:

Number.	Name and address—
1-255-944	Alvin Edwards, Wataska.
8138	Joseph E. Kershak, 1030 Hollywood-av.
136-610	City police squad car.
918-624	Mrs. May Bell Goldberg, 3408 Elmwood-av., Wilmette.
107-224	Carl Pfanstiehl, 614 Woodpath-av., Highland Park.
1-138-176	Beatrice Pierser, 6951 North Ashland-av.
1-110-977	John B. Houlder, 2452 North Harding-av.
1-106-536	Ellis Gordon, 4332 Evans-av.
127-254	Chester Cole, 1084 Foster-av.
503-549	William Barron, Woodland.

Of the $16,970,000 collected in 1932 state license fees, $5,730,000 is allotted for interest and $2,500,000 for principal due on the $160,000,000 road bond issues, $5,250,000 is budgeted for rural road maintenance, $1,000,000 for city street maintenance, $1,000,000 for policing, leaving approximately $1,500,000 for pavement improvements and extensions. Those with '33 licenses have paid their share of this expense; those with '32 licenses are two months delinquent.

REPORT POPE TO LET ARCHDUKE WED DIVORCEE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Feb. 27.—It was reported here tonight that Pope Pius has consented to the ecclesiastical marriage of Archduke Albrecht of Hapsburg and Irene Dora Rudnay, former wife of the Hungarian minister to Sofia. The civil marriage of the couple took place on Aug. 16, 1930, at Brighton, England, and was kept secret for nearly a fortnight.

Simultaneously the pope, according to the report, has sanctioned Mrs. Rudnay's divorce from her first husband.

Archduke Albrecht, son of Archduke Frederick and Archduchess Isabella, belongs to the Catholic faith, which his wife embraced after her marriage. The union created indignation among his family. His father reduced his allowance to $400 a month. Albrecht renounced his claim to the Hungarian throne in favor of Otto, son of the former Empress Zita, in 1931.

VOTE TODAY ON LINCOLN PARK FUNDING BONDS

Leaders of both Democratic and Republican organizations on the north side ended their campaign last night to obtain approval of the $2,787,000 refunding bond issue for Lincoln park in a referendum today at the aldermanic election.

Alfred D. Piamondon, president of the park board, pointed out that the bond issue is not a further investment of money but a replacement for other bond issues for which taxes have not been collected.

"This bond issue is like renewing a loan," he explained. "The taxes to pay up the obligations will come from the levies of 1928 to 1932, inclusive. It is important that the issue should pass if Lincoln park is to preserve its credit and carry on improvements."

North siders are in grave danger of losing many park facilities unless a majority of the voters in the Lincoln park district mark "Yes" on the bond issue, according to a statement by James Simpson, chairman of the Chicago Plan commission.

The board of trustees of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, of which Douglas Sutherland is executive secretary, also issued a statement urging approval of the refunding bonds.

HOLD PRIMARIES TODAY IN CICERO AND IN BERWYN

Citizens of Cicero and in Berwyn will vote today in primaries under the jurisdiction of the board of election commissioners. In Cicero township officials are to be nominated, and in Berwyn city officials are to be nominated, the elections to be held on April 4.

In Cicero nominations are to be made for collector, trustee, police magistrate, five justices of the peace, five constables, and for two members of the library board.

In Berwyn nominations are to be made for mayor, clerk, treasurer, and for aldermen in the suburb's seven wards. The candidates for the Republican nomination for mayor are Frank Sidlo and Anthony Fink. In the Democratic primary the candidates for mayor are Otto Pecha and John J. Jirousek.

MAYOR'S BALLOT ARRIVES; TO BE COUNTED TODAY

The absentee ballots marked in Miami by Mayor Cermak and three members of his party, Ald. James B. Bowler [25th], Mrs. Bowler, and Mrs. Helen Kenlay, the mayor's daughter, were received yesterday by the board of election commissioners. The ballots will be sent out this morning to the polling places in the precincts in which the absentee voters live, the 22d ward in the case of the mayor and Mrs. Kenlay. The mayor's signature on the affidavit accompanying his ballot was shaky.

MESSAGE SENT TO ILL CERMAK BY ROOSEVELT

Hyde Park, N. Y., Feb. 27.—(AP)—President Elect Roosevelt tonight sent messages of encouragement to Mayor Cermak of Chicago and Mrs. Joe Gill of Miami, seriously wounded in the assassination attempt upon himself.

To Mayor Cermak he telegraphed: "You are making a gallant fight for recovery. Keep up the good work. We are all pulling for you."

In his message to Mrs. Gill he said: "Delighted at encouraging reports and am hoping and praying for a speedy recovery."

Mr. Roosevelt maintains closest communication with the Jackson Memorial hospital at Miami and eagerly awaits the frequent reports he gets on the progress of the victims.

U. S. TO WAIT ON TAX IF MONEY IS FROZEN IN BANK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Federal taxpayers who find their money frozen under some sort of banking restriction on March 15, probably will be allowed to pass their worries on to Uncle Sam by paying their tax by check regardless of collection qualifications.

Commissioner of Internal Revenue David Burnet today advised taxpayers to file their returns and make their payments before March 15, the due date, without consideration of their banking difficulties. The bureau will shoulder the task of collecting on the taxpayers' checks, he said.

No Risk of Penalties.

Burnet's plan has not yet received the final approval of Secretary of the Treasury Mills, but the commissioner said he believed it was the wisest course a taxpayer could follow. No risk of penalties for nonpayment or of interest on overdue payment would be run if his suggestion is followed, Burnet explained.

Taxpayers in Michigan, Maryland, parts of Ohio and Indiana, may come under the commissioner's suggestion. Last year the federal government collected 100 million dollars income taxes from those states.

Whether Burnet's plan would extend to taxpayers whose money is in closed banks, had not been determined today. Other avenues of relief were open to such cases, however, because they can apply for extensions on their payments.

Must File Income Tax Return.

Under no condition should a taxpayer, whose money is frozen, fail to file a return on time, all collection authorities emphasized. Failure to file a return lays a taxpayer open to a 25 per cent penalty assessment.

By accompanying his return with a check for payment, a taxpayer whose deposit is frozen under some sort of restriction can also avoid the assessment of interest at one-half of one per cent a month which is levied on late payments.

DAY IN WASHINGTON

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Senate passed bankruptcy relief bill and sent it to conference with the house with enactment this session doubtful.

Conferences between Cordell Hull, incoming secretary of state, and British and French ambassadors indicated likelihood France also be permitted present war debt recession plea.

Democratic house leaders blocked President Hoover's arm embargo proposal and Senator Borah [R., Idaho] opposed American participation in ban on arms shipments to orient.

Senate banking committee was told National City company participated in sale of $90,000,000 in Peruvian bonds to Americans despite warnings from representatives in that country.

Republican executive committee meeting wrote President Hoover party supporters would continue to look to him for leadership "these difficult and dangerous days."

HISTORICAL PARK BILL APPROVED; GOES TO HOOVER

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—By a vote of 233 to 106 the house today passed the senate bill creating the Morristown [N. J.] National Historical park, and sent the measure to the White House for President Hoover's signature. The area was the camp site of Gen. Washington and his troops.

The roll call vote was forced by Representative Blanton of Texas, who objected to the division vote of 124 to 9, on the ground that a quorum was not present. Mr. Blanton, with Representative Michener of Michigan, opposed passage of the measure.

Mr. Michener said this was no time to waste government money when people were starving, and Mr. Blanton declared that the real American shrine was at Mount Vernon, "which because of admission costs, many school children of Washington were unable to visit."

The bill provides a fund of $7,500 a year for the next three years. The administration, protection, and development of the tract will be assigned to the department of the interior, but police powers will be left with New Jersey.

WOODIN LOOKS OVER NEW JOB AS TREASURY HEAD

For Sound Money, Fights Radical Schemes.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—William Hartman Woodin, financier, big business man and composer of symphonies, who is one of the most interesting figures in the incoming Democratic administration, spent today in Washington looking over his new job, secretary of the treasury.

About 9:45 a. m., Mr. Woodin entered the treasury unrecognized, lugging a heavy brief case, and made his way down the dim corridors between the rows of door tenders and messengers inquiring for Secretary Mills' office.

Making himself known at last, he was ushered into his future sanctum where Alexander Hamilton looks down from the wall over the ancient fireplace and Albert G. Gallatin from the wall behind the secretary's desk. Mr. Mills received his successor and without delay began initiating him into the mysteries of federal financing which are daily waxing more and more mysterious.

Hurries to Meet Reporters.

At 12:30 Mr. Woodin hurried back to his hotel to keep an appointment with the Washington correspondents at his hotel. Unlike Mr. Mellon, who was afflicted with stage fright for several weeks in talking to reporters, Mr. Woodin was soon on easy terms with the representatives of the press. Slender, of medium height, with light hair, keen blue eyes, and a pleasant face, he possesses an unhurried, agreeable manner. What strikes you at once is that instead of the square go getting chin that you would associate with the rise of the man to presidency of the American Car and Foundry company, he has the pointed chin of the esthete and artist in keeping with his musical talent.

But Mr. Woodin was wholly the cautious business man in his interview. He had nothing to say for publication, save a few generalities. He was here to get a bird's-eye view of his next job on the tutelage of his friend and predecessor, Mr. Mills, and he would not presume to do any talking about financial policies until he had taken the oath of office and settled himself at his desk.

The impression he left upon the reporters was one of conservatism in his attitude toward the issues crowding themselves upon the new administration. This impression tallied with the reports from New York that Mr. Woodin is a sound money man in every sense of the term and will exert his influence in opposition to the numerous schemes of inflation which are filling the air of the capital.

Opposes Bank Deposit Guarantee.

From the same source comes the information that he also is opposed to the proposals of government guarantee of bank deposits, which he regards as little short of ruinous. Likewise, he is understood to be cold to the scheme favored by several of the Roosevelt advisors to establish a new kind of budget which would segregate expenditures on public works from other expenditures on the theory that the former are for capital account.

By such means a showing of an enormous reduction in current expenditures could be shown—on paper. Mr. Woodin realizes that this would not fool anybody but the most grossly ignorant and is reported to have said so most emphatically on more than one occasion. He declined to discuss this and other questions of policy today.

Mr. Woodin no sooner will take office than he will be required to arrange the March financing of the treasury involving the refinancing of 600 million dollars of government securities and the disposition of $33,600,000 of anti-hoarding baby bonds issued a year ago, which he can retire from income tax receipts or absorb in the new borrowing. The terms of this financing were arranged in the conference between the incoming and outgoing secretaries and will be announced as soon as the new administration comes in.

Four Musical Compositions.

It will be not as a financier but as a composer that Mr. Woodin will make his first appearance in the Roosevelt administration, for on inauguration day the band will play his most recent opus, the "Franklin Delano Roosevelt March." It is said that the musical theme of this work came to him while strumming the guitar in bed, as he loves to do.

Among Mr. Woodin's musical compositions are five symphonies, a children's book of songs, and various popular pieces. "Oriental Suite," one of his compositions, recently was performed by the Philharmonic orchestra in Berlin. Last month the Manhattan Symphony orchestra played a group of "four musical compositions" composed by Mr. Woodin. These were "Chinese Magic," "The Unknown Soldier," "Souvenir De Montmartre," and "Tartar Dance."

As relaxation from commercial affairs, he dashes off nursery rhymes or sets them to music. One of the latter, the words of which were written by "Johnnie" Gruelle, a cartoonist, but the music for which was written by Mr. Woodin, follows:

"Little Wooden Willie
People tho't him silly.
Cause he had a knothole
In the middle of his head.
But he put a hat on
And since he's had that on,
Those who thought him silly

Depression Theme Song.

They're singing to the rainbow shining there again.
So let us be like bluebirds happy all day long.

Mrs. Roosevelt to Bar Men at Weekly Press Conference

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is going to give the women reporters of this town a new deal.

She has not only set a precedent by announcing that she will hold a weekly press conference, once she gets to Washington, but she has smashed tradition by sending out word that these conferences will be limited to the newspaper gals. The men will be barred. At least, that's the shimmering sentence of feminism that has come to Washington's Fleet Street of newspaperdom.

So seriously is the ultimatum regarded that men editors who, a few weeks ago were opposed to the "woman angle" in journalism, are now scurrying about hiring girls with reporters' pencils.

Rushes to Meet Mrs. Roosevelt.

One large newspaper service which, up to now, employed no woman in its Washington bureau, rushed out last week, hired a competent woman, put her on a train and sent her down to New York to get acquainted with Mrs. Roosevelt so that she'd be all set for the Capitol conferences soon to be inaugurated here. The newspaper woman, by the way, already has become so well acquainted with the new first lady that Mrs. Roosevelt has invited the girl reporter's year old baby to come over to the White House one of these days soon.

What with tariff and taxes, debts and deficits looming so large in this session's congressional picture, the feminine free lance writer hasn't had such a fat winter. But those weekly White House conferences, for women only, will swing the pendulum around. Just this week four women writers have been signed to cover the conferences for various publications.

Whirlwind of Activity.

For Mrs. Roosevelt is a whirlwind of activity. Just ask any of the New York women reporters who have been covering her since election day and they'll tell you the experience has put lines into their faces and taken the curl out of their hair.

Take next Friday, Mrs. Roosevelt's first day in Washington. She is a guest at a luncheon, has guests for dinner; she gives a press conference; she attends a tea in her honor at the National Woman's Democratic club; attends another tea in her honor at the Congressional club. And then, just to top off the evening, goes to a concert, and later a reception for the visiting governors.

And that's only the first day.

Women journalists, looking forward to plenty of activity with Eleanor Roosevelt, America's new first lady, look back at the crowded days they spent a few years ago with Queen Marie, the royal Rumanian who turned so many of our cities upside down with excitement.

Pageant of Progress.

The parallel is not too inaccurate. There was that evening, during the Rumanian pageant of progress, when a weary woman reporter flopped into a plush chair in the royal suite and sighed to Mme. Lahovary, the queen's lady in waiting:

"Heavens, I don't see how you stand the pace."

Mme. Lahovary sighed. Then she replied:

SENATE SPEEDS MEDICAL LIQUOR BILL, BEER OUT

Passed by the house on Saturday, the measure was reported favorably by the senate judiciary committee and, according to senate Democratic leader Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, will be brought up on the floor and passed within the week.

It provides for the removal of all statutory restrictions on the issuance of medicinal liquor prescriptions, and would substitute for the present Volstead act limitations on the amount which physicians may prescribe, regulations to be formulated by the secretary of the treasury and the attorney general.

In reporting the bill, however, the senate judiciary committee eliminated the house provision authorizing physicians to prescribe beer for their patients' ills. As it now stands, the prescription of spirituous or vinous liquors only would be legal.

HOOVER SIGNS MEASURE TO PAY MEXICO $30,000

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—(AP)—President Hoover today signed a bill authorizing payment of $30,000 to the Mexican government as reparations for the shooting of Emilio Cortez Rubio and Manuel Gomez by two deputy sheriffs at Ardmore, Okla.

The two youths were killed on June 7, 1931. The deputies claimed they made an attempt to resist when the officers stopped to question them.

Rubio was a relative of former President Ortiz Rubio of Mexico. The bill provided $15,000 for the family of each, to be turned over to them by the Mexican government.

Girl, Sleeping Sickness Victim, Continues to Gain

Miss Patricia Maguire, 27 years old, who has been suffering from sleeping sickness for more than a year, was reported yesterday to be recovering from pneumonia at the home of her mother, Mrs. Peter Miley of 523 Clarence avenue, Oak Park. Physicians have been administering oxygen since Saturday, when her temperature rose to 105 degrees.

ICKES, SWANSON ANNOUNCED FOR JOBS IN CABINET

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Because he "likes the cut of their jibs," President Elect Roosevelt has chosen Harold L. Ickes of Chicago as secretary of the interior in his cabinet and Senator Claude A. Swanson of Virginia as secretary of the navy.

Mr. Roosevelt announced both appointments, which had been forecast freely in the last several weeks, at a press conference today.

Names of Seven Announced.

Mr. Roosevelt has formally announced the names of seven members of his cabinet, and he is expected tomorrow to give out the names of the three remaining appointees. They undoubtedly will be Frances Perkins, for secretary of labor; Daniel A. Roper, for secretary of commerce, and Senator Thomas J. Walsh, for attorney general.

The entire Roosevelt cabinet will be in Washington on March 4, ready to plunge at once into the work before the new administration. Some of the appointees will ride with the President-elect from New York to Washington and the others will meet him there.

"Let's see," said the President elect as the reporters gathered about him in the library of his home at Krum Elbow. "I'll give you Harold Ickes today for secretary of the interior."

He paused a minute to let the surprise die down and then said:

Swanson "Old Colleague."

"And my old colleague, Claude Swanson, for secretary of the navy."

"Why have you selected Ickes and Swanson?" Mr. Roosevelt was asked.

The President elect stated informally that he had known Mr. Ickes, who has been a reform welfare worker and lawyer in Chicago for some years, and is the husband of Anna Wilmarth Ickes, member of the Illinois house of representatives, for many years.

"Mr. Ickes has taken an active part in good government," Mr. Roosevelt said, "and has been energetic in social welfare work."

Evasive on Reasons.

Mr. Roosevelt evaded any discussion of political reasons which moved him to make the Ickes appointment. He admitted being aware that Ickes was campaign manager for Senator Hiram Johnson during a bid by the latter for the Republican presidential nomination, but he declined to go into the reports that the appointment is being made in recognition of Senator Johnson's support, and that of other radical Republicans, given to Mr. Roosevelt in the last campaign.

No further explanation was given by the President elect for his appointment of Senator Swanson to the navy portfolio. One compelling reason which has been advanced is that the leaders of the Democratic party in Virginia are most anxious to elect former Gov. Harry Flood Byrd, their favorite son, to the senate, and since Senator Carter Glass, the senior member from Virginia, refused to accept the secretaryship of the treasury a vacancy could be created only by the elevation of Senator Swanson to the cabinet.

May Give Up Arms Work.

It is understood here that Senator Swanson, who is one of the American representatives on the international disarmament conference body, will relinquish that duty now to another.

The President elect has mislaid the papers pertaining to his income tax return, he revealed jokingly today. In the jam of packing effects at his two houses, one in Hyde Park and the other in New York City, the income tax records have been lost, and a search in both houses made by the President elect's personal secretary, Miss Marguerite Lehand, has failed to locate them. It is likely they have already gone, with many other records, to the White House.

"There's nothing of value to anybody else in them," Mr. Roosevelt remarked. "About all there is in the papers is the amount of my salary as governor of New York."

MRS. COOLIDGE DECLINES BID FOR MARCH 4TH

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—(AP)—The Roosevelt inaugural committee announced today that Mrs. Calvin Coolidge has declined with thanks an invitation to attend Saturday's inaugural ceremonies.

Mrs. Thomas J. Preston of Princeton, N. J., who was the White House bride of Grover Cleveland, also declined an invitation, explaining that she has been ill.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the last Democratic President, is taking an active part in arrangements for the ceremonies as vice chairman of the committee on distinguished guests.

14 Die as Elevator Cage Falls in 7,000 Foot Shaft

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Two Europeans and twelve native miners were killed today when an elevator cage crashed at the botton of a 7,000 foot shaft at the Crown mines.

HOUSE NAMES FIVE TO ACCUSE JUDGE IN SENATE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—The house today named five of its members to prosecute the impeachment of Federal Judge Harold K. Louderback of San Francisco at the bar of the senate.

Judge Louderback was impeached by the house several days ago for distributing lucrative receiverships and attorneyships in bankruptcy cases under him to friends and political allies.

The house action, however, corresponded merely to a grand jury indictment. The California judge's ultimate conviction remains with the senate, which must try him at the coming special session. The senate was formally notified of the house's impeachment action today through a resolution adopted in the lower body.

The five representatives named to prosecute the judge are all members of the house judiciary committee, all lawyers, and all signed the minority report which resulted in the impeachment. They are Gordon Browning [Dem., Tenn.], Malcolm Tarver [Dem., Ga.], F. H. La Guardia [Rad., N. Y.], Charles I. Sparks [Rep., Kas.], and Hatton W. Summers [Dem., Tex.], chairman of the judiciary committee.

La Guardia and Sparks, both lame ducks, are to be replaced in the next congress.

Roosevelt Will Take Oath on 300 Year Old Bible

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—When Franklin Delano Roosevelt takes the oath of the presidency next Saturday noon he will bow down to kiss an old Dutch Bible which has been in the family for nearly 300 years and which will be opened at I. Corinthians, chapter 13.

The chapter selected today by the President elect himself reflects the humility with which Mr. Roosevelt assumes his great office. It is printed in Dutch, a translation of the King James version, which follows:

"Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal.

"And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing.

"And though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.

"Charity suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up;

"Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth;

"Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.

"Charity never faileth: but whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away.

"For we know in part, and we prophesy in part.

"But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part shall be done away.

"When I was a child, I spake as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child; but when I became a man, I put away childish things.

"For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face; now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known.

"And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity."

The first entry in the Bible shows the birth of a child of Nicholas Roosevelt, in 1670, and following that entry are listed chronologically all the births, deaths, and marriages of Roosevelts down to 1840, when all available space was taken. No usual blank pages for family records were contained in the Bible, the entries being made on the inside cover and blank fly leaves.

Nicholas Roosevelt was the son of Claes Van Roosevelt, first of the clan which produced two Presidents of the United States to arrive in this country. The Dutch name "Claes" in English is "Nicholas," and so the first of the American line, becoming Anglicized, changed his name to Nicholas and dropped the "Van" from his surname.

The heavy, pigskin bound Bible is decaying rapidly, and Mr. Roosevelt plans to carry it on the train with him to the capital. After the inaugural ceremony the book will be returned to Hyde Park.

The page bearing the printer's name and the date of publication has been lost. The Bible is printed in heavy type.

It was used on two other similar occasions when Mr. Roosevelt was sworn in as governor of New York.

BOARD AND ROOM AT U. OF C. CUT TO PRE-WAR LEVELS

William J. Mather, bursar of the University of Chicago, announced reductions yesterday in the rental of rooms in residence halls, and also in the charge for board at halls having dining rooms. The cut in rentals averages 13.38 per cent, he said, and in board 8.5 per cent. It is now possible for a student to obtain room and board for $128 a quarter [eleven weeks] which Mr. Mather said was below pre-war costs.

MELLON TARGET FOR 400 MILLION DOLLAR TAX SUIT

Citizen Seeks to Recover Revenue for U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Legal action to recover nearly 400 million dollars from Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon and two of his former associates in the treasury was filed in the District of Columbia Supreme court today by David Olson, former special investigator for the senate stock exchange committee, who resigned about two weeks ago.

The suit was initiated by Olson under a line of statutes running back to 1863 which permit a citizen to sue in behalf of the people of the United States.

Here's Basis for Action.

Basis for the action is Olson's allegation that Mellon while secretary of the treasury illegally connived with officers of certain foreign steamship companies to evade federal income taxes to which they were subject. Named with the former treasury head as defendants are David H. Blair, one-time commissioner of internal revenue, and Alexander W. Gregg, former acting general counsel for the internal revenue bureau.

Olson's complaint asked that Mellon and his codefendants be compelled to pay 220 million dollars in taxes which they are alleged to have helped the foreign steamship interests to evade. It also asks the payment of interest for a 15 year period, which would bring the total amount sought to 400 millions.

According to Olson's suit, Mr. Mellon conferred with steamship officials during March, 1927, "for the purpose of assisting said companies in attempts to defeat the claim of the United States." He alleged that the foreign shipping interests, operating in this country, were permitted to file amended income tax returns for the years 1916 to 1920, computed under the 1921 revenue act, which was not retroactive.

Block Efforts to Collect.

Up to 1927, Olson declared, the companies, whose names were not divulged, blocked all efforts by the government to collect the taxes in question. He asserted that Mellon and his codefendants then permitted them to file the amended returns based on the 1921 law, thereby enabling them to escape payment of 110 million dollars for which they would have been liable under the revenue acts of 1916, 1917 and 1918.

The old statute under which the suit was instituted permits any citizen to take legal action for the recovery of damages to the government from false representation or concealing of facts by federal officials. It provides that the citizen may sue for twice the amount of the alleged damages, one-half of the court's award to go to the treasury and one-half to the citizen who instituted the proceedings.

Quit Stock Market Inquiry.

Olson recently resigned from the senate stock market investigating committee, charging that his efforts as special investigator were "hamstrung" by the committee's failure to prosecute the leads he unearthed. He declared that the senate investigation was "throttled" by Chairman Peter Norbeck [Rep., S. D.].

"It was hampered by Chairman Norbeck in every possible way," he declared, "and all my efforts to bring the evidence before the committee were defeated."

The suit was filed by Attorneys Charles A. Russell and Joseph Stein. Russell is a former solicitor for the federal power commission.

ROOSEVELT'S STAND EXPECTED TO DECIDE SILVER BILL ACTION

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—The attitude of President Elect Roosevelt toward the Somers bill to remonetize silver was said today to be the determining factor in whether a vote will be taken in the house before congress adjourns on Saturday.

At the same time, it was learned that a suggestion that Great Britain pay her next installment of the war debt in silver bullion was one of the many plans under consideration by the incoming administration, and the fact that may have influence in the passage of the bill this week.

BRITAIN FORBIDS SALE OF ARMS TO CHINA AND JAPAN

Expects Other Nations to Adopt Embargo Policy.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Great Britain today imposed an embargo on the shipment of arms and ammunition to both China and Japan. This announcement was made in the house of commons by Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, after an appeal by George Lansbury, veteran Labor party leader, for an embargo on war material against Japan, but not against China.

The British government hopes that other nations will follow its embargo policy. It is recognized that any kind of an embargo by a single nation probably would be impossible over a long period.

The arms embargo has one condition—orders and contracts already placed by the belligerent nations will be completed and shipped.

Strictly Neutral Stand.

"Under no circumstances will Great Britain be drawn into the conflict," the foreign secretary told the house. "The government does not desire to prejudice either the position of China or Japan. It will not favor one against the other. I believe our decision tonight is one that is going to be supported in the judgment of the country and, though it has taken some time to reach, that decision itself is right."

Simon added that, while the league of nations could differentiate between countries at war, a single nation could not do so without getting into trouble.

He also pointed out that in the event of an actual state of war the Japanese navy would be able to seize shipments of arms to China and that if some time that shipment happened to be in an English bottom it would be extremely difficult to escape involvement.

Urges International Action.

"I am well aware," said Simon, "that this policy will not prevent supplies of arms from being shipped by other nations. The supply of arms to belligerents can only effectively be stopped by international agreement. It would, however, be of great satisfaction to me to know that, whatever other countries are doing, Britain is taking no part in supplying the means of carrying on the conflict in the far east. This is the first time, so far as I know, that a neutral power has taken such action with reference to a distant conflict."

The foreign secretary's announcement brought a protest from the Chinese ministry, which said that the embargo was unfair. Chinese government representatives said since Japan now is recognized as the aggressor China should be permitted means of defense. The Japanese embassy was silent.

Both countries, it is believed here, are equal in war orders placed, but Japan is thought to be well stocked with finished material and well provided with means to finish materials. Her chief need is raw material, which is not necessarily affected by the Simon policy. The arms order of 1931, upon which that policy is based, specifies only what may be termed fighting material, such as arms, munitions, airplanes, etc.

Debate on Foreign Policy.

Announcement of the embargo came during a debate on all phases of foreign policy. It was precipitated by Lansbury in a motion to reduce the foreign office appropriation by about $842.

Lansbury in opening said that the Labor party was friendly to both China and Japan, but that it disagreed with the policy of the Japanese government in Manchukuo and its attitude towards the league.

He scoffed at the argument that China is going communist and that Japan is the defender of civilization.

"If such a thing happened in this country we would call it war and a bloody war at that," he shouted.

He also warned of the danger of war spreading.

Urges Britain to Act.

Lansbury declared it would be desirable if all countries joined in the embargo against Japan, but he urged that Britain in any case act at once and refuse arms, munitions and war credits. He said that the Labor party asked only for an embargo against Japan.

Lansbury was interrupted by a Conservative member, who asked if he would include in the embargo the import of arms from the United States to Japan and if he were prepared to set the British fleet in motion against America to enforce it. Lansbury replied that the American people would have to decide that for themselves and that he was certain they would decide right.

Fails to Excite Japan.

TOKIO, Feb. 28 [Tuesday].—(AP)—The general reaction here today to the newly invoked British arms embargo appeared neither favorable nor resentful, since the measure implied impartial application to China as well as Japan.

As Great Britain, however, acted alone in banning arms exports, it was felt that she made a noble, but futile gesture since there would be nothing to prevent the combatants from placing orders for arms in other countries.

Chinese Claim Secret Pact.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 28 [Tuesday].—(AP)—Allegations by the National government at Nanking that Siam and Japan have concluded a secret agreement whereby Japan hopes to obtain arms and ammunitions from abroad despite a possible anti-Japan embargo appeared in the vernacular newspapers today.

The newspapers claimed that Siam had agreed to purchase foreign war supplies and reship them to Japan, thereby avoiding embargoes on arms by other world powers in the event of such restrictions. This agreement, the newspapers alleged, explained why Siam abstained from voting when the league of nations recently adopted the report of the committee of nineteen disapproving Japan's policy in Manchuria.

France Waits U. S. Action.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 27.—The French foreign office is conferring wtih other powers regarding the advisability of taking sanctions against Japan. It is understood that the French have made no commitments in this repect and want the United States to call the play.

It is reported that Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour has sounded out the Dutch ambassador regarding an oil embargo, as Japan depends on Java for the bulk of its oil supply. Yosuke Matsuoka, leader of the Japanese delegation which bolted the league of nations at Geneva last week following the assembly's vote of censure, may make a quick trip to Holland before returning to Japan in order to obtain assurance that the Dutch oil supply will not be cut off.

A further complication in the muddled situation is that the government of Edouard Deladier may fall tomorrow over the budget and consequently France will be unable to make any formal commitments regarding a Japanese policy for a week or so, even if other powers line up.

Action on Arms Embargo Will Be Delayed by U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—The United States will not join immediately with Great Britain in slapping an embargo on arms shipments to China and Japan. While at some later date the United States may join other powers in some sort of action against shipments to Japan alone, in an effort to settle the Manchurian war, congressional opposition alone will prevent any action for some time to come.

Within a few hours after dispatches reached Washington from London announcing that Great Britain had applied an embargo against shipments of war material to either Japan or China leaders of the senate and house stated that it would not be possible to enact legislation at this session permitting this country to follow the British example.

Measure Is Tied Up.

On two occasions within the last few weeks the Hoover administration has asked congress to enact an arms embargo law which would permit the President to bar munition shipments to an aggressor power providing a joint agreement along that line could be reached with other powers. The measure passed the senate, but Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.] asked that the bill be reconsidered and up to date the senate has not acted on this measure. Until the senate acts, the measure is tied up.

The house foreign affairs committee considered an arms embargo bill, amended it to embrace only nations in the western hemisphere, and then recommended its passage. Speaker John N. Garner announced today that the bill would not be permitted to become law at this session. As Senator Bingham proposes to make a long speech against the senate embargo bill, and only five legislative days remain before adjournment, it was apparent today that the chances for the embargo legislation being passed are small.

State Department Silent.

State department officials maintained official silence regarding the next step to be taken by the Hoover administration in the embargo matter. There were reports that President Hoover planned another message to congress asking for approval of the arms resolution before his successor takes office. These rumors could not be confirmed at the state department. All indications at the state department were that the Hoover administration would favor placing an arms embargo against Japan alone if any action along that line were taken. President Hoover's hands, however, are tied by lack of authority.

Virtually all senators willing to discuss the British embargo action expressed opposition to similar action by this country. Many said that if an embargo were to be applied it should only hit Japan. The point was made that as Japan had large quantities of munitions as well as facteries, an embargo would hit China more severely than Japan.

Borah Opposes Embargo.

When informed of the British action, Chairman William E. Borah [radical, Idaho] of the senate foreign relations committee said:

"I do not care what Great Britain does. I am not for it. To put an arms embargo on China and Japan is to take sides with Japan under the conditions and circumstances that now exist."

Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] also opposed application of an embargo on arms in the current crisis.

"George Washington's advice on neutrality is as good today as when uttered," he said.

"I do not see any possibility of the arms embargo resolution being passed this session," said Senator Bingham. "There is no reason why we should endanger this nation by placing an arms embargo on both or either of the two disputants in the orient. I have a ten page letter written by a leading constitutional lawyer opposing the arms embargo resolution. I propose to read that in opposing the resolution if it comes up."

Observer to Be Named.

State department officials disclosed today that the Hoover administration will coöperate with the league of nations to the extent of assigning an observer to the advisory committee of twenty-one set up last Friday to deal with the Japanese-Manchurian crisis. A note to this effect will go forward this week. Officials said that the league had not asked the United States to accept membership on the committee and had only asked that this country and Russia coöperate in its work.

State department officials said that the resolution asking American coöperation had not asked this government to accept membership on the advisory committee.

The state department in an authorized statement said that the Hoover administration will coöperate with the league advisory committee in so far as it can. It was said, in an explanation of the Hoover Manchurian policy, that this country had intended to back the general purposes of the league which are consistent with the treaties under which the American government acts. Officials said that each new problem had been and would be considered independently as it came up.

JAPANESE ENVOY LAYS BLAME ON U. S. FOR CENSURE BY LEAGUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 27.—Speaking with the frankness which so shocked the Geneva brotherhood, Yosuke Matsuoka, Japan's chief delegate to the league of nations, who is returning to Tokio, tonight made some significant commentaries on the present far eastern muddle.

While asserting that Japan feels no bitterness towards the United States for favoring the Chinese, Matsuoka declared his countrymen blame America for the league's action in condemning Japan.

"Except for American influence with the league, I think we could have come to terms," Matsuoka said. "American partisanship in favor of China has been too obvious for too long a time. You have condoned the faults and failures of China in spite of their colossal character and you have magnified ours. Give us a little of that sympathy you have so lavishly bestowed on China. You are big enough, strong enough and safe enough to do at least this."

Asked whether Japan regarded the United States' approval of the league's report as an unfriendly gesture, he said, "We regret it. It seems inconsistent for a nation that persists in rejecting the league to uphold one of its decisions."

Member of Robber Gang Gets One Year to Life

Carl Nelson, 22 years old, who pleaded guilty to seven charges of robbery with a gun, was sentenced yesterday to from one year to life in Joliet penitentiary by Judge Thomas J. Lynch in the Criminal court. Five co-defendants received similiar sentences Saturday. Among the victims of the gang was Chief of Police Lorenz Schey of Tessville, who was robbed of two revolvers and $20 by the six men when they held him up in a soft drink parlor in the village.

CHINESE SHELL JAPANESE FROM MOUNTAIN FORTS

Invasion Checked; 4,000 Reported Slain.

BULLETIN.

SUICHUNG, Manchuria, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Japanese forces under Maj. Gen. Heijiro Hattori, assisted by bombing planes from this base, smashed the stubborn resistance of Chinese regulars at Shamaoshan in southern Jehol today and occupied the town and pass. The Chinese retreated northward.

BULLETIN.

KAILU, Jehol Province, Feb. 28 (Tuesday).—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Mogi's Japanese brigade of cavalry today occupied Fangchen, a roadfork only 26 miles northeast of Chihfeng, their immediate objective in the drive toward Jehol City.

WITH THE JAPANESE ARMY ON THE SUICHUNG-WUKUNGFU ROAD.—[By courier to Suichung.]—Feb. 27.—(AP)—A formidably fortified and strongly held defense system is checking the advance of Maj. Gen. Hattori's brigade of Japanese infantrymen along the road leading to Lingyuan, in southern Jehol province.

Air scouts report that a trench system 40 miles long and of great depth has been thrown up by the Chinese defenders, "the blood and iron corps." These are a combination of Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang's famous 19th brigade and well armed volunteers.

Eighteen hours of steady advance through snow and cold from Suichung, in southern Manchuria north of Shanhaikwan, brought the stalwart infantrymen of Maj. Gen. Hattori in contact with this system. The Chinese from secluded and protected positions in nearby mountains shelled the Hattori column, but casualties were light.

Advance in Subzero Weather.

The Japanese column en route to the front in the central part of Jehol from Suichung forms a three-mile-long cavalcade of American-made trucks which carry thousands of Japanese infantrymen.

They have the deadliest of modern weapons and the very best of supplies. They present a mighty spectacle rumbling through the snowy wastes of Jehol in the dead of night under a moonlit sky. The scene is accentuated by the glimmer of vast stretches of snow that blankets the hills on the horizon.

The winds from the Mongolian plains are biting cold—it is seven degrees below zero Fahrenheit. Despite extreme discomfort from the weather, however, the soldiers sing their barracks songs with great spirit.

Japs Shift Line of Attack.

PEIPING, China, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Checkmated at the pass of Paishihtsumen, the Japanese troops invading the Chinese province of Jehol suddenly changed their line of attack tonight from Peipiao and Chaoyang toward Tamiao with the object of seizing Chienping, about half way between Chaoyang and Chihfeng.

This was revealed in dispatches reaching here from the Chaoyang sector, where the invaders a few days ago pointed one of four spearheads toward the interior of the Chinese province of Jehol.

The new Japanese thrust, if successful, would bring the attackers within striking distance either of Lingyuan, about 75 miles southwest of Chaoyang, or Chihfeng, another strategic point more than 100 miles northwest of Chaoyang. Both places are Chinese strongholds.

Thousands Reported Slain.

Thousands are reported to have been slain as the Japanese invaders today met the stiffest resistance they have yet encountered in their drive to add Jehol to the Japanese supported state of Manchukuo. Japanese dispatches said 3,000 Chinese had been killed, while Chinese dispatches said that at least 1,000 Japanese had been slain.

Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang's 19th army, which jumped into action for the first time since Japan began its invasion, fought tenaciously to block the advance of a Japanese brigade of infantry at Shamoshan pass, a few miles north of the Great Wall and west of the Manchurian frontier.

Severe fighting continued tonight among the hills near Tamiao. A Chinese communique claimed that the defense line remained intact after several hours of bitter conflict. All attempts to turn the Chinese right flank ended in failure, the dispatches said.

Chinese Fall Back in North.

Meanwhile Chinese volunteers who evacuated Kailu in northeastern Jehol before the onslaught of Maj. Gen. Kennosuke Mogi's cavalry detachment had fallen back still farther tonight in order to shorten their line of defense. They were making a stubborn stand against the invaders.

Hsiawa, a small Mongolian village at the edge of the Gobi desert, between Kailu and Chihfeng, was the point at which the Chinese volunteers were rallying for the second time after battles on Sunday.

Military observers in Peiping believe that the Chinese main line of defense, extending roughly from a point north of Chihfeng southward almost of the Great Wall, remained virtually untouched tonight, and that the Japanese will not be able to reach Chihfeng except with great cost.

Wounded Arrive in Peiping.

Under the auspices of the Chinese Red Cross four medical relief units proceeded to Jehol early today, taking 25,000 surgical dressings and first aid kits.

Many of the Chinese members of the staff of the Rockefeller Foundation hospital have volunteered for service at the front. A party of 50 men and women nurses will leave for Jehol tomorrow. They will work in base hospitals at Jehol City and other points.

Japs Predict Easy Victory.

CHINCHOW, Manchuria, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Officers at Japanese headquarters here today predicted that the armies of Japan and Manchukuo would "have Jehol province in the hollow of their hand" in ten days.

By March 10, anniversary of the battle of Mukden in the Russo-Japanese war 28 years ago, they said, Jehol City will have fallen and the province will be ripe for annexation to Manchukuo.

That was the prediction, but the Chinese defense appeared to be stiffening and there was no relaxation of the bitter weather along the entire front.

Fight Gobi Desert Sand.

The Japanese army of the north, pushing down toward Jehol City from Kailu, was having the worst time of all the Japanese forces. The march led them through part of the Gobi desert, where sand drifts, driven by gale winds, and soft mud in the river bottoms blocked tanks and trucks. The Japanese are reported to have lost 400 horses in the mud. Despite these difficulties Gen. Mogi reported he had reached Lungchikwang junction, about 100 miles south of Kailu. The Chinese under Gen. Feng, he said, were retreating in disorder toward Chihfeng.

CHINA AND JAPAN UNITE; WIN CUT IN BULLET PRICES

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—There is an amusing side even to the buying of bullets for the war in the far east.

Purchasing agents for China and Japan met the other day in the reception room of one of the big munitions firms. They fell to talking as friends and finally compared the prices they were paying. The result was that they went in to see the munitions maker together, put up a united front and went away with a 40 per cent cut in prices.

● Keep Your Body Free of Poisons and Counteract Acidity—with SAL HEPATICA. Poisons will not Invade Your Blood, and You Can Avoid Sickness!

Most of winter's ills are due to constipation. Without regular elimination, poisons gather in your blood, and colds, rheumatism and "flu" get a start.

Keep well! Don't get sick! Use Sal Hepatica this winter, and you won't be an easy mark for every germ that comes along!

Now you need Sal Hepatica most, for insufficient exercise, hot rooms and cold rooms, lazy digestion, and incomplete elimination cause poisons to accumulate in your blood stream.

Regularly sweep away the poisons and wastes from your body with Sal Hepatica and see how your spirits rise.

You'll feel better and be better. For Sal Hepatica, unlike most laxatives, prevents the absorption of poisons by your blood stream. It is thorough in its action—the gentlest but most cleansing laxative you can use.

Try it tomorrow. As any doctor will tell you, Sal Hepatica flushes the intestinal tract clean, and that's why colds, headaches, rheumatism, bad complexions, and a host of seemingly unrelated troubles yield to this pleasant remedy.

EXTEND PENALTY DATE FOR TAXES HERE TO MAR. 15

Legislature Is Expected to Ratify Action.

County Treasurer McDonough announced yesterday that the penalty date on the first installment of 1931 real estate taxes has been advanced until March 15.

The statutory date on which these taxes may be paid without penalty falls tomorrow, March 1. Action of the legislature will be necessary to ratify Mr. McDonough's extension of the period of payment until the 15th. He and his attorney, Thomas D. Nash, were assured by leaders of the legislature, when they visited Springfield last week, that such legislation will be enacted.

April 1 Date for Country.

Taxpayers living in country towns may pay their bills with their township collectors up to April 1, Mr. McDonough added. The country town tax books will be left with the township collectors until two weeks after the new penalty date. There will be no changes in the penalty dates on the second half of 1931 real estate taxes, or upon the 1931 personal property tax bills which are now set at July 1 and May 1, respectively.

At Springfield Mr. McDonough and Mr. Nash discovered that there is a bill pending in the state senate to postpone indefinitely the July 1 penalty date for the payment of the second installment of the 1931 taxes. This was intended to apply to 1932 tax bills in downstate counties, but as written would apply to the 1931 installment in Cook county, also. Downstate senators agreed to amend the bill to exclude Cook county from its provisions.

$1,059,908 Paid in Day.

Delinquent 1928, 1929, and 1930 taxes and current 1931 taxes collected yesterday amounted to $1,059,908.17, it was announced last night by Treasurer McDonough.

Treasurer McDonough repeated his appeal to taxpayers who wish to present tax warrants in payment of parts of their bills to make their payments early in order to avoid a last minute rush. These payments are being received in a special office in the former Foreman bank building, at La Salle and Washington streets.

All of the city tax bills in the town of Hyde Park, most of those for the town of Lake and some in West town have been mailed to taxpayers. Mailing of bills to residents of the north and northwest sides will be under way this week.

Warn High Rates Will Stand.

With the receipt of tax bills, property owners are beginning to file complaints against 1931 assessments with the board of tax appeals. These complaints are being taken in the office of Assessor J. L. Jacobs.

The clerks on duty there have access to assessment records and are endeavoring to persuade property owners whose only complaint is of high tax bills, without any allegations of error in their assessments, that it will be useless to file complaints.

LEAGUE DRAFTS PLAN TO END WAR IN LATIN AMERICA

May Send Commission to Leticia Area.

GENEVA, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The league of nations' committee studying the border conflict between Peru and Colombia deliberated privately for three hours tonight. The members later declined firmly to disclose the nature of any plan they may have for settling the controversy.

That their efforts were not fully successful was indicated by the fact that a league council session set for tomorrow was postponed until Wednesday or later.

Reports were in circulation that the committee is proposing to send to the Leticia area, where hostilities broke out two weeks ago, an international commission to supervise plans for ending the warfare. It was learned on good authority that the proposal was communicated to the United States as well as to the nations involved.

Plan Arms Embargo.

The principle of the arms embargo as a weapon for the league to enforce peace was advanced today with the announcement that the governments of Great Britain and France are ready to cut off shipments of war materials to Paraguay and Bolivia.

Capt. Anthony Eden, acting for both London and Paris, informed the league also that both countries are ready to consult the United States and other nonmembers of the league, "whose coöperation is essential" in this matter.

While talk of an embargo was directed explicitly at the countries in dispute over the Gran Chaco, it was evident that the league authorities considered that such a plan has significant bearing upon the trouble in Manchuria. The Gran Chaco, they believe, may be a useful proving ground for experimenting with the embargo, with a possibility of its employment later in the far east.

United States Favors Proposal.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—(AP)—The United States looks with favor upon the league of nations' proposal to send an international commission to supervise cessation of hostilities and withdrawal of troops from Leticia, where Peru and Colombia have been engaged in hostilities.

This was learned authoritatively today, although state department officials, who admitted receiving advices from Geneva on the proposed league action, would not discuss the nature of the league plan.

Until now the United States and the league have judged events in the disputed Amazonian corridor in the same way and have sent notes to Peru urging against continuation of hostilities.

Paraguay Claims Two Victories.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Bolivia's army in the Gran Chaco continues to hammer at the center of the Paraguayan line, but the Paraguayan general staff announced today that in two attacks yesterday the enemy was driven back with heavy losses.

COUNTY BOARD GETS OPINION ON OVERDRAFTS

State's Attorney Courtney yesterday presented to the budget making county commissioners an opinion on the legal status of $200,000 of overdrafts made by various county officials. The opinion held that the county is liable only for those expenditures incurred before appropriations against which they were drawn were exhausted and for items fixed by statute, such as pay for jurors and election judges and clerks.

The commissioners directed Lee J. Howard, county auditor, and Thor E. Madsen, county efficiency expert, to analyze all 1932 overdrafts to determine which should be paid under the prosecutor's opinion. They were directed to return a report tomorrow morning.

The tentative budget of the commissioners is $200,000 in excess of anticipated revenue. If only $100,000 of the overdrafts are sanctioned by the board the commissioners hope to pass the budget by Thursday. If further overdrafts are allowed, the commissioners will have to go over the entire budget for a new trimming.

Thousands of Guests

While searchlights played on the new home of the Chicago Federation of Musicians at 175 West Washington street last night, several thousand guests inspected the structure and attended its dedicatory ceremony.

At this ceremony James C. Petrillo, president of the federation, recently appointed a west park commissioner, was presented with a diamond studded commissioner's star by Clayton Smith in behalf of the federation.

Floral gifts from companies employing members of the federation banked the walls of the executive offices which will be occupied by Mr. Petrillo, Edward A. Benkert, secretary; Charles A. Runge, financial secretary, and Henry Kaiser, treasurer. During the evening the guests danced to the music of Wayne King, Ben Bernie, Charles Agnew, and Fritz Miller and their orchestras.

LETS OWNERS DO RECEIVER'S TASK TO CUT EXPENSES

In order to save the owners of buildings on which mortgages have been foreclosed the expense of receiverships, Circuit Judge Joseph Burke yesterday entered orders allowing the equity owners in three foreclosed properties to remain in charge.

The equity owners will collect the rents and pay them over to the trustees of the defaulted bonds. They will furnish the same surety bonds required of receivers, and will be under the supervision of the court.

Mrs. Ruth Cohen, owner of the equity in store and apartment building at Mason avenue and Madison street, posted a $25,000 bond to protect a $143,000 bond issue.

Thomas B. Martin, equity owner in an apartment building at 1809 North Park avenue, on which there is a defaulted bond issue of $77,000, posted a $3,000 bond.

LONDON THEATER "WAR" SETTLED; STAR JOINS UNION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 27.—A dispute in the theater which flared up between the newly organized Equity association of actors and George Robey, famous veteran comedian, when the latter refused to join the association, apparently petered out tonight.

A compromise was reached whereby Robey agreed to pay life membership dues about $50 in return for freedom to disassociate himself from the organization in any way. The agreement is subject to the approval of the plenary Equity council, which meets tomorrow.

In its fight against Robey, the Equity association had called a theater strike of all its members in the cast of "Jolly Roger," which is scheduled to open here Wednesday night. Robey, who has been starring for nearly 40 years, is regarded by Britons as almost a theatrical institution in himself.

HARVARD DOCTOR DEVELOPS TYPHUS FEVER SERUM

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Dr. Hans Zinsser, Harvard bacteriologist, who two years ago announced the isolation of the deadly typhus fever germ, has produced a serum which has immunized animals to the disease and is being used on human beings with the hope of ultimate control of the scourge.

Brief announcement of the work was made in the annual report of Dean David Linn Edsall of the Harvard Medical school to President A. Lawrence Lowell, published today.

The animal immunization, achieved in the department of bacteriology by Dr. Zinsser, its head, and by Dr. M. Luis Castaneda, instructor in the department, was the result of four years' work in coöperation with the United States public health service and the Mexican government.

Dr. Zinsser minimized the importance of the work, but indicated a beginning had been made, with much remaining to be done before complete control of the various types of typhus fever could be promised.

Typhus fever, surgeons said, has claimed more victims in the medical profession than any other epidemic disease.

Bandits Tie Watchman; Steal Safe with $500

Three bandits made a $500 haul this morning ina robbery at the Racine garage, 160 North Racine avenue. They overpowered and tied up Frank Lunt, 3346 Wallace street, the watchman, and then after half an hour's work loosened a small safe, containing the money, from its floor fastenings. They carted away the safe in a delivery truck which they stole from the garage. Lunt freed himself after thirty minutes and notified police.

VIOLENCE GROWS IN CUBA; REVOLT PERILS MACHADO

Trains Are Wrecked and Bombs Thrown.

HAVANA, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Week-end violence throughout Cuba had served tonight to stir anew rumors that something approximating revolution against the government of President Machado exists in the interior.

While official sources continued to credit such extralegal activities as were admitted to communists and the idle, the capital had word through devious channels that bands of rebels abound in Oriente, Camaguey, and Santa Clara provinces.

"Open State of Rebellion."

A family of Spaniards arriving in Havana today by train from Chambas, in Camaguey province, described the territory thereabouts as in "an open state of rebellion." They said they fled on the advice of leaders of the revolt, who, they asserted, were planning to blow up the railroad bridge in the center of Chambas.

In Sabana De Palmas, between Camaguey and Moron, there are 500 armed men, the Spaniards said.

In the third attempt within four days against properties of the United Railways, unidentified persons last night removed spikes from rails between Santa Clara and Esperanza.

Two Killed in Wreck.

A fast freight headed for Havana plunged off the unsupported rail, killing Engineer José Oviel and Conductor Estanislao Rodriguez, and wrecking the engine and at least two cars. An express messenger was slightly hurt.

Newspaper correspondents in Santa Clara reported there had been an explosion of dynamite, but offices of the United Railways here did not confirm this.

John H. Stevenson, assistant traffic manager, said the derailing of the train "was evidently intentional." He said it was hoped to have the track clear again tonight.

Burn Cane Fields.

Last Friday bombs destroyed two small bridges near Gaspar in Camaguey province, interrupting traffic, and early Saturday morning another freight train was derailed near Jovellanos, at the Santa Clara-Matanzas line.

While bombs were exploding yesterday in Santa Clara and Camaguey cities, wounding two persons in the latter, cane fields continued to burn. Incendiaries have fired millions of arrobas [25 pounds] of cane since the grinding season started, and special agents of the judicial department, aided by soldiers, have had small success in coping with the authors.

Among unconfirmed reports received in the capital today was one that several soldiers had been killed or wounded when they came upon rebels near Coliseo in Matanzas province.

HELD AS BURGLAR SUSPECT.

Logansport, Ind., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Harry Dunn, 46, released from the state prison two months ago after serving a sentence for safe breaking, is held as a suspect in an attempt to rob the county treasurer's office. He was nabbed as he fled from the scene.

OIL THROWN IN STOVE KILLS MOTHER AND 4

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Flint, Mich., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—A mother and four of her five children were burned to death in their small home here today when the woman, Mrs. Mildred Hamilton, 31 years old, attempted to speed a stove fire with kerosene. The stove exploded. Flames had consumed most of the three room cottage before firemen extinguished them.

Besides Mrs. Hamilton, these children met death: Minnie, 5 years old; William, 3 years old; Robert, one and one-half years old, and Hubert, three months old. The husband and father, William Hamilton, an employé of the Buick Motor company, collapsed when he reached the home.

The oldest child, Ernest, 6 years old, was playing in the yard when the explosion occurred. The body of one of his small brothers was blown through the kitchen door and twenty feet into the back yard. Ernest ran for aid as fast as he could to the home of his grandfather, Hugh Hamilton, two blocks away, while neighbors called the fire department.

It was impossible for volunteer rescuers to enter the home a moment after the blast for it was a mass of flames. When firemen had sent several streams of water into the dwelling and used extinguishers, however, they had kept the blaze within the house. No other residences were damaged.

Firemen entered to find the body of the mother and two children on the kitchen floor. It could not be determined immediately if they had been blown there or had tried to escape but the former theory was accepted. The baby, Hubert, was burned to death in his crib.

On the end of a bench in front of the soft coal stove was the remnant of a can which had contained kerosene. A full coal scuttle was nearby. Firemen believed that the fire had burned low and Mrs. Hamilton attempted to rekindle it with kerosene before putting on more coal. The gas formed by the fluid and the smouldering coals is a common cause of explosions, the firemen said.

TRIBUNE SHIP OPENS ILLINOIS ROUTE TO GULF

Carries First Waterway Cargo from Chicago.

tied up here and there at wharves, and entered into the sanitary and ship canal which for the last thirty-three years has given a thirty mile channel of 24 foot depth and 160 foot minimum width, one of the greatest canals in the world, to Lockport, just above Joliet.

Passes Site of Terminal.

As the Sea King swung into the sanitary ship canal near old Bridgeport, the end of the old Illinois and Michigan canal which in early days helped build Chicago and the middle west, it passed the 21 acre site now owned by the state for a northern terminal of the waterway. It is at the junction with the river at South Damen avenue, formerly Robey street. The site includes a grain elevator of a million bushels capacity now owned by the state, and it is improved with deep water slips, docks, and railroad tracks connecting with all trunk lines.

Chicago's produce terminal and fruit auction house is at this spot and traffic experts have pronounced it an ideal terminal site. A fund of $200,000 from the Santa Fé and Illinois Central railroads has become available through the settlement of the "90-foot strip" cases, involving old Illinois and Michigan canal lands, and all that is needed now is legislation enabling the state division of waterways to spend the $200,000.

Part Cut Through Rock.

The earth section of the canal to Summit is about eight miles long. From there to Willow Springs the earth and rock section is some five miles long. The rock section from Willow Springs to Lockport, 15 miles long, is cut out of the rock and the ship passes between high masonry walls built on rock. At the Sag the Calumet-Sag channel flows into the ship canal. It cost $15,000,000 and connects with the Little Calumet river just east of Blue Island, a 16 mile canal of 20 foot depth with a bottom width of 60 feet through the rock sections.

The present commerce on the sanitary and ship canal consists almost entirely of limestone rock, sand and gravel, and oil. Commerce is increasing steadily. In 1931 the total traffic was 922,000 tons, valued at $3,986,000. At Lemont the boat passes limestone quarries with water terminals for loading stone onto barges. At Romeo the Globe Oil and Refining company receives crude oil by water for refining in its plant at that point. At Lockport the Texas Oil company pipes oil and gasoline from its storage tanks into its barges or tankers.

Some oil transportation has been made via the sanitary canal to ports along the Lake Michigan shore outside Chicago in lake vessels.

The 36 mile trip to the lock at Lockport at the controlling works, where there is a fall of 41 feet into the Desplaines river, the beginning of the 60 miles Illinois waterway, was completed in about three and a half hours, and the Sea King tied up there last night.

Ice at Lockport Lock.

A coating of ice sheeted the Lockport lock when the Sea King floated into it at 8 o'clock this morning. Lockmaster Edward P. Callahan closed the gates, the waters rushed out in a swirling torrent and in fifteen minutes the motorship had been dropped 41 feet to the level of the river below. This lock is the beginning of the Illinois waterway, and its cost was $1,975,000. It was built by the state of Illinois. The upper gates are 20 feet high and weigh 190 tons each; the lower gates, 60 feet high, weigh 315 tons each.

Col. Sultan and Maj. L. D. Cornish, state waterway engineer, came aboard as guest passengers at Lockport for the first continuous voyage over the new route. Harold W. Bischman, Brandon Road lockmaster, took the wheel as pilot through the first of the pools. E. H. Beechley, principal government engineer, joined the party. Schreiber as navigator signed the clearance papers and today's trip began.

A short distance below the lock the channel merges with the bed of the Des Plaines river. Near Jackson street the ship sailed over the site of old dam No. 1, which was removed last month.

New Bridges at Joliet.

Joliet gets five new bascule bridges, which will cost the state some million and a half dollars. Three of the structures are already built at Jackson, Cass, and Jefferson streets. Another is to be erected at Ruby street, a fifth at McDonough street. The Rock Island railway bridge, which now gives a clearance of only 9½ feet, will have its lift machinery installed within a few days. Crowds on each of the bridges and along the embankments cheered and saluted.

Between McDonough street and the Brandon road dam, the waterway widens out into the Brandon pool, or Lake Joliet.

On both sides of the river, concrete walls extend upstream. The east wall is 2⅛ miles long and 15 to 40 feet high; the west wall is 23 feet high and 2¼ miles long.

At Brandon road, Mr. Antrim delivered the first consignment of freight to be conveyed from Chicago over this pool. M. A. Felman company received a package of hosiery shipped by Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. and a package of dry goods from Marshall Field & Co. George A. Ducker company received a consignment of dry goods from Marshall Field & Co.

The Brandon road lock and dam in the Des Plaines river about two miles below Joliet forms one of the greatest projects in the waterway. It was built from the plans made by the late George M. Wisner, chief engineer of the Chicago sanitary district in 1907, when the plans of the sanitary district to extend its channel some four miles to the end of Lake Joliet were fought at Springfield by Samuel Insull and the power interests which controlled the senate combine.

As the Sea King entered the lock THE TRIBUNE airplane swooped down towards the surface of the waters and Cameraman Louis Wolf shot the scene from the air.

The dam at Brandon road is 1,350 feet long. It has 21 taintor gates, each 60 feet long, which control the pool level and safeguard Joliet against floods.

Prepared for Flood Control.

About 8,300 cubic second feet of water come over the dam now. In bad storms a maximum of 35,000 cubic feet has come over the dam. Special gates enable the draining of excess flow and in case of floods the engineers figure the pool level can be reduced to normal in less than three hours. Headgates for a power plant are in and the federal power commission has granted a license to the state for development of the water power. The lock and dam cost 3½ million dollars.

The drop from Lake Joliet is 31 feet into the Dresden island pool which extends 14 miles to Dresden Island lock and dam. Lake Joliet, which is a natural widening of the Des Plaines river extends about four miles below Brandon road lock, and from there the river narrows down.

Involved in Controversy.

Dresden Heights soon drew in sight. Here is the site of the effort for control of the artificially created water power in the stream by the old Economy Light and Power company [later consolidated with the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois], which in 1907 started the construction of a dam in the Des Plaines river. Out of this arose a long controversy over navigability of the Des Plaines.

Great flocks of ducks crossed the path of the Sea King as the mouth of the Kankakee river was approached. The Illinois river is formed by the confluence of the Des Plaines and Kankakee rivers. Here floes of ice were in the stream, brought down the Kankakee, which is shallow. Ira W. Klein, pool pilot, and John Walker, state division engineer, found the cracks and took the motorship through without scraping a floe.

Plan Resort Development.

The pool at the Dresden island is one of great scenic beauty, and already developments are under way to establish portions of it as a summer resort region.

estate of R. A. Bonnell, chief engineer of the Congress Construction company, which built the Dresden island lock and dam. He has worked on every lock and dam on the Illinois waterway, and in the Dresden island project finished up several months ahead of contract time.

The water in the stream is getting clearer due to the extension of sewage disposal plants by the Chicago sanitary district. This was commented upon yesterday as the motorship passed down the sanitary canal itself. The wide dam at Brandon road was held a possible factor by some of the engineers aboard, on the theory that it aerated more completely the flow over the dam crest.

About a mile below the point where the Des Plaines and Kankakee unite to form the Illinois is the Dresden island lock and dam, some 56 miles from Tribune Tower and the mouth of the Chicago river. The fall here is 17 feet.

This is the point where a coffer dam was built and the bed of the river was drained dry in order to lay the foundations deep into the rock. It was the last project on the waterway to be completed. Its cost was $2,365,000. It includes a lock of standard barge traffic size, a duplicate of the Brandon road lock.

Emerging from the Dresden island lock, which took some 45 minutes to get through as the gates are operated by hand, because the electrical machinery was not ready, an abundance of wild fowl was seen. Ducks by the hundreds skittered across the water. W. H. Beever, pool pilot, and D. E. Mather, resident engineer, who came aboard, reported that local traffic had been in progress on this section of the waterway for some months, gravel being transported from Dresden island to La Salle.

Reach Marseilles Pool.

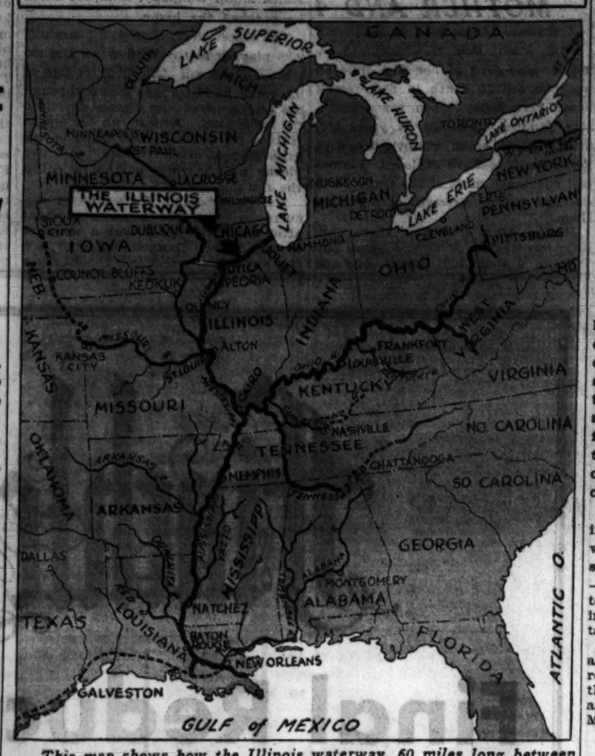
The Marseilles pool at Morris, half way point on the Pomile waterway, was reached at 1 o'clock. The town has been of importance in waterway history—it was the home of the late W. L. Sackett, who for many years was identified with the state waterways.

The first consignment of merchandise carried from Chicago to Morris over the new trade route was delivered to C. H. Hinds. It consisted of packages of hosiery and dry goods from Marshall Field & Co. and Carson Pirie Scott & Co.

Citizens who gathered to greet the first boat over the waterway held it was the most historic waterway occasion for the city since the day in 1844 when a big sidewheel steamer, the Superb, took a full cargo of produce from Morris to St. Louis.

At the riverside the Sea King tied up to the government stern wheeler which Col. Sultan plans to sail into the mouth of the Chicago river next month as the first boat to make a continuous upward passage of the waterway. It is the Gouverneur, a steel vessel built like a down river packet.

THE MISSISSIPPI SYSTEM



This map shows how the Illinois waterway, 60 miles long between Joliet and Utica—The Tribune first over the route yesterday in the "Sea King"—connects the great lakes with the inland system of waterways leading to the Gulf of Mexico. Through the Chicago gateway the great lakes are now connected for barge navigation with Pittsburgh, New Orleans, Kansas City, Memphis, St. Louis, and Twin Cities and intermediate river ports. Dotted lines show projects under improvement, solid lines channels now navigable.

Freight Carried on Historic Trip

The cargo of small package freight carried on the Sea King on THE TRIBUNE'S waterway opening voyage is as follows for points as far as Cairo, Ill., at the tip of the state, where the Ohio flows into the Mississippi:

WATERWAY TALE GOES BACK TO OLD EXPLORERS

Territory Traversed by Marquette and La Salle.

The Illinois waterway has a great historical background. The Chicago divide is the site of the ancient outlet of the great lakes in dim geological ages. Some 900 miles away by water, the rock floor of the Niagara river at its Lake Erie end is only some 30 feet lower than the rock summit in the Des Plaines valley above Summit, or at about the same level as the bed of the Chicago sanitary canal.

Had there been a little more grinding by the glacier the great lakes would be emptying into the Mississippi instead of into the St. Lawrence—years ago engineers pointed out that ten miles of rock erosion above Joliet in the ice cap period would have maintained the Chicago outlet.

In prehistoric ages, archaeologists affirm that it was the probable water route of the mound builders between the copper deposits of Lake Superior and the bottoms along the Illinois and Mississippi rivers.

Discovery by Early Explorers.

Some two centuries and a half ago, Joliet and Marquette, in 1673, going from Green Bay by way of the Fox-Wisconsin river route, discovered the Mississippi. They floated down to the mouth of the Arkansas and, returning, they were persuaded by Indians to take the Illinois river. They were the first white men to cross the Chicago divide. This took place in September, 1673.

Marquette first proposed a canal across the Chicago divide. His friend, Father Dablon, at Quebec, in a letter written on Aug. 1, 1674, reported:

"A very important advantage, and one which some, perhaps, will find it hard to credit, is that we could easily go to Florida in boats and by a very good navigation. There would be but one canal to make—by cutting one-half of a league of prairie — to pass from the Lake of Illinois (Lake Michigan) into the St. Louis river (Des Plaines river)."

Winters on Chicago Site.

Late in 1674 Marquette returned to Chicago and wintered "two leagues" from the lake, adjacent to the west fork of the south branch of the Chicago river near Damen avenue, old Robey street, opposite the head of the present sanitary canal. In March, 1675, flood waters drove him from his cabin, due to the spring breakup of the Des Plaines river, and Marquette took refuge on a hillock near Damen avenue, which was not entirely removed until 1880. He later crossed the divide in a canoe, but was compelled by sickness to abandon his mission after he had passed the site of Utica, and on his return journey he died.

La Salle, one of the greatest of the early French explorers in North America, built a boat on the Niagara river in 1678 and sailed to Green Bay, the first vessel to sail the upper lakes.

Vision of Inland Empire.

La Salle had a vision of a vast inland empire. Convinced that the Mississippi flowed into the Gulf of Mexico he conceived a project to explore the river to its mouth and extend the French power to the lower Mississippi valley. In January, 1682, he gathered his party at "Checaugou," went over the ice in sleighs to open water at Peoria, and, launching his boats, traveled over the Illinois and Mississippi rivers to the gulf.

He named the basin Louisiana and took possession of it in the name of Louis XIV. Returning to the Illinois country, La Salle established Fort St. Louis at Starved Rock, opposite Utica. In the great plain was an Indian village which he estimated to contain 20,000 Indians, including 4,000 warriors. He left his lieutenant, Henry de Tonty, in command at the Starved Rock fort and returned to France, where he fitted out an expedition to open up the Mississippi river from the gulf. He missed the mouth of the river and was assassinated near Trinity river, Texas, in 1687. Besides discovering the Ohio he was the first explorer to follow the Mississippi to its mouth.

The site of Fort St. Louis was the scene of the virtual extermination of the Illinois tribes in 1770 by the northern Indians in revenge for the assassination of Pontiac at Cahokia and it has since been known as Starved Rock.

French trappers, fur traders, and the pioneers who followed journeyed over the Des Plaines-Chicago route in traveling from the great lakes to the Mississippi.

ILLINOIS WATERWAY FACTS

Following are material facts concerning the Illinois waterway:

EXTENT—Lockport to Starved Rock, near Utica, Ill. Length, 80 miles. Channels, 10 feet in depth and 200 feet or more in width.

CONNECTING—At Lockport with Chicago sanitary and ship canal, 24 feet depth, minimum width 160 feet; 30 miles long. With six miles of Chicago river it connects Lake Michigan with Illinois waterway. At Utica with slack water navigation of the lower Illinois river, which the federal government has improved to a 9 foot depth to the Mississippi river at Grafton.

LINES—The great lakes, through the Chicago gateway, with the Mississippi and the Gulf of Mexico.

COST—State of Illinois, bond issue, Lockport to Utica $20,000,000
Federal government, finishing construction 7,500,000
$ 27,500,000
Chicago sanitary district, cost of ship canal to Lockport 75,000,000
$102,500,000

POOLS—From Lockport to Utica the Illinois waterway is formed by creating four pools in the Des Plaines and Illinois rivers. The Illinois river is formed by the confluence of the Des Plaines and Kankakee rivers.

LOCKS AND DAMS—

HISTORY OF CANAL

In 1808 Albert Gallatin, secretary of the treasury, gave the waterway plans a prominent place in his report on internal communications and in 1811 the Illinois waterway was reported to congress in a bill with the proposed Erie and other canals. During the war of 1812, with the massacre at Fort Dearborn, national attention was further directed to the canal project. It was recommended in a message by President Madison in 1814. It was readily advocated as an extension of the Erie canal to the Mississippi.

In 1816 Maj. Long, who had been sent to rebuild Fort Dearborn, reported to the secretary of war on the "practicability of a ship canal." That same year an Indian treaty was made by which the Ottawa, Chippewa, and Pottawatomie Indians ceded territory within ten miles of the water route, or inside what is known as the Indian boundary line.

Boundary Shifted North.

When Illinois was admitted as a state in 1818, the northern boundary was shifted northward some 61 miles, at the instance of Nathaniel Pope, territorial delegate. The purpose was to give Illinois a coast on Lake Michigan and to keep construction of the waterway within the jurisdiction of one state.

Mr. Pope argued that the southern part of the state was the nucleus of a great river system; that the northern end of the state should bear a like relation to the great lakes. The great argument was that Illinois would thus become a link between north and south. This 61 mile strip, taken from Wisconsin, contains Chicago and 14 of the most populous counties of the state. These counties made possible the election of the Republican state ticket in 1856, and historians hold that this in turn made possible the nomination and election of Abraham Lincoln as President in 1860.

Land Granted by Congress.

Congress in 1822 granted a right of way through the public domain, and in 1827 made a grant of land, 284,000 acres, five alternate sections on either side of the route. Cost of the canal was estimated at $640,000. The work of building a canal from Chicago to La Salle, some 97 miles long, was begun by the state at Bridgeport on July 4, 1836, and the Illinois and Michigan canal was finally opened in 1848, amid scenes of jubilation.

The first boat to pass through the canal reached Chicago on April 23, 1848. It carried a shipment of sugar from New Orleans to New York.

The Illinois and Michigan canal had a 6 foot depth, 36 foot bottom width, 60 foot surface width, and 15 lift locks 105 feet long and 18 feet wide, in addition to a guard lock. The water supply was from the lake by way of the Chicago river, with a feeder through the Sag valley from the Calumet, supplemented by lift wheels at Bridgeport. In 1866-1871 the city of Chicago cut down the summit level and the water flowed by gravity from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi.

Total Cost, $9,513,021.

The total cost of the canal, including cutting down the summit level, was $9,513,021. Operation of the canal was a success from the beginning, and it served a great purpose in the development of the midwest. In 1885 Commissioner Brainerd reported it had saved the people within reach of its influence not less than $180,000,000.

For decades it has been known as the "tadpole ditch," but it is still paying its way.

THE SANITARY SHIP CANAL

The necessity for a better method of disposing of Chicago's sewage and of keeping the water supply in Lake Michigan from pollution resulted in the passage of an act by the legislature in 1889 under which the sanitary district was established. Actual work on the sanitary and ship canal, which has cost $75,000,000, began on "shovel day," Sept. 3, 1892. Water was first admitted to the canal on Jan. 2, 1900, and two weeks later the canal was placed in full operation and the flow of the Chicago river was reversed.

The ship canal, one of the finest in the world, extends from the south branch of the Chicago river at Damen avenue, six miles from Lake Michigan, to the Des Plaines river below Lockport, some thirty miles. The depth is 24 feet with a minimum bottom width of 162 feet and a fall of about 5 feet. Between the years 1903 and 1907 the main channel was extended a distance of four miles from Lockport to Joliet, and a power house was built below Lockport at a cost of $4,500,000. It was completed in 1907.

Channel Reverses Flow.

The Calumet-Sag channel was constructed between 1912 and 1922 to reverse the flow of the sewage which went into Lake Michigan in the Calumet region. It connects the Little Calumet river, near Blue Island, with the sanitary and ship canal at the sag, some twenty-two miles southwest of Chicago. The channel has a depth of 20 feet, a width of 60 feet in the rock section and a width of 116 feet at the water surface in the earth sections. Flow in this channel is regulated by controlling works east of Blue Island. The project cost $15,000,000. The length of the Sag canal is 16 miles.

Meanwhile agitation had persisted for the Illinois waterway. Conventions were held in Peoria and other river towns over a period of years. Several surveys were made, but no federal aid was forthcoming. The project was brought to a head in 1907 when the sanitary district's representatives appeared at Springfield with bills to extend its channel through Lake Joliet. There was a long controversy over power rights. In 1908 the voters of Illinois adopted a $20,000,000 bond issue amendment to the constitution for the building of the waterway from Lockport to Utica. Work was begun during the Lowden regime. On Nov. 6, 1920, the first earth was turned at Bell's island, west of Marseilles, and 25 years after the passage of the $20,000,000 bond amendment the Illinois waterway is now open for navigation.

The state ran out of funds two or three years ago on account of the bridges it had to build across the channel, and the federal government took over the job of finishing up the construction at a cost of $7,500,000. Illinois has spent $20,000,000 of its own money and the Chicago sanitary district $75,000,000, a total of $95,000,000, and, unique among such projects, the work was turned over to the national government without asking a dime of compensation.

THE RULES:

Eligibility: Every man, woman, boy and girl is eligible regardless of place of residence—excepting employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing.

What to do: Solve the series of Crossword Puzzles appearing in the Chicago Daily Tribune. A new puzzle will appear each day, excepting Sundays, until 48 have appeared. The official seal and name of one of the 48 States of the United States will appear in each puzzle. Solve the puzzles and write the name of the State below each puzzle.

Dramatizations: Each evening, excepting Saturdays, W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune Station, will broadcast a dramatization of the State whose seal appears in the puzzle the following morning in the Tribune. Tune in. These dramatizations will furnish clues to help you.

Where to Send Entries: Hold all puzzles until you have the complete set of 48. Then send them to "State Seals," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1718, Chicago, Illinois. All entries must be in by midnight 15 days after Puzzle No. 48 has been printed. Each entry must be sent by First Class Mail, Postage Prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Post Office Department.

The Awards: The Chicago Tribune will pay 179 cash prizes totaling $2,500.00 to the persons who send in the nearest correctly solved and neatest complete sets of puzzles in accordance with these rules. You do not necessarily have to solve each of the 48 puzzles correctly to win. The prizes will be paid to the persons whose entries rank highest. Elaborate entries are not necessary and will receive no greater consideration than simple ones. Therefore make your entry simple and neat. (See Prize List at right.)

Judging: All entries will be judged by a Committee appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Entrants agree to accept their decision as final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.

Free: It is not necessary to buy the Chicago Tribune to compete. You may copy or trace the puzzles and send them in. The Chicago Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.

THE PRIZES:

1st Prize		$500.00
2nd Prize		250.00

COLLEGES FIGHT COMPETITION OF STATE SCHOOLS

Educator Urges Increase in Tuition Fees.

"Privately endowed colleges and universities in Illinois face extinction in competition with state supported institutions," Prof. S. C. Ratcliffe of Illinois Wesleyan university declared here yesterday.

He spoke before administrative officers from thirty Illinois schools at the De Paul Little theater, 64 East Lake street. The educators met under auspices of the Federation of Illinois colleges, with De Paul university as host.

Schools Ask $12,842,651.

Prof. Ratcliffe said that the policy of free, or nearly free, college training offered by Illinois in the state university and in the various Teachers' colleges, tends to pauperize young men and women. He asserted that the general assembly now in session is being asked by the state institutions for appropriations of $12,842,651. Were tuition of $120 per year charged at Teachers' colleges and $200 per year at the university, the appropriations could be reduced by $4,000,000, Prof. Ratcliffe estimates.

"Appropriations by the state to its university and Teachers' colleges have increased 7,118 per cent in forty years," continued the Wesleyan professor. "In that time the state population has increased less than 100 per cent."

Cost Per Pupil $312 Year.

The fundamental causes for the increase, declared Prof. Ratcliffe, are in the nominal tuition of $70 to $100 a year in the state university, and the montuition at the teachers' colleges. The educating of these students, he said, costs the taxpayers of Illinois $312 each per year.

Appropriations for the state institutions will increase, he added, and privately endowed colleges and universities in Illinois are doomed to extinction under the state's present policy.

DEVICE CONTROLS SOUND VOLUME IN AIR LINE'S RADIO

A shout or a whisper into the transmitting microphone in the United Air Lines' radiophone station at Chicago airport are equally audible to the pilots flying mail and passengers along the transcontinental route. This is accomplished by a device that has been developed by radio engineers of the air line, it was announced yesterday.

The new device is a volume control system that takes the place of the elaborate glass inclosed "mixing rooms" in broadcasting stations, where trained operators constantly regulate the volume of words and music by the manipulation of a set of dials. Such mixing is impractical for the rapid and terse conversations between planes and ground stations of the air line.

New Type of Rail Inspection Car on Display

The miniature, self-propelled railway inspection car of the Milwaukee road on display yesterday at the Union station. The car, designed by Edward Buker of Chicago, is 18 feet long and weighs 9,000 pounds. It is for use in making inspection trips over the railway division and will eliminate the use of extra locomotives. It is propelled by a gasoline motor. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

GRAND JURORS TELL LOS ANGELES COUNTY IS NEAR BANKRUPTCY

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Officials were warned today that the county will face insolvency within a year or two unless waste of public funds is stopped. The outgoing Los Angeles county grand jury informed officials that any additional increase in tax rates will amount to "virtual property confiscation." Their report cites that delinquent taxes in 1929 amounted to $2,708,729.93; in 1930, $5,644,093.18; in 1931, $7,132,432.77, and in 1932, $12,067,786.25. This sum will be greatly increased at the end of the present fiscal year, it was stated.

"It is imperative if the present form of government is to continue for the next generation, that the administrators of our county affairs courageously face these financial problems."

Canada Planning "Crisis Cabinet" and Inflation

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 27.—A national coalition government and currency inflation are being mooted in Canada as budget day and official announcement of an estimated $100,000,000 Dominion deficit draws nigh. The coalition administration would be composed of Conservatives, at present in power, and an equal number of Liberals, with the present premier, R. B. Bennett, carrying on as first minister. The inflation move would likely be a very moderate one.

JARECKI CALLS J. W. STEVENS IN TAX INQUIRY

County Judge Jarecki yesterday issued a subpoena ordering James W. Stevens, former chairman of the board of the Illinois Life Insurance company, now under indictment on an embezzlement charge, to appear in his courtroom to explain why rents which he has accumulated as receiver of the Arcade building, 32 South Clark street, have not been used to pay $17,000 in delinquent 1930 real estate taxes. Judge Jarecki ordered County Tax Attorney Hayden N. Bell to prepare a petition for the appointment of a tax receiver for the county for that property.

Attorney R. M. Adams, representing the owners of the land upon which the building is situated, asked Judge Jarecki to set aside the blanket order overruling an objection which protected the property from tax sale. The lawyer stated that under the terms of a lease Stevens should pay the taxes. Attorney Adams said Stevens had received the rental income for the years 1930, 1931, and 1932, and made no provision for taxes for those years.

MOTORIST WINS $5 CASE AT $250 COST TO COURTS

Trial Takes Entire Day of Judge and Jury.

It was the principle involved and not the money, Errett O. Graham explained yesterday to a jury in the Criminal court, that caused him to appeal a $5 fine for speeding in Kenilworth.

Selection of the jury, taking of testimony and brief consideration by the jurymen consumed an entire day in the courtroom of Judge Desort, and the cost to the state is estimated at upwards of $250. However, so far as Mr. Graham is concerned, the day was a success. He was found not guilty on the charge.

Dispute Speed of Car.

Mr. Graham, an attorney, lives at 2626 Stewart avenue, Evanston. Formerly he lived in Highland Park. On Aug. 1, 1931, he was driving with his wife to Chicago in a small coupe when Policeman Anthony Montanaro of Kenilworth arrested him in Sheridan road.

"You were going 48 miles an hour," said the policeman.

"That is humorous," retorted the attorney. "You are charging my car with going faster than it can go. I was going 32 miles an hour."

"There is nothing funny about it," said Montanaro. "You'll have to go before Justice of the Peace E. A. Pettibone on a charge of speeding."

The case was tried in the magistrate's court. The defendant demanded and was given a jury trial. Six men found him guilty and the sentence was, in addition to the $5 fine, $11.60 in costs.

Yesterday the attorney declared before Judge Desort that of the six who tried him in Kenilworth, five were cab drivers "who have to stay on good terms with policemen."

Court Depends on Fines.

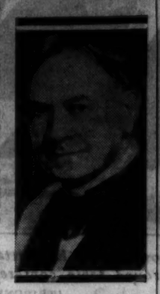
"Also," he testified, "the justice of the peace has to fine people to get any revenue for himself. I was unfairly treated because a woman in a big green car whizzed by at a high rate of speed and was waiting at a stoplight when I was arrested. If anybody should have been arrested, it was she."

When the selection of the jury was started yesterday the state tried to disqualify all prospective jurymen who had ever been given tickets for traffic law violations. This was abandoned when it was found there were enough veniremen able to qualify.

Then, with the testimony all in, it required the jurymen less than a couple of minutes to decide that Mr. Graham should be acquitted. The cost of the proceeding for jurymen alone was $60.

BISHOP FROM ALASKA SAYS DEPRESSION IS HARDLY FELT THERE

No one in Alaska is on public or private charity relief rolls, and the depression is scarcely felt there, the Rt. Rev. Peter Trimble Rowe, Episcopal bishop for the diocese of Alaska, said yesterday. Bishop Rowe, who has been in Alaska 37 years, is known as the Flying Bishop of the Yukon. He is stopping in the Stevens hotel. He will depart tomorrow for Washington, where he will attend the presidential inauguration and confer with officials of the incoming administration on certain regulations governing fishing in Alaska.



BISHOP ROWE.

"In our country it is a person's own fault if he goes hungry," Bishop Rowe said. "There are fish to be caught, there is game to be killed. You can raise good cabbage, turnips, potatoes, cauliflower, and other vegetables, and gather wild cranberries and blueberries even north of the Arctic circle, though not far north of it. In the southern half of Alaska you can grow almost anything. The natives pay no rent and no taxes. They enjoy life too."

FRENCH SAILORS TEST RUBBER LIFE SUIT IN A STORM

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 26.—Experiments with a rubber life suit offered the French navy by Inventor Richard Ponvert were conducted today off Lorient from a French destroyer.

The life suit, which consists of a rubberized costume equipped with large water wings and is quickly blown up with a tube leading to the mouth, had proved effective in keeping the wearer afloat in a vertical position in swimming tanks.

Several sailors, each wearing a suit, went overboard today in the outer harbor during a storm. All were safely rescued. An official report will be sent to the navy ministry by officers superintending the tests.

TEETH BY MAIL METHODS TOLD IN DENTISTS' TRIAL

Witness Says Door Hinges Used in Manufacture.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The Chicago Dentists, 1445 Jackson boulevard, used door hinges in apparatus for manufacturing teeth, and kept a box of ready-made plates on hand for mail order customers, according to testimony yesterday by Frank Tomalson, 6124 South Kedvale avenue, a former technician in the concern's laboratories.

Tomalson was a state's witness in the hearing being conducted before the dental committee of the state department of registration and education. The committee is hearing charges of dishonorable and nonprofessional conduct against ten dentists alleged to have been associated with the mail order house.

Tells Use of Hinges.

"Sometimes the laboratory ran out of articulators or presses used to make the teeth meet when they are set in the rubber, so iron door hinges were used instead," Tomalson testified. "Sometimes the teeth would fall out on the floor and we'd pick them up and stick 'em back again. But lots of times the plates were four or five teeth short.

"Lots of the plates sent out by mail came back because they didn't fit. These were kept in a box to be used when customers would turn up that the teeth might fit."

"How long did this go on?" asked Philip Ringer, assistant attorney general, who was conducting the questioning.

Pick Out Faces They Want.

The mail orders were put out at the rate of about 200 a day, Tomalson testified. The wax impressions returned by mail customers were very poor, so workers were ordered to carve them out to make the impressions more visible, he said. Pictures of various types of faces were sent to a customer with the wax with instructions to pick out a face that most closely resembled his, Tomalson said.

Tomalson said he had had ten years' experience as a technician, but had worked at the Chicago Dentists' laboratories only seven months.

ESCAPED CONVICT CAUGHT.

Frank Koehler, 41 years old, a convict, who escaped from Joliet penitentiary Jan. 26 by overpowering a guard, was returned to the prison yesterday. He was arrested by police on information furnished by a woman last Tuesday.

SUGGESTS PLAN FOR TARIFF AID TO AGRICULTURE

B. W. Snow Outlines His Trade Exchange Idea.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

After declaring that more than six hundred million dollars of tax money had been wasted in farm relief efforts that failed to relieve, and that the farmers had lost probably a billion more in taking unwise advice on holding their crops, Bernard W. Snow, statistician of the Board of Trade and chairman of the Business Men's federation, proposed a new plan yesterday for making the tariff effective for agriculture, pending a complete overhauling of government policy that will put the farmer on an equality with industry.

This plan is called the trade exchange plan and bears some features of the old export debenture proposal. It was suggested at the round table conference at the Union League club in the course of a debate with Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association, in which Mr. Snow assailed and Mr. Smith defended various agricultural activities of the last decade.

Both agreed that the present depression is largely the outgrowth of the lack of buying power on the part of the farmer population. Mr. Smith promised to study the Snow plan, and the club appointed a committee to take up this and other related subjects.

Offers Temporary Program.

"Pending a survey and such permanent action as will give agriculture the equality in tariff protection which it has the right to demand," said Mr. Snow, "and in order to relieve the pressure upon agriculture during the time which must elapse while the permanent program is being worked out, a temporary program can be quickly accomplished without administrative cost. It does not contemplate any effort to restrict or control agricultural production. It leaves the American farmer master of his own destiny.

"The collector of customs in all United States ports of entry, when issuing receipts for the full customs duty required to be paid upon goods under existing tariff laws, will also issue to the person, firm or corporation making the payment an import certificate which shall be the property of the interest paying the duty, legally transferrable and subject to sale as a negotiable instrument.

"This certificate will state the country from which the goods are shipped, character and value as determined by the collector, amount of duty paid, and shall carry a determined face valuation equal to 60 per cent of the duty paid in the transaction.

A Second Certificate.

"A second certificate to be known as the Debt Adjustment certificate shall carry information as to the character and value of the goods, the country from which the shipment came and the duties paid, but the determined face value shall represent 20 per cent of the duty paid.

"This certificate will be filed with the secretary of the treasury and its face value credited to the country from which the shipment came, if and when the import certificate arising out of the same transaction is presented to the treasury for collection.

"Any interest holding legal title to an import certificate would be entitled to collect from the treasury of the United States the face value of such certificate when and if it is presented attached to necessary clearance papers attesting the export of wheat, corn, cotton, tobacco or lard, together with necessary invoice establishing that the face value of the certificate does not exceed a sum equal to what would be one-half of the tariff duty upon such products were they being imported at the then current rate of duty."

How It Would Work.

After explaining various other devices of the exchange, Mr. Snow told how it would work and what it would accomplish, as follows:

"The importer receives an import certificate with a face value equal to 60 per cent of the duty he paid in cash upon his importation of goods, but the certificate has no value to any one unless and until it is attached to papers showing the export clearance of a certain amount of agricultural products.

"The importer of the foreign goods sells his import certificate to an exporter who wants to export farm products. Every transaction, therefore, becomes a round trip transaction, necessitating exports as well as imports before it is completed. The price which the exporter will pay for the import certificate will be governed by the margin of profit upon which the exporter is willing to work [possibly one cent a bushel], but it will be very small because the margin of profit under which export business is done is very small.

"No Cost to Government."

"The further outstanding feature of the plan in addition to forcing a reciprocal trade sufficient to pay for farm products exported and increasing the domestic price by the tariff benefit, is the fact that it is simple, easily worked and does not cost a single dollar of administrative expense to the federal government. Every other suggested plan involves an army of additional government employés and an enormous annual expense.

"Further, this trade exchange plan does not contemplate any effort to limit production, but leaves the farmer in full control of his own business and uses the tariff to open up new markets for whatever surplus he produces above domestic needs. It is the only suggestion that makes the tariff genuinely effective upon products of which we produce a surplus."

Both Mr. Snow and Mr. Smith agreed that the present farm allotment bill is dead.

Defends Farm Association.

Mr. Smith refused on behalf of his Illinois associates to take the blame for the debacle of the farm board. He showed that the Illinois association has benefited its members in many ways, in lower costs for the materials they use.

The theme of Mr. Snow's address was that the grain trade leaders and the business men who have opposed the methods of farm relief that have been tried have now been proved right. Then he brought forth his own plan and tossed it to the economists and critics.

ROUTS BANDITS WITH BULLETS.

William Novotny, proprietor of a delicatessen at 1958 South Homan avenue, routed three bandits shy firing five shots at them early yesterday after they had ordered sandwiches and then demanded his cash.

JUROR REPLACED IN 'GHOST TRIAL'; EVIDENCE BEGINS

Testimony in the "ghost trial" of Mrs. Ella Hopkins and Dr. Lester I. Offner, charged with conspiracy to bomb the filling station of William Lambert at 5765 Higgins road, was started yesterday after Judge Thomas J. Lynch had taken the unusual action of excusing a juror after the jury had been sworn and opening statements made.

The juror was Edward A. Fletcher, 517 Oakdale avenue. He explained to Judge Lynch that he knew his request was unusual, but said that he had been offered a job as a salesman Saturday if he could be excused and go to work immediately. When he added that he had been out of work for nearly a year and was expecting a baby soon in his home, prosecutors and defense counsel agreed to his dismissal. Another juror was selected within an hour.

Lambert, the first witness, told how he bought a 100 year old farmhouse at 5758 Higgins road, across the street from his filling station, from Mrs. Hopkins in 1930. Later she pleaded with him to sell the property back to her, on the ground that her dead husband's ghost had appeared to her in a dream and told her that it was uncomfortable because the house had been sold. Lambert refused and his filling station was bombed on Feb. 7, 1932.

Hold Wife Captive, Then Seize, Rob Theater Owner

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Two men held Mrs. Marshall S. Leve, wife of a theater manager, prisoner in her home for two hours early this morning. They gagged her, bound her with adhesive tape, which they pulled from time to time to cause pain, and they prodded her with the barrels of their revolvers. When her husband came from the theater the bandits forced him to return there with them, open the safe, and hand over $1,800 cash. They tied him up and stole his sedan.

REVEALS WOMAN VISITED BERN ON NIGHT OF TRAGEDY

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 27.—(AP)—A woman's wet, yellow bathing suit, a feminine scream, a mysterious tête-à-tête on the edge of a private swimming pool, and the disappearance of a piece of cake linked into a strange chain of circumstances that kept the question of who killed Paul Bern, film executive, a live issue today.

These unexplained events, all occurring within 24 hours of the pistol shot last Sept. 5 that killed the bridegroom of Jean Harlow, platinum blonde screen player, were told today by one of the servants at the Bern residence.

Keeps Mystery Live Issue.

The scene, said Mrs. Winfred Carmichael, was the Paul Bern honeymoon home in Beverly Hills, in Benedict cañon.

W. W. Widenham, foreman of the county grand jury, kept the death story a live mystery when he refused today to join in a scheduled statement from District Attorney Buron Fitts that the second investigation into the case corroborated the coroner's jury verdict of suicide.

Mrs. Carmichael, servant in the house, said she had not been asked about these strange incidents at the time of the coroner's inquest. She said a strange woman visited Bern about sundown on the day which proved to be his last. This woman she said, avoided the servants.

Tête-à-tête Near Pool.

A woman's scream sounded in the house that night, she said, and she discovered a wet bathing suit, yellow and belonging to some unknown woman, near the pool of the residence, and also two glasses indicating a tête-à-tête at the edge of the pool.

The cake mystery involved a piece of devil's food cake she had prepared and left in Jean Harlow's dressing room. Although Miss Harlow had not returned that night, the cake was missing in the morning, and Bern, she said, never ate cake.

COLLECTOR KILLS HIMSELF.

PLEDGE G. O. P. TO LOOK TO HOOVER FOR LEADERSHIP

Committee Plans Fight for Congress in 1934.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Arrangements for pushing forward a militant minority party campaign during the next two years in the hope of a congressional victory in 1934 were effected by party leaders as a called meeting today of the executive committee of the Republican national committee.

Meeting for the first time since the disastrous defeat suffered by the party in the November elections, the executive committee acclaimed President Hoover, advised the chief executive that the party would continue to look to him for leadership in these trying and difficult days and voted to pep up the campaign for fighting funds. The war chest at present is $213,000 short.

No Move to Break Away.

As anticipated by the leaders who had arranged for the meeting to be held prior to President Hoover's retirement, the committee made no move to break away either from the leadership of the President or the chairmanship of Mr. Sanders. There were indications in Republican circles outside the committee, however, that opponents of the Hoover-Sanders faction soon will become active.

In a message of advice read to the committee members, Presiednt Hoover outlined the fundamental policies which he asserted Republicans as well as Democrats should follow. These included a demand for economy in government and protection for government obligations. He urged the necessity of maintaining sound currencies and sound national credit.

The President's letter, sent in response to Chairman Sanders' request for some word on the policies to be pursued by the party, dealt also with questions of party organization. He emphasized the need of strong party organizations to carry ideals into action. Then came his word of advice.

Adherence to Constitution.

"There are," he said, "certain fundamentals and safeguards of our government which are not the property of any political party. They are the common necessity to the entire people. They embrace rigid adherence to the constitution; enforcement of the laws without respect to persons; assurance of the credit of the government through restraint of spending and provision of adequate revenue; preservation of the honor, and integrity of the government in respect to its obligations, its securities and its sound currency; insistence upon the responsibilities of local government; advancement of world peace; adequate preparedness for defense; the cure of abuses which have crept into our economic and political systems; development of security to homes and living; persistence in the initiative, equal opportunity and responsibilities of individuals and institutions; and finally, every encouragement to the development of our intellectual, moral and spiritual life.

"In great emergencies, humanity in government requires the utilization of the reserve strength of all branches of the government, whether local or national, to protect our institutions and our people from forces beyond their control. This must and can be accomplished without violation of these fundamentals and safeguards.

Inheritance of All Parties.

"Upon these foundations lie the freedom, the welfare and the future of every citizen in the country. By them we will march forward. They are the inheritance of all parties. This is a program which can command the respect and support of all who would maintain the United States in the high position amongst nations it now holds, and one from which we should not deviate in fidelity."

In reply, the committee said in part:

"The supporters of our great party will continue to look to you for leadership in these difficult and dangerous days and we of the party organization are relying upon your counsel and coöperation in solving the many problems before us."

Montreal Chain Stores Force Cut in Milk Price

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 27.—Chain store competition in the city's milk trade forced prices of the big distributors down another cent today. It was the second cut within a month and occurred at a time when prices usually go up. Chain stores are selling milk at 7 cents a quart. The big dealers today went down to 9 cents delivered at the door.

AUSTRALIA PRESENTS CAPTURED CRUISER'S NAMEPLATE TO REICH

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Feb. 28.—The nameplate of the German cruiser Emden, which was captured by the Australians in November, 1914, was presented today by Stanley M. Bruce, Australian high commissioner in London, to President von Hindenburg as a gift from the Australian commonwealth to the German republic. In a brief address, Mr. Bruce praised the achievements of the Emden and its commander, Capt. von Mueller.

"Alone and unsupported," he said, "in the vast spaces of the Pacific and surrounded by overwhelming hostile forces, the Edmen played a part that must have stirred the hearts of the German people and which wrung a tribute of respect even from those who opposed her."

"You have eloquently set forth the significance of your visit, that through this unique honor shown by a chivalrous opponent, the friendly relations between our two countries should be made manifest in such a beautiful way," Von Hindenburg said. "It is our wish to have this friendship become ever closer."

WIVES ATTEND HOOVER'S EARLY PLAY CABINET

Waffles, Sausages Follow —Dog Runs Away.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—President Hoover's medicine ball cabinet went coy and co-educational this morning.

It was all a big surprise to Mr. Hoover and those friends of his whom, through these four years, he has persuaded to get up at some unearthly hour and get over to the White House backyard in time to start a game of medicine ball before seven o'clock.

They had trooped out to the court; the President in a pair of old trousers and a baggy sweater; handsome Pat Hurley, secretary of war, reaching alertly for the ball; tall, lanky Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, whose reach extends most men's grasp; dapper Larry Richey, the President's personal secretary. They were all there when a feminine voice trilled "Yoo-hoo!"

Players' Wives Appear.

The amateur athletes looked around. There was Mrs. Hoover. Behind her stood eleven other women, wives of the players. The men went back to the game, and did their best, with many a flourish. But the women lingered only a minute. They disappeared into the basement of the White House; reappeared with a medicine ball of their own.

With a lot of girlish laughter, the wives started their game. Mrs. Hoover who is a Girl Scout, seemed to have a grand time. But the star of the game was Mrs. Roy D. Chapin, wife of the secretary of commerce. She used to play basketball at Smith college.

Pretty soon, however, everybody agreed to call it a day. They went into the breakfast room to eat waffles and sausage.

Weigie Goes A. W. O. L.

Weigie, the Norwegian elk-hound, who hovers around the handball game every morning, then goes in to eat breakfast with the players, had, as the saying goes, "taken it on the lam" early in the morning. His departure was really due to the Democrats.

Carpenters, constructing the reviewing stand in front of the White House, had removed a segment of the big iron fence, in order to build a ramp up which Mr. Roosevelt may walk Saturday. About dawn this morning, Weigie, as is his custom, was accompanying Sergt. Arthur M. Gibbon on his rounds of half hourly inspection. Weigie spied the hole in the fence and darted through. He found himself under the grandstands, but was able to wiggle along much more rapidly than the police sergeant.

The sergeant hurried back to his office, grabbed a police flivver and started after the dog, who by that time, was doing a Nurmi across Lafayette park. No news of the cavorting canine had reached the White House by breakfast time, and there was much lamentation over his loss.

Later in the day, however, Weigie was strolling about the town and chose to pass the White House garage. Francis Robinson, manager of the garage, recognized the dog, called him by name. Weigie came up. Mr. Robinson collared him; took him to the White House. He'll be leaving there Saturday.

JAP TELLS PLANS FOR BIG EXHIBIT AT CHICAGO FAIR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 27.—"Japan will, I believe, have one of the largests exhibits at the world exposition in Chicago this summer," S. Sasaki, director of the Japanese Exhibitors' association and official of the Japanese department of trade and commerce, said today when he passed through on the way to Chicago.

Sasaki will have charge of the Japanese section at the fair. He expects to remain in Chicago until late next summer.

For the erection of buildings to house the Japanese exhibits, a large shipment of dressed Japanese lumber has been shipped to Seattle. The shipment comprised about twenty-five carloads. Plans have already been prepared for the Japanese section, Sasaki said, and it will be one of the most unique at the exposition. All buildings will be done in Japanese style architecture.

PRISON BREAK FAILS; CONVICT KILLS HIMSELF

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 27.—(AP)—Armed with two hand made pistols, 15 rounds of hand made ammunition, and a knife, Lloyd Sampsell and Martin Colson, long term prisoners, subdued guards, making a spectacular but futile attempt to force their way out of Folsom prison today.

Colson killed himself in Warden Court Smith's office; Sampsell surrendered in the prison yard. Both men previously had attempted to escape.

The guns were cleverly made from pieces of steel drills used in the prison quarry, springs, bolts and other bits of metal were assembled to discharge hand made bullets corresponding to those of .45 calibre.

Sampsell and Colson had forced a guard to admit them to the Administration building. Sampsell had an operator call the warden to his office and Colson went to that room. There was a delay. Sampsell telephoned the warden and about that time, a muffled shot was heard. Sampsell told the warden of that and went to the yard, where he disarmed, surrendered and was rushed into solitary confinement.

Colson was a "lifer." Sampsell was convicted in connection with a Berkeley bank robbery in 1929.

SPEAKING OF MORATORIA.

Officials of the federal and state governments are working overtime these days trying to devise plans of relieving those who owe money. Thus, banks, debtors to their depositors, are being granted moratoria and unusual powers to freeze certain of their assets for purposes of reorganization. The Reconstruction Finance corporation is operating to the same end in helping debtor railroads and banks. Senator Cousens' law gives the controller of the currency power to authorize national banks to participate in state bank moratoria. Plans are afoot to refinance the farmers' mortgages on easier terms. The next secretary of state, Senator Hull, has introduced a bill to put the Reconstruction Finance corporation at the service of mortgagors. The list of these measures, proposed and approved, could be extended for a column without exhausting the material.

It is extraordinary that, with all this activity on behalf of debtors, the men who compose the national and state legislatures have done nothing or next to nothing to assist what is probably the largest single class of debtors in this country, the taxpayers. This is the more extraordinary in view of the fact that the legislators had little or no control over the debts contracted by banks, farmers, railroads and the rest, but the legislators had and have everything to do with the debts of the taxpayers. It is within the power of the legislators to reduce the tax debt by reducing expenditures, and it is also within the power of the legislators, in the presence of the existing emergency, to modify the terms of tax payment to permit the citizen to pay his taxes without an undue strain on his and the nation's finances. At a time when everything is being done for those whose private debts were contracted deliberately something might well be done toward paring down or delaying payment of tribute for the luxuries and corruptions of government.

ANOTHER STEP IN AIR TRANSPORT ORGANIZATION.

Another step in the development of Chicago as the hub of a continental system of air transport is taken in the removal of the home offices of American Airways, Inc., to this city.

Chicago, it seems clear to our perhaps partial judgment, is as inevitably the center of American air transportation as of railways. A glance at the field covered by American Airways service will show why Chicago has been chosen for its central offices. With regular schedules from Chicago to Detroit, Cleveland, New York, and Boston, eastward; to Cincinnati, Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas, southward; and westward to the Pacific coast, Chicago is obviously the location for central supervision and control. Furthermore, Chicago, itself the second city of the country, and the metropolitan district within a fifty mile radius of the loop, is a generating center of air traffic of the greatest possibilities.

With headquarters of two of the largest air lines in the country, an official points out, Chicago may fairly claim to be the center of air transport in the United States. Airways, Inc., is a welcome addition to the transportation world of Chicago and we trust its management and staff will find every facility for efficient and successful operation in its new and, we are confident, its permanent home. We are glad to have them and we believe they will be glad to have come. The future of air transport is tremendous and Chicago is the natural center of its continental development.

POLICE AND HOODLUMS.

Several men known to the police as hoodlums and arrested for possession of firearms have just been discharged in the Municipal court. Two revolvers were found in the car from which the hoodlums were taken, but the court held that under a decision of the Illinois Supreme court the state must prove ownership of the weapons. As his was not done in this case, the hoodlums were discharged.

There is no reasonable doubt that the firearms belonged to the men arrested. The suggestion that in such cases arms may be planted by the police and that ownership must therefore be proved ought not to be taken seriously without some evidence to support it. The rule resolves doubts in favor of the hoodlum, the habitual ne'er-do-well, and against not only the good faith of sworn officers of the law but the safety of the public. It is a protection in practical result of the violent criminal and not of the law abiding citizen. Col. Goddard's new bill on firearms attempts to correct this weakness of the law, but it will fail, we fear, unless courts of review take judicial cognizance of actual conditions of the peace and the repeated failures in prosecution of notorious hoodlums through requirement of elaborate proof.

We respect the guaranties of civil rights and would not have them impaired even at the expense of criminals. But they should not be applied in vacuo. They were established for the protection of the individual in his lawful occasions and it is proper for courts to take judicial cognisance of notorious conditions endangering the community. In applying the law to concrete cases, and this is the only way in which courts can lawfully function, general rules should be interpreted so as to give law its intended effect rather than so as to defeat it. Unless this is done it will be almost impossible to frame any procedure under which the sworn officers of the law can prevent hoodlums from going armed. Day after day faithful officers are killed by men known by their associations and habits to be of criminal character, and known as a class to be bearers of deadly weapons. This situation is as notorious as it is intolerable, and the courts should interpret laws in the light of the evils with which they are intended to deal rather than construe them so as to defeat their legitimate purpose.

THE LINCOLN PARK BONDS.

The voters of Lincoln park have a hard nut to crack in the referendum today on the refunding bond issue. It is hardly likely that tax revenues this year and next will be sufficient to meet maturing bonds and provide funds to pay current operating expenses as well. If the maturing bonds are paid off out of current revenue the payment will be made at the expense of the maintenance of the parks. If the commissioners decide to maintain the parks and not meet the bonded debt, then the credit of Lincoln park will be all but destroyed. A municipality which has defaulted is automatically blacklisted by the principal banks and insurance companies operating under state laws, and its securities can no longer be pledged as security for postal savings.

The Lincoln park taxpayers want to enjoy the park and, of course, cannot do so if the grass is uncut, loose papers are not picked up and the recreational facilities are closed. An unsightly park in the World's Fair year would be humiliating. On the other hand, taxpayers have every reason to discourage park commissioners from acquiring the habit of refunding the public debt as it matures. We do not want and cannot afford to have a perpetual debt. A debt is something to be paid, not something to be refinanced. If our old debts are not to be discharged, then we shall be forever paying interest on the old ones, and, in the case of Lincoln park, we shall thereby prevent ourselves from building park facilities to meet the needs of the present and future. All our money will go to meet the debts of the past.

Fortunately, there is no evidence that the park commissioners regard the refunding issue as a precedent for future fiscal policy. They want authority to issue refunding bonds in the existing emergency and that is all. Under the circumstances the authority should be granted.

A TARIFF ON COFFEE.

The proposal of Representative Rainey for a tariff on coffee as a revenue raiser has much to be said in its favor. No tax, it need scarcely be said, is a good tax; but in these days a tax which will produce an appreciable revenue without causing any serious dislocation of business and without very greatly injuring any one in this country ought to be favorably considered.

It is doubtful if the coffee tariff would reduce consumption by an appreciable amount because the coffee habit is a strong one. People who can afford coffee today can afford it even with the slight addition in cost which the tariff might bring about. As a matter of fact, coffee is heavily taxed as an export in Brazil and other producing countries and if an American tariff would lead to reduced consumption in this country there is reason to believe that the export duties in the countries of origin would be correspondingly cut. There is surely no good reason why the whole tax on coffee should go to Brazil, where the coffee is grown, and none to the United States, where it is consumed.

The department of commerce reports that we imported last year more than a billion and a half pounds of coffee with a value of more than $136,000,000. A small tax per pound would yield a substantial revenue and it might well be that the tax would come not from the consumers here but from the Brazilian government.

A POLITICAL SCHOOL TEACHER IS A PUBLIC ENEMY.

[Detroit News.]

It is a matter of common knowledge to a number of persons that a group of teachers in the Detroit public schools have entered politics and are attempting to direct the nomination of two certain candidates for the board of education at the coming primary.

Some among these politically active employés of the city's educational system are highly placed and there can be no question that they know perfectly well the mischievous and unethical character of their enterprise. Moreover, the fact that this pernicious activity, while known to members of the board of education and high executives, goes unpunished is sufficient proof that politics has, to a certain extent, thus entered into the teaching ranks of the school system; otherwise these political busybodies would be dealt with in the short order they merit.

There was a time in the history of Detroit when the public school system was putrid with politics. The story of the cleansing is one of the dramas of the community's narratives. But for many years past the school system was free of all this repulsive intrigue and the system prospered and became recognized as among the very finest in this country.

The efforts to build up a political clique within the school system and, through it, utilize the Parent-Teacher associations and parents generally for the purpose of dominating the board of education by the obvious method of placing selected stalking horses on that body, need to be carefully watched by the public. The parents of children in Detroit's schools need to be warned that any effort to concentrate their interest on any two specific candidates to the exclusion of other candidates, including the present school inspectors, is, on the face of it, a conspiracy sufficiently sinister to justify their suspicion.

There is no single thing so important to the fathers and mothers of Detroit as the purity of the school system. Its efficiency can rest only on the basis of a loyal, competent teaching staff which devotes itself exclusively to the high purpose for which it was formed. Teachers, no matter how high they stand, who either intrigue for position and preferment through political manipulation, or, with larger and more ominous purpose, aim at controlling the very government of education in this community, are public enemies. If those in authority find it difficult to deal with such a situation the parents, for their own good, should see to it that the conspiracy is sterile.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

"LIE ON THE FLOOR and keep your mouths shut!" hissed the bandit through his teeth to the girl clerks.— From a story published yesterday in the newspapers. But laway sakes, the same story is published every day. "Lie on the floor" is not always hissed by the bandits through their teeth because it is not easy and only a very highly educated and accomplished bandit can do it. But the point is that bandits make us lie on the floor so frequently that it would be a good idea for all of us to practice the art. Flopping to the floor at the word of command is no easy trick, but instruction and practice ought to enable us to do it without breaking a head or twisting our necks. It might be a good idea to have all floors in the future well padded, but before that happy day arrives it might be well to practice the art, because if one doesn't flop with great celerity when the bandits either speak or hiss the stern command there is quite likely to be a little shooting.

IT MIGHT BE a good idea for the announcers who give us our setting up exercises in the morning over the radio to put this exercise in along with the other maneuvers. "Lie on the floor," hisses the radio if the radio can be taught to hiss, and we immediately flop down. At first it will be a little difficult and the family living in the flat underneath may complain, but in time we ought to do it very quickly and gracefully. It is one of the things which have come into modern life whether we will or no and the only thing to do is to accept it. All ready, assume first position, LIE ON THE FLOOR! Very good, but next time, if you first give a quick glance around before falling to the floor, you will not bounce your head against that lovely jardiniere. And lovely jardinieres cost money.

THE SECOND PART of the bandit's customary demand "and keep your mouth shut" is much harder to obey. Most of us can lie on the floor even though we are slow and ungraceful in doing so. But keeping the mouth shut these days is quite unusual. We are accustomed to talk about everything and all the time—the depression; the inauguration; the beginning of good times as soon as Mr. Roosevelt takes over the job; the British war debt; Herr Hitler and the German crisis; the high price of bootleg hootch; the movies; the radio; the prospect of getting beer back right away; the Cubs and the next pennant; the new taxes; the prospect of borrowing a buck until Saturday, and so many other things we are asking or talking about all the time. Bandits are sometimes sternly rebuked for putting adhesive tape over their victims' mouths, but how else can they stop 'em from talking? It can't be done. The bandits should be satisfied by having their victims lie down on the floor and not ask impossibilities.

"'TOO LITTLE FREEDOM for Modern Kiddies,' says U. of C. Prof."—Headline. And just before going on record that education was a failure we discovered that the professor had said "modern children." It was the headline writer who put in the "kiddies." We wish we could do something about it, but it seems hopeless. There ought to be a law—but what good would that do?

HEAVY CALLS FOR BOOKS and all other kinds of information on technocracy are reported from Salt Lake City. Which shows how things generally start in the east and travel towards the setting sun. Down east, after a tidal wave of technocracy, the originators were given the bum's rush at Columbia and people stopped using the word as quickly as it was taken up. In a week or more after reaching its zenith the thing struck Chicago and everybody ran around in circles saying: "Technocracy, technocracy, technocracy." Now all that's left of the craze is a dog on the north side called "Teck," and some books and pamphlets on the subject on a table outside a second hand book shop under the sign "Five Cents Each." But now the thing's got to Salt Lake City. The next we'll hear of it will be San Francisco. Then the deep silent waters of the Pacific. Oh, the poor fish!

IF ONLY THE people who go to the Bermudas, the Bahamas and Biloxi, California and other palm tree places would stop "basking in the sun," it wouldn't be so hard for us who stay at home to bear. Why in heck can't they sit in the sun or stand in the sun or run around in the sun? Gosh! we're so sick of 'em basking.

WHERE COLDS HIDE.

No one escapes an occasional attack of acute nose cold accompanied by aching and some fever. Some are fortunate enough to escape with one or two a year. They are said to be satisfactorily near-immune. Others have five or more yearly. They are said to be very susceptible. In classifying people we say that those who have three or fewer colds a year belong to the fairly cold-free group. Those who have five or more are classed as the unfortunate susceptibles.

There is no satisfactory answer to the question of why a man belongs in one group rather than the other. One theory that has been offered is that men carry the microbes of their infection somewhere around the upper breathing apparatus and that, periodically, it gets through the lining mucous membrane and into the blood stream, setting up an acute attack. Some of those who hold to this view think the hiding out place of the cold microbes is in the sinuses. Some have suggested that we can pick out the susceptibles by the size and shape of the sinuses. Two of these are in view so far as the overlying contours are concerned.

A man with a very prominent supra-orbital ridge has a large sinus over the eyes. The man with beetling brows has a face of this type, though the term beetling suggests heavy eyebrows as well as prominence in the over-the-eyes region. One sinus opening out from the nose extends into this region and determines the shape of this part of the face.

The person with high cheek bones is apt to have large maxillary sinuses. This sinus opening out of the side of the nose occupies space in the cheek bone region. If it is large it determines the shape of that part of the face.

The other nasal sinuses are deeper in and quite out of view and of no consequence in determining the shape or size of the face, or even of the head.

If the supposition were true that the tendency to frequent colds was due to shape or size of the sinuses we might be able to classify men by looking at them. To say: This man has high cheek bones or heavy supraorbital ridges; therefore he has five or more colds a year.

Dr. C. E. Palmer has found that there is no relation between the number of colds a man has yearly and the size or shape of his sinuses. We must search elsewhere to learn why some are so subject to colds. We do know that some men are prone to have sore throat because of their tonsils. We know that others are free from sore throat because the bacteria in their tonsils protect them. The men of this second group are quite apt to have sore throat after removal of their tonsils. But while this is a partial explanation of susceptibility to sore throat in some, it is not in others. In fact, it far from covers the question of immunity and susceptibility to sore throat.

We have even less to go by in trying to decide why some people are susceptible to nose colds. We know that they are and that's about all we do know.

BABY DOING ALL RIGHT.

Mrs. I. G. writes: My baby weighs 15 pounds 5 ounces and is 5 months old. He is in perfect health and seldom cries. He has white scabs on his hands and face since he was 5 weeks old. Is this dangerous? Will it clear up?

REPLY.

Your baby has a mild case of eczema due to his diet. It is not dangerous. It should get well in time without treatment. He is doing so well, aside from the skin trouble, and that is so mild, that you had better not change his diet. Be slow about enriching his diet as he grows older. His present diet is perhaps a little too rich.

THE BLACK WIDOW.

S. A. S. writes: You recently referred to the black widow spider. I never happened to hear of her. Where and how does she live? What does she look like? Is she large or small?

REPLY.

The black widow is a large, black, fuzzy spider found rather generally throughout America. It lives on insects, principally flies; picks homes where flies abound. Therefore, it is rather fond of yard privies. This predilection increases the human hazard.

FOOD FADS.

Mrs. R. G. P. writes: After having been taught for many years that fruit, especially oranges and grapefruit, should be eaten before breakfast, there is now another teaching that, while fruit should be eaten in the morning, it should follow and not precede the main meal. One thing more: I find that milk, especially sweet milk, and nearly all sweets, such as candy and sirup, do not agree with me and I leave them out of my daily menu. I am distressingly thin, however, and would like to know if there are any enzymes that can enable me to take milk.

REPLY.

1. Makes no difference. Quit listening to that kind of people.
2. If sweet milk disagrees with you eat buttermilk, clabber, sour cream, cottage cheese, or add fruit or tomato juice to the milk. Many people need to neutralize the buffer in sweet milk with some acid to prevent it from causing a feeling of heaviness. You can take insulin and fatten up. Plenty of sleep, regular hours, and relaxation and calm are better than foods. When we fatten hogs we first pen them and take away all sources of excitement. We feed them, after which we immediately try to charm them to sleep.

DEPENDS ON TRUST DEED.

Elgin, Ill., Feb. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am holding a mortgage of $2,000 on property here. It is a part of a $10,000 loan. Same was due Dec. 2, 1932. Interest or principal has not been paid. What action shall I take? I wish to protect myself. I have been told that I can bring action any time within ten years. J. W.

Your rights depend upon the wording of the trust deed. It may require that a certain percentage of the noteholders join in order to foreclose or it may be so worded as to authorize you to act independently.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TITLE TO REAL ESTATE.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In 1918, while I was still a minor, I bought for cash from my father a tract of land located in Florida, but neglected to get a deed for it. In 1926 my father died, leaving no will, and with the property still in his name. I have a number of brothers and sisters, three of whom are still minors. My mother and all my brothers and sisters acknowledge my right to the property. To get a clear title to the property [1] must I wait until all of the children are of age and then get a quitclaim deed from each of them? 2. Can my mother have the property put in her name and then transfer it to me? 3. What would be the cheapest and easiest way for me to get a clear title? A. M.

1. You may be in a position to prove your contract and be able to secure a decree for specific performance now.
2. Not on the bare facts stated.
3. Your choice of courses would depend in part on the value of the property, on the present age of the minors, and on other facts that are not before us.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

COLLECTION AGENCY.

Dolton, Ill., Feb. 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am a small business man and had a number of bad accounts which I gave to a collection agency to collect. They made some collections in full and have kept this money since September. They promised to pay, but did nots and I am unable to get any answer when I write to them. 1. Have they a right to hold my money this length of time? 2. What can be done in order for me to get the money due me? I have no funds to employ legal aid. F. B.

1. Of course they have no right to hold it.
2. If an attorney is involved, report him to the Bar association. If not, employ an attorney to collect from the collection agency. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 28, 1917.

QUEENSTOWN.—[By Floyd P. Gibbons, Tribune correspondent, who was en route to London on board the Laconia when it was sunk by a German submarine off the coast of Ireland on Feb. 25.]—I am writing this within thirty minutes after stepping on the dock here in Queenstown from the British mine sweeper which picked up our open lifeboat after an eventful six hours of drifting and darkness and bailing and pulling on the oars and of straining aching eyes toward that empty, meaningless horizon in search of help.

The Cunard liner Laconia, 18,000 tons' burden, carrying seventy-three passengers—men, women, and children—of whom six were American citizens—manned by a mixed crew of 218, bound from New York to Liverpool, and loaded with foodstuffs, cotton, and war material, was torpedoed without warning by a German submarine on the Irish coast. The vessel sank in about forty minutes. Two American citizens, mother and daughter, listed from Chicago, and former residents there, are among the dead. They were Mrs. Mary E. Hoy and Miss Elizabeth Hoy.

I have talked with a seaman who was in the same lifeboat with the two Chicago women and he has told me that he saw their lifeless bodies washed out of the sinking lifeboat. The American survivors are Mrs. F. E. Harris of Philadelphia, who was the last woman to leave the Laconia; the Rev. Father Wareing of St. Joseph's seminary, Baltimore; Arthur T. Kirby of New York, and myself. A former Chicago woman, now the wife of a British subject, was among the survivors. She is Mrs. Henry George Boston, the daughter of Granger Farwell of Lake Forest.

I was talking with other passengers about the chance of being torpedoed when the boat gave a sudden lurch sideways and forward. There was a muffled noise like the slamming of some large door at a good distance away. "We're hit!" was the cry. Five blasts on the whistle warned us to make for the lifeboats. I rushed into my stateroom, grabbed my overcoat and the water bottle and a special life preserver with which THE TRIBUNE had equipped me before sailing and made for the lifeboats.

WASHINGTON.—Developments here brought the United States a step closer to the "armed neutrality" proposed by President Wilson and the state of war with Germany which few officials believe can long be avoided. The principal incidents were: A meeting of the cabinet in which President Wilson expressed the opinion that the sacrifice of three American lives on the torpedoed British liner Laconia is the expected "overt act" and a clear cut act of war by Germany. meeting of the foreign relations committee, which reported to the senate a resolution practically requiring the President to furnish arms, ammunition, and gunners to American ships whose owners ask protection from German submarines, and a conference of house leaders, who decided to put through that body any resolution passed by the senate. Unless prevented by filibustering tactics on the eve of final adjournment, the Sixty-fourth congress, it now appears certain, will not only direct the President to arm American ships, but clothe him with discretionary power to adopt other measures short of war in protection of Americans on the high seas.

LONDON.—James W. Gerard, former American ambassador to Germany, and his party sailed from Coruna, Spain, for the United States on Feb. 27, according to a dispatch from the Daily Mail's correspondent at the Spanish seaport. The Americans sailed on a neutral vessel, the Spanish liner Infante Isabel.

HALIFAX.—The steamer Frederik VIII., with Count von Bernstorff, former German ambassador to the United States, and his party on board, sailed on Feb. 27 for Copenhagen. As it steamed slowly down the harbor it was convoyed by a swarm of patrol boats with orders to keep all other craft at a distance, in conformity with the assurance of safe conduct made by the government of Great Britain to the United States.

WAR SUMMARY.—Paris reports that a German surprise attack in Marlincourt at Hill 304 failed. Berlin reports the defeat of the British between Ypres and the Somme. London reports additional progress in its drive on the western front. Petrograd reports continuous German gas attacks in the region of Smorgen. Rome reports the entrance into Austrian trenches by Italian troops on the northern slopes of San Marco. Vienna reports ejection of Italian detachments on the same front. Constantinople reports the retreat of the British on the Sinai front in Mesopotamia. Six more ships, five British and one French, were sunk by submarines.

THE TAXPAYERS' STORY.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—Referring to your editorial of today regarding taxpayers of Chicago real estate—that is, property owners, home owners, etc.—you no doubt are very unjust in the stand you are taking by simply demanding the sale or confiscation of anybody's home who is unable to pay the enormous and unjust amount of taxes on his home.

Supposing your taxes had been increased 120 per cent since 1925 on your home, and supposing that you had no money and no income to pay these unjust taxes, would you pay them?

The above is exactly the case with me and with thousands of other home owners. If the taxes would be reasonable a lot of home owners could borrow enough to pay their just share for our local government, because there is no question we all have to chip in to keep things going; but you know there ought to be a limit.

My tax bills for 1929 and 1930 were nearly $800 each on a simple, inexpensive home (bungalow), six rooms, one in the attic, and I know dozens of other home owners who have been taxed for equal amounts; and it seems there is no letup. The 1931 tax will be almost as much. Yes, I protested; so did others; but it did not help any.

Considering these things, why don't you go after the politicians who spend the people's money without regard to being just or unjust?

F. C. BECHTOLD.

SUBSTITUTE FOR WORMS.

McGregor, Ia., Feb. 22.—During the heavy snow of last March I noticed that every bird fed at my feeding table but the robins. Knowing that they live principally on worms and insects, I bought some hamburger steak and spread it on the ground on the sunny side of the house. Result: I was kept busy buying steak. Try it.

MRS. GEORGIA KINZIE CARROLL.

SUET.

Forest City, Ia., Feb. 23.—If A. E. P. will chop up some suet and meat and put this out for the robins he will find that they are very fond of it. I have had as many as forty robins on my back porch after a snowstorm, and by making a clearing for them and putting out this food and a pan of warm water for them they were soon feeling good and were fighting. If there are any nearby trees, tie a piece of suet to the branches and see how soon they will discover this. MRS. GEORGE M. DICKSON.

GRAHAM CRACKERS.

Des Plaines, Ill., Feb. 23.—Let A. E. P. try feeding the two robins graham crackers. We had one come to us that way one time and it would eat graham crackers. True, it isn't like angle worms but will keep the birds from starving.

MRS. A. R.

ON THE AIR.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—The other afternoon I heard a professor of the University of Chicago attack the ideas of that arch-demagogue, Father Coughlin of Detroit. It is high time that proponents of sound money take into account this priest's influence. None of his economics are sound, but when he says that inflation would raise the wages of labor the thing becomes absurd. However, the absurdity is not apparent to many of his listeners, and inflation can be brought about by the pressure of public opinion. I do not favor forcing the good father off the air, but he should be answered by economists of standing, preferably Catholics, to take away the charge of religious prejudice.

ROBERT W. SHOEMAKER.

MOTHERS OF PRESIDENTS.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—I have read that Mrs. Roosevelt, Sr. is the first woman to see her son made President of the United States since George Washington's mother had that honor.

The mother of James Abram Garfield was living when he was made President of the United States and was seated near him when he took the oath, after which he stooped and kissed her.

NELLE IRVIN POWELL.

COMPATIBLE BELIEFS.

Berwyn, Ill., Feb. 18.—Mr. Patterson's attitude is that the Christian religion has no place in attempting the salvation of society, but must confine itself to the salvation of the individual. Therefore, according to his line of reasoning, it is incompatible with socialism, which is attempting to accomplish the former. Christianity must not do anything which might disturb the status quo. But in saying this, he fails to remember that he immediately rules out the possibility of a vital prophetic religion and admits only a milk-fed, wishy-washy religion which never has and never will accomplish anything.

When we go back to the Old Testament it is not the kings, the priests, the conservers of old forms, the protectors of the vested interests, whom we honor. No, we honor the great prophets of the new day, the lonely, persecuted voices crying in the wilderness against injustice and oppression, seeing visions of a better time when right shall rule. And as for Jesus, the founder of that religion whose cause Mr. Patterson so nobly espouses, surely he was a radical of radicals. He was not crucified because he wanted to establish some new religious forms or because he wanted to help people to develop some elusive "spirituality," which would not affect the organization of things as they were; he was crucified because his message was one of a completely reorganized society which would utterly destroy the vested interests of the priests and rulers. "Woe unto ye that are rich; woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees; blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake." He saw a vision of a new heaven and a new earth, and he wouldn't keep his mouth shut about it.

And so it has been in all ages. We kill the prophets of our own day, only to find our children worshiping them. And Christians today who side with the "powers that be" in defending an unjust social order are the scribes and Pharisees of 1933. Whether or not the socialists have the final solution to our problems is an open question, but that they are true prophets to whom we would all do well to listen lest we find ourselves persecuting those whom our children will adore is beyond doubt.

ROBERT BULKLEY.

A GOOD NEIGHBOR.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—I have resided on Dearborn parkway for a number of years and was very much surprised to read in this column of Feb. 17 a direct, unfriendly criticism against the Polish consulate, who is a very near neighbor of mine. We were pleased when the consulate moved into the house which had been vacant for several years and an eyesore to the neighborhood, while since their occupancy it has been a credit to the neighborhood.

From the appearance of many sidewalks during recent snowstorms, it seems to me a general complaint was in order and not one directed against the consulate, which is a stranger within our midst.

No doubt the complainant does not live on the parkway or he would be familiar with the fact that owners of parkway property are assessed a special parkway tax by the Lincoln park board for the upkeep of the lawns, sidewalks and streets which they have sadly neglected during the last year, thereby entailing this extra expense and work on the property owners. G. W. HOFMANN.

WORKING AND EATING.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—In these "waiting" days of unemployment, why not adopt Capt. John Smith's principle in handling the Virginia cavaliers: "He who does not work cannot eat"?

The dirty appearance of public buildings, streets, alleys, etc., challenges every taxpayer and contributing wage earner to require some reasonable service in return for food and shelter given the unemployed. For instance, in some of the older school buildings the plastering is falling off the walls, which are blackened by at least six years of soot.

FIRST IN AMERICA IN NATIONAL ADVERTISING*

among all week-day newspapers

THE volume of national advertising placed in newspapers each year is more than one hundred and fifty millions of dollars. This expenditure is directed by the wide experience and the ripe judgment of hundreds of advertisers and advertising agencies. ¶ During 1932, the Philadelphia Market received impressive recognition from this important group, as shown by the fact that The Philadelphia Bulletin carried more national advertising linage than any other week-day newspaper in America. (The Bulletin has no Sunday edition). ¶ The Bulletin's circulation of half a million copies daily is two and one-half times that of any other Philadelphia evening newspaper; greater than all morning newspapers combined. ¶ This thorough coverage of nearly every home by one newspaper, plus the fact that The Philadelphia Bulletin's advertising cost is one of the lowest in America, makes Philadelphia, today, an outstanding market for sales activity.

DAN MORAN

CONTINENTAL OIL COMPANY

New York, New York
January 12, 1933

The Chicago Tribune
Chicago, Illinois

Gentlemen:

In view of the response which we received from the color page ad-vertisements, which we ran last year exclusively in the Tribune, we look forward to even greater success in the Chicago market during 1933. So con-fident are we of the Tribune's ability to help us tell the story of our new gasoline that we have decided to use a larger schedule of color pages and black-and-white advertisements in the Tribune this year.

Our plan of advertising has as its objective a portrayal of our faith in the business integrity of our country and a definite hopefulness for the year of 1933. By fairly general acknowledgment the turn of the business tide occurred in the latter part of 1932, and indicated to us the necessity of preparing for the inevitable improvement which we think must take place during 1933. Our faith in the situation is evidenced by the one outstanding method we have of supporting our sales organization: namely, to increase our advertising expenses, we have materially improved our situation and a large preliminary and a comparable improvement in other products. This with a new gasoline and a comparable improvement in our selling price because of has been done with no intention of increasing our selling price because of these proved greater values. A plan evolved with much deliberation is being presented to our buying public thru an advertising campaign in outstanding newspapers, a medium from which we have always received maximum response. which we have confidence. this advertising has been allocated to media in Inspired thru experience, this advertising has been to place this material in form that challenges the mind of the most discriminating to contest the under-lying facts as they are stated.

We have taken a solemn vow to refrain from charging anyone with our present-day troubles. We believe that the future success of our company depends upon ourselves and the truthfulness of the story we tell the public. Daily we contact the public thru eighteen thousand outlets. Thru them we believe we can observe the trend that justifies our program; and, finally, we are emphatic in the belief of real results for 1933.

Yours very truly,

Dan. Moran

IN 1932 CONOCO gasoline and oil made substantial progress in distribution and sales in the Chicago market using the Tribune exclusively. As a result, the Tribune in 1933 will carry a larger schedule of Conoco color pages and black-and-white advertisements than in 1932.

Operating with fine acceptance from motorists but with limited distribution, Conoco were confident that greater success lay in aggressive selling and advertising. A smashing campaign of run-of-paper color and black-and-white advertising was launched last year in the Chicago Tribune. Excepting for 59 lines in one other Chicago newspaper, the entire schedule . . . 14,660 lines . . . ran only in the Tribune.

Forcefully told, the story of Conoco gasoline and oil got immediate response from Tribune readers . . . gave fresh impetus to sales. Well merchandised, the campaign enlisted close cooperation from distributors and gas stations throughout the entire market.

So gratifying have been the results of the 1932 campaign that Conoco have selected Chicago as a key market in which to introduce their new Bronze High-Test gasoline. And the campaign is slated exclusively for the Tribune.

Have you a problem in opening distribution or building resale? Then consider the coverage of this rich market by the Tribune. When you advertise in the Tribune you tell your story to the able-to-buy who can and will respond. The 52% of the families of Chicago and suburbs which you reach and influence through the Tribune has always been the backbone of this market. And today it represents practically the entire market for advertised goods.

The Tribune has over 191,000 more daily circulation in metropolitan Chicago than any other newspaper. And, in addition, it reaches with strong selling effect over 170,000 leading families in the cities and towns adjacent to the metropolitan district.

No other Chicago paper has such coverage—such selective circulation among families able to buy today—as the Tribune.

And no other offers a milline rate as low as the Tribune's.

Regardless of what your plans may be for other markets, if you want sales they are to be had here. The Tribune can help you get volume because it has the strongest grip on the best buying power. Facts—current, significant—proving this beyond the shadow of a doubt are ready for your immediate study and use. Ask for them now—by mail, or wire, or phone.

WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

WIDOW DENIES PART IN FORTUNE TELLER MURDER

Innocent of Plot, She Tells Prosecutor.

"I swear to you that I knew nothing about the plot to murder my husband," she said calmly. "And I'll have you know I never had any idea of marrying John Milosic."

Mrs. Carl her brother, Ivan Grlieo, Milosic, Edward Veselka, and Joseph Fess were arrested Saturday on a charge that they plotted the murder of George Carl, who was shot to death last July in his home in the rear of the grocery he owned at 2511 South Crawford avenue. The men have confessed complicity in the killing which was done by Fess for $800, according to his confession.

Plot for $15,000 Insurance.

Milosic said he arranged the murder in the expectation of marrying Mrs Carl and sharing the $15,000 insurance she collected on the death of her husband.

"It's not true," Mrs. Carl said yesterday. "They are lying if they say I knew anything about their plans."

When Prosecutor Dougherty informed her he had sent for her bank statement she admitted having withdrawn large sums, including $800 given to Milosic, which she said was in payment of a debt, and $1,000 given to her brother, which she said satisfied another debt. The bank records showed she had withdrawn more than $10,000 of the $15,000 insurance.

She told Dougherty she is a high school graduate and was studying to become a teacher until she met and married Carl, who was 14 years older than she. She declared their married life was happy.

Seeks Indictments Today.

A writ of habeas corpus was sought in her behalf and Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court continued a hearing on it when Prosecutor Dougherty said he would go before the grand jury today and ask that she be indicted for the murder along with the four men.

The prosecutor questioned Mrs. Susie Ballo, fortune teller, who Mrs. Carl said had told her that her husband was to be killed by bandits. Mrs. Carl had told her son, Dorn, 9 years old, about the prediction.

Mrs. Ballo said the incident occurred two days before Carl was slain. She said Mrs. Carl explained she was about to go to a hospital for an operation and wanted to know what the outcome would be. Mrs. Ballo said she turned many playing cards and then told Mrs. Carl that Carl was to be killed. Mrs. Carl did not go to a hospital, Mrs. Ballo said.

Young Dorn Carl is to be questioned today.

HELD AS BANDIT

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Police had in custody at the women's quarters at 1121 South State street yesterday a girl accused of burglary who gave her name as Margery Wolfe, 19 years old, of 1746 North Clark street.

She was captured while dressed in man's attire early yesterday, with her husband, William Wolfe, 22 years old, by Chicago avenue police squads who surprised them in the office of the Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics Publishing company, 54 West Erie street.

The burglary was her idea, she said in her cell. She denied that she knew her husband had a police record for burglary, which he has admitted to police.

American Colony Honors New Polish Envoy to U. S.

WARSAW, Poland, Feb. 27.—(AP)—United States Ambassador Belin and other prominent members of the American colony attended a luncheon today in honor of Stanislaus Patek, Poland's new ambassador to America.

BEG YOUR PARDON

Mrs. Joseph Fritsch, 2546 South Lawndale avenue, said that Mrs. Susie Ballo, fortune teller mentioned in connection with the murder of George Carl, does not live at that address, as stated yesterday. Mrs. Ballo lives at 2456 South Lawndale avenue.

SCHOOL CHIEFS ATTACK CUT IN THEIR REVENUE

See Blow at Free U. S. Education.

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 27.—(AP)—A conclusion that there "appears to be" an organized attempt to cripple the nation's schools by those controlling great wealth was reached today by a committee of educators. The report will be made to the department of superintendence of the National Educational association, 6,000 of whose members are in session here. The committee also will say the federal government should give more support to education in the present "emergency and point out that schools are suffering through fund curtailment. The committee is headed by Charles S. Meek, Toledo, O., superintendent of schools.

Attacks "Bogus Economy."

"The issue is real economy versus bogus economy," said Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin. "By all means let us stop waste," he said, "but let us be sure it is real waste that we are stopping.

"Educational leadership will be derelict to its duty if it permits economic leadership, without let or hindrance, to do what it will with local, state, and national budgets."

Dr. Frank urged educators to combat "an uncritical drive against educational expenditures."

Favors Spending More.

A plea to "spend more, not less on education" was made by Jesse H. Newlon. Columbia university professor, "because of the need of leadership that widespread unemployment brings."

Frederick M. Hunter, University of Denver chancellor, said it was more important than ever that teachers have a knowledge of the means of "salvation of the societies of the past."

Free education is threatened as never before during a period of depression, Lotus D. Coffman, president of the University of Minnesota, said.

"If America is to grow in strength and influence it will be because she gives more, rather than less, attention to education," Dr. Coffman added.

Voice from Australia.

R. S. Wallace, vice chancellor of the University of Sydney, Australia, said: "Much as I admire the businessman in his own sphere I distrust him when he approaches the educational problem."

H. A. Brown, president of the Illinois State Normal university, declared:

"Unmistakable signs of a new philosophy which gives meaning to the objectives of education and the scientific study of learning have suggested a thorough redirection of the work of the public schools."

Paul C. Packer, dean of the College of Education at the University of Iowa, said there is an over supply of teachers in the quantitative but not in the qualitive sense.

INTERNATIONAL TAKES OVER MINE WAR IN ILLINOIS

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Administration of affairs of the Illinois district, United Mine Workers of America will pass into the hands of international officers of the union on Wednesday, it was announced today by John L. Lewis, international president.

This drastic change in policy marks the latest development in the fight of the United Mine Workers to prevent further inroads of their membership by the progressive miners in this state and to preserve their existing contracts with mine operators.

Four Peabody mines at Springfield, having contracts with the United Mine Workers of America, will work tomorrow under protection of the Illinois National guards. The mines did not work today, under orders of Adjt. Gen. Carlos E. Black. Announcement of the plans to re-open came after a conference in Black's office attended by city and county authorities. The mines which are to resume work have been the scene of rioting during recent weeks when picketed by the progressive miners.

Dissolution of an injunction restraining Lewis from interfering in affairs of the Illinois union of the United Mine Workers is expected soon to pave the way for the new administration.

A statement issued by Lewis said that transfer of the reins of district 12, the Illinois union to International authority came upon voluntary and unanimous petition of the district executive board.

HUSBAND SAYS WIFE MADE HIM SLEEP IN GARAGE

Superior Judge James J. Kelly refused a decree of separate maintenance yesterday to Mrs. Cecelia A. Milke, 3851 North Christiana avenue. She charged her husband, Ben, 5329 Dakin street, a butcher, has deserted her.

"My wife nagged me when I stayed too long in the bathtub, and she nagged me when I shaved," Milke told Judge Kelly when summoned to the witness stand by his counsel, Harry X. Cole. "Finally I had to go to sleep in my garage. Then the weather got cold and I decided to get a decent place to stay. So I moved."

Judge Kelly had listened to the husband's story and nodded in sympathy. "I quite agree that you had reason to move," said the judge. "I'll have to dismiss this suit."

M'NUTT SIGNS INDIANA SALES, INCOME TAX

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Gov. Paul V. McNutt late today signed the administration's 14 million dollar sales and income tax law.

This project was assailed by merchants in all parts of the state. It imposes a 1 per cent tax on gross incomes of individuals and retail establishments and one-fourth of 1 per cent on the gross incomes of wholesalers and manufacturers, including mining and agriculture.

The measure takes effect May 1, and the first payment is to be by July 15. Because experts for years have questioned whether the legislature, in the absence of a state constitutional change, may levy an income tax, it is expected the law will be subjected to court test immediately.

SHOOTS FELLOW GUARD.

CHURCH GROUP AIDS FUND FOR HUNGRY PUPILS

The Woman's auxiliary of Grace Episcopal church, Oak Park, sent $7.35 to the Hungry School Children's fund yesterday, and the Neighborhood Current Events club of Evanston sent $5.

The total number of contributors, however, was only seven, and the day's gifts dropped to $29.45. The grand total so far contributed is $21,817.13, little of which remains to be used to finance free lunches for the needy public school children.

Contributions of any size will be welcomed by the fund. Make out your check payable to the Hungry School Children's fund and send it to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower. Yesterday's gifts are acknowledged as follows:

$5—O. E. Wilke, Delavan, Wis.; the Neighborhood Current Events club, Evanston.
$1—Justin C. Faymonville, Bridge Prize.
10 cents—Anonymous.

Total	$ 29.45
Previously acknowledged	21,787.68
Grand total	$21,817.13

Alleged Slayer of Girl Gets Change of Venue

Rock Island, Ill., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Maurice Meyer, 25, indicted as the slayer of Miss Rose Gendler, sack murder victim of Dec. 22, was arraigned today. He was granted a change of venue from Judge Nels A. Larson and the time of pleading extended to March 13. It is likely the case will be heard before Judge L. E. Telleen. Meyer has confessed, it is claimed, to placing the girl's body in a sack and dropping it over a high bridge near Moline onto the ice of Rock river. He adheres to his story that she fainted and he believed she was dead and becoming panic stricken he disposed of the body.

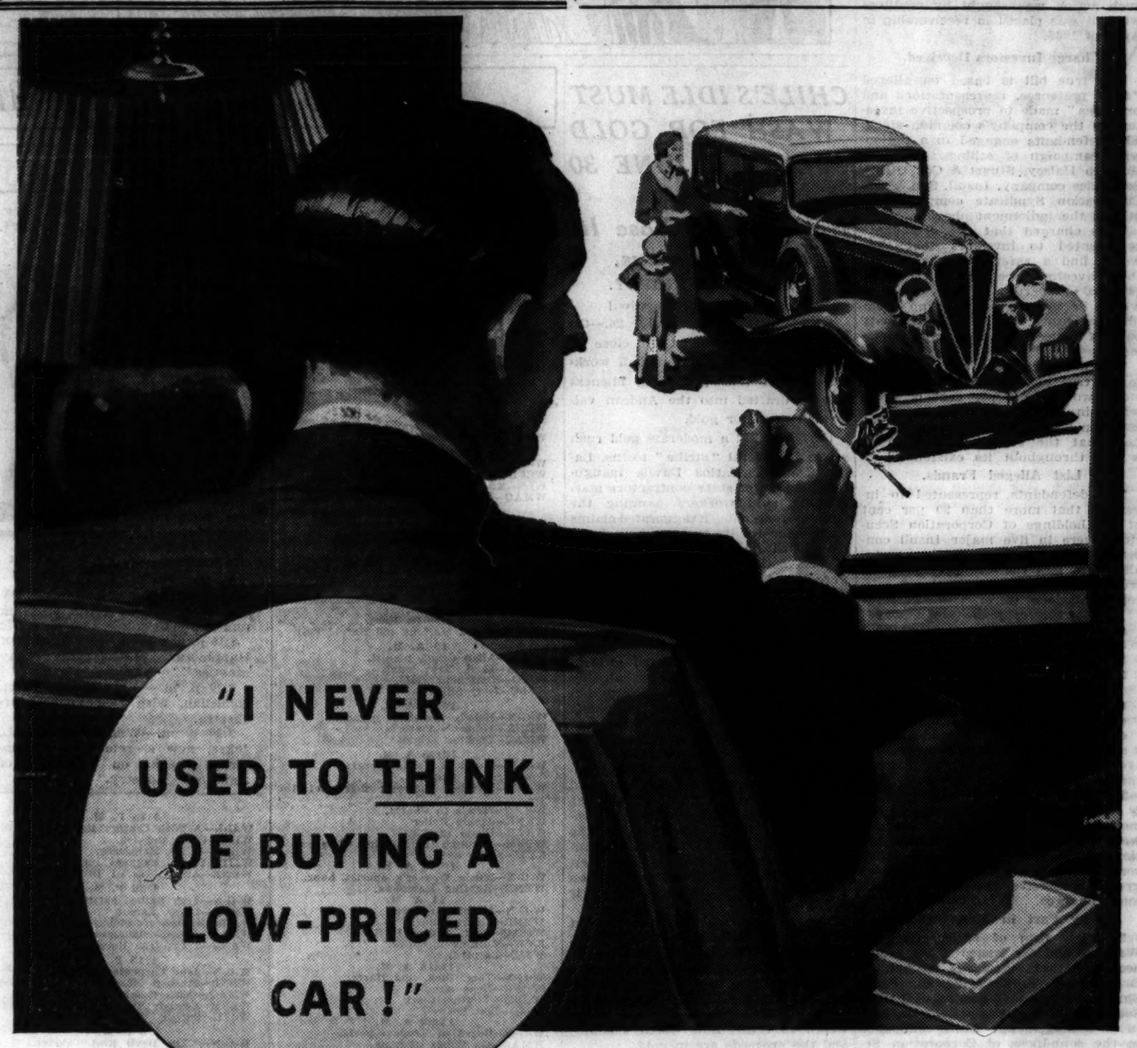
ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE



"I NEVER USED TO THINK OF BUYING A LOW-PRICED CAR!"

BUT times have changed, you know. And that's how I came to buy a Rockne.

I knew Rockne would be built right because Studebaker stands behind it. I didn't dream, however, that anybody—even Studebaker—could put so much into a car that sells as low as $585 f. o. b.

Naturally, I looked at several other low priced cars, too. But, somehow, none of them had quite the air and the finish I like a car to have. And they didn't drive to please me—possibly because I gave them a stiffer workout than most people do.

It was different with Rockne. It looked the part of a real automobile. It was beautifully designed and lavishly furnished. I was particularly impressed by the richness of the interior trim. And I found it generously roomy even for people my size.

Then I drove Rockne. And I'm telling you, upon my word of honor, it performed like a big, expensive car. It has a perfect marvel of a transmission, for instance. Its rubber-floated engine has the amazing pick up and the smoothness, even in top speed, that you'd expect Studebaker to provide. I never rode in a car that had better balance and steadiness on the turns.

Of course, I could scarcely believe it when I found there wasn't any extra charge for Rockne's special features. As a matter of fact, I had to lay out very little cash for my Rockne, considering what my old car brought. And I've got a car that I'm proud of and that my family's proud of. We don't feel threadbare in our Rockne as we might in some other low priced car.

TRY A ROCKNE . . . AND YOU'LL BUY A ROCKNE

Six-cylinder, 70 horsepower engine floated in live rubber . . . free wheeling, synchronized shift, silent second . . . automatic switch-key starting . . . double-drop, rigid "X" frame . . . one piece all steel bodies of full aerodynamic design . . . electro-plated pistons . . . silent threaded spring shackles . . . hydraulic shock absorbers . . . extra large capacity batteries . . . extra powerful brakes . . . contoured upholstery with special coil springs . . . smaller wheels, lower over-all height . . . closed bodies wired for radio.

U. S. INDICTS 19 ON INSULL MAIL FRAUD CHARGES

of the mails in "a scheme and artifice to defraud." The maximum penalty, upon conviction on any count, is five years' imprisonment and a fine of $10,000.

There is no mention in the presentment of the pledging of securities, which included virtually everything in the company's portfolio, for bank loans totaling $15,000,000, in alleged violation of covenants with debenture holders not to pledge such assets without equally securing the debentures.

These transactions are still being scrutinized by Prosecutor Green and his first assistant, William J. Froelich, who are hopeful of obtaining an indictment charging violation of the bankruptcy statutes on which Samuel Insull Sr. and Martin J. Insull could be extradited from Greece and Canada, respectively. There is no provision in the treaties for extraditing mail fraud defendants.

The bankruptcy statutes make it a crime to conceal, transfer or alienate assets of a company within four months prior to bankruptcy action. Corporation Securities was not thrown into bankruptcy until late in 1932, but such action was sought by creditors when it was placed in receivership in April of 1932.

Charge Investors Deceived.

The true bill is based on alleged "false pretenses, representations and promises" made to prospective investors in the company's common stock. The defendants engaged in a nationwide campaign of selling this stock through Halsey, Stuart & Co., Utility Securities company, Insull, Son & Co., Corporation Syndicate company and others, the indictment charges.

It is charged that the defendants represented to investors that they would find a safety of principal in their investment because of the great physical properties of the company when, in fact, there were no great physical properties and the security back of the common stock was worthless.

The investors were told, according to the true bill, that the yield on the stock would be 6 per cent or more when, in fact, there could be no income on the stock "by reason of the fact that the company operated at a loss throughout its existence."

List Alleged Frauds.

The defendants represented to investors that more than 90 per cent of the holdings of Corporation Securities were in five major Insull concerns, although such holdings actually were less than 65 per cent, the true bill alleges. Other alleged misrepresentations were:

That the common stock was a sound investment and "the best buy on the market" when the stock, in reality, was worthless.

That the dividends on the common stock would be paid from earnings and income, when such earnings were wholly inadequate and such dividends as were paid consisted of a splitup of stock already held by the investors.

During October, 1929, approximately 700,000 units (one share of common and one share of preferred stock) were sold to the public, and additional large blocks of common stock were sold beginning in April, 1930, at greatly excessive prices, the indictment charges.

Deny Part in Management.

The law firm of Miller, Gorham, Wales & Adams issued a statement declaring that Harold L. Stuart, C. B. Stuart, C. T. MacNeille, and F. K. Shrader were not directors of Utility Securities company and had no part in its management. Their confidence in the soundness of Corporation Securities company was evidenced, the statement said, by the fact that they themselves invested hundreds of thousands of dollars in its common stock.

Mr. Field, who recently succeeded George M. Reynolds as chairman of the board of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, issued no statement.

The following statement, however, was issued on behalf of Mr. Field by James R. Leavell, president of the Continental bank:

"I know Stanley Field too well to believe for a moment that as a director of Corporation Securities company he could have voted with any intent to commit or to approve an illegal act. Any approval of his that may have been secured, I am sure, was given solely on the basis of such information as was made known to him."

Hold Services Tomorrow for the Rev. J. K. Worrell

Funeral services for the Rev. John Knox Worrell, 65 years old, former Chicago pastor, will be held at 2:30 tomorrow in the Wakeford Methodist church, 76th street and St. Lawrence avenue. CHILE'S IDLE MUST WASH FOR GOLD AFTER JUNE 30

Nation Will Close Its Relief Bureaus.

BY NORMAN INGREY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 26.—On June 30 the government will close its unemployment bureaus and all workers at that time professing idleness will be drafted into the Andean valleys to grub for gold.

Early in 1932 a moderate gold rush set in to several "strike" towns. Later, Dictator Carlos Davila inaugurated a plan of state contractors marshalling paid workers panning the streams for gold. Exaggerated claims were made for its success, actually it languished under the many changes of socialistic government. Workers were held by no more impelling force than the invitation "to subsist on the meager pay—perhaps by the hope of smuggling some gold.

Will Affect 600,000 People.

Now the regularly elected government of Arturo Alessandri, already two months advanced in a program of retrenchment, is willing to stake Chile's economic recovery on placer mining. The project is supported by leading Chilean economists.

Fifty thousand miners of 1932 already are panning for alluvial gold and Jorge Bravo, state director of the project, estimates that when the conscription of idle is in operation, the number will rise to 120,000. Counting five to a family of each worker, there will be 600,000 dependent on gold washing. Chile's population is about 4,000,000.

The government admits a "slight loss" on subsidizing the operations, but states that the scheme actually will result in economy, considering what otherwise would be spent on maintaining the idle. Then, too, the costs are in depreciated pesos [once worth 12 cents, now worth 6 cents] and the proceeds are in gold.

Eat and Sleep in Open.

Exploiting the alluvial deposits, Director Bravo states, costs the state for each gold panner—subsidies, salaries, and equipment—about 52 centavos [less than 5 cents] a day, which is an indication of the living conditions to which a large percentage of Chileans have been forced to resort.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent who visited the mining—or washing—operations in the Coquimbo area found thousands encamped by the stream beds. Many of them are truly smitten with the gold fever. Men, women, and even children swarm over the countryside burrowing in the sandy beds, but all have been reduced to a standard of living to which a loan-fed country will take long to accustom itself.

Fortunately most of the gold washings are located in the central provinces—Coquimbo, Colchagua, Aconcagua, Linares, and Temuco—where the climate is in favor of the workers and their families. Cold and rain are entirely absent for nine months of the year. Most of the families eat and sleep in the open. A dwelling place is a rarity—when found it is but a rude hovel of sticks and sacks.

Smuggled to Argentina.

A motley, cosmopolitan host has congregated in the camps and the government has been compelled to reinforce the carabineer patrols because it found that more gold was passing into contraband hands than into the central bank. Airplanes scour the mountain passes to stop the illicit flow into Argentina. "Hard liquor" prohibition has been imposed on the camps, but beer and wines are easy to obtain.

Director Bravo publishes a weekly statement of the gold obtained from the washings. It shows that since the beginning of the year the average has been only $20,000 a week. The gold is disposed of on the open market and so far has been sold for sugar, gasolien and motion pictures.

Bravo calculates that the weekly average will be brought to $50,000 when the rest of the idle are drafted to the gold fields. It will be larger than this, he says, when the government finally stops contraband trafficking.

CIGAR STORE OWNER KILLS SELF.

Gilbert Sodini, 41 years old, 1460 Henry avenue, Des Plaines, owner of a cigar store, shot and killed himself in the basement of his home yesterday. His wife said he had been despondent over financial difficulties.

DRAIN EMPLOYES ARE GIVEN $114,000 OF NOVEMBER PAY

Salary checks totaling $114,000 were distributed yesterday to employés of the sanitary district for the first half of November. Ross Woodhull, finance chairman of the district, said the cash was an accumulation of tax money for 1928 and 1929, for which there are no outstanding tax warrants.

City employés will start receiving their pay for the first half of October today. The pay day is financed through collections of license fees. City Controller M. S. Szymczak has started negotiations for a cash pay day for school employés.

Meanwhile the school employés continue to take 1931 tax anticipation warrants in lieu of cash for the last half of May and the first half of June. Warrants to the extent of $1,202,000 have been given to 3,000 employés at the headquarters in the old City State Bank building, according to Arthur Schweitzer, assistant business manager of the school system.

Brokerage firms dealing in the warrants reported that as a result of the heavy selling of the warrants in $50 denominations they had dropped from 87 early in the day to 84 at the close.

FRENCH SENATE BACKS CABINET'S CUT IN ARMS COST

PARIS, Feb. 27.—(AP)—By a vote of 180 to 118 the French senate today passed a motion of confidence in the government of Premier Daladier. The question was posed on a proposal to reduce military expenditures by $20,000,000.

The vote followed upon assurances by the premier that armed efficiency of the nation would not be decreased by the cut in the appropriation. The senate debated the proposal on second reading yesterday without reaching an agreement. Early yesterday the chamber of deputies expressed confidence in the government by favoring the military appropriations reduction.

Meanwhile the chamber and the senate remained at odds over the amount of the proposed reduction in salaries of civil servants. The chamber voted, 325 to 270, to maintain its position that the government make every effort to reach a compromise between the two houses tomorrow.

FRANK AITKEN, VETERAN FILM ACTOR, IS DEAD

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Frank Spottiswoode Aitken, character actor, who had taken rôles in hundreds of motion pictures, beginning with "Birth of a Nation," died at his home, after illness which began several weeks ago. He was 64 years of age. He had been in steady employment as an actor longer than any other person in motion pictures. He is survived by three children.

Walter Hiers, Actor, Dies.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Walter Hiers, film comedian since 1913 who made his plumpness a professional asset, died here today of pneumonia at the home of his father-in-law, Charles R. McWilliams. He had arrived home with his wife only last week from the east where he had been making personal appearances. Hiers was 41 and was born in Cordele, Ga.

M. S. McDANIEL, BEIDLER SCHOOL PRINCIPAL, DIES

Moses S. McDaniel, 45 years old, principal of the Beidler elementary school at 3151 Walnut street, died after a week's illness yesterday at his home in Wheaton. Born in Brooklyn, Ind., he was graduated from the University of Indiana at Bloomington, and received his master's degree from the University of Wisconsin at Madison. He is survived by a wife, Amy, and three children. Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Thursday at Kampp's chapel in Wheaton. Burial will be in the Wheaton cemetery.

Funeral Services Held for Laurence A. Carton

Funeral services for Laurence A. Carton, treasurer of Swift & Co, were conducted yesterday at the Kenwood church, 46th street and Greenwood avenue, by the Rev. A. L. Wilson. Burial was at Graceland cemetery. Mr. Carton died Friday evening. The following business associates served as pallbearers: William B. Traynor, W. W. Sherman, N. R. Clark, J. M. Chaplin, John E. Corby, John Holmes, Harry McLerie, and H. C. Carr.

CHICAGO WOMAN KILLED IN AUTO NEAR KANKAKEE

Mrs. Freda Marie Goodwin, 5146 Patterson avenue, Chicago, was killed and Mrs. Ray Anys, 5531 West Walton place, was seriously injured yesterday when their automobile overturned on highway No. 49 near Kankakee. Mrs. Anys' husband and another couple in the car escaped injury. Frank Goodwin, husband of the dead woman, suffered minor injuries.

A coroner's jury yesterday recommended that signal bells be added to the warning equipment at the intersection of the Milwaukee railroad tracks and Waukegan road, at Glenview, where Huron H. Smith, prominent Milwaukeean, his wife and her parents were killed last Saturday.

There were no automobile fatalities in Cook county yesterday and the death toll since Jan. 1 remained at 126.

OAK PARK POLICE SEIZE 4 YOUTHS AFTER GUN CHASE

Four youths were arrested by Oak Park Policemen Clarence Mau and Burt Barsema early yesterday, after a long chase in which a number of shots were fired.

Mau and Barsema said that the youths, who surrendered at Adams street and Ridgeland avenue, offered a $200 bribe for their release. They added that they were on their way to a café in Stickney, once a Capone stronghold.

The prisoners identified themselves as Carlo Tallerico, 1147 Taylor street; James McCann, 3837 West Harrison street; Joseph Mandino, 914 South Morgan street; and Leonard Gianola, 45 South Morgan street.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

"Grand Hotel" started it. Now producers are all imbued with the passion to delineate as many cross sections of life as is possible within a small, given space. So, even, is it with "Luxury Liner."

On a de luxe steamship you spot living crowded hours:

A ship's doctor relieving the regular physician for the trip that he may observe his faithless wife, due to sail with her lover:

The wife:

The lover:

A quiet, austere, mysterious ship's nurse:

A one time prominent shipping man just through serving a sentence in jail and traveling steerage:

A chiseling little blonde, also steerage, whose ambition is to dine and dance on the upper decks, and who, to further her designs dyes her nails deep red because she has "heard red nails make men passionate":

A prima donna:

An inarticulate emigrant whose wife is to have a baby——

The film lacks interest, I think, because it attempts to give you entirely too much for your money. You bear up well under the plethora—even as to the synthetic Alice White, who Betty-Boops gold diggingly, or gold digs Betty-Boopingly [either will do] —from steerage to first class and back again—until the last reel. But when, with no previous warning, the quiet nurse breaks down and confesses to the handsome doctor that she's killed all her children by gas, but has, herself, been compelled to live on; when he replies feelingly—"For others!"—as he clasps her to his manly bosom—why that's a bit too much . . .!

Most of the lines are dreadfully banal.

Staging, players, photography please in the main. And no more kind words have I for "Luxury Liner."

"WILD WOMEN OF BORNEO."
Produced by Television.

Critic's Creed re "Wild Women of Borneo":

I believe that the producers DID go to Mexico, Guadeloupe, and Singapore.

I believe that they DID see some Mexicans, alligators, sea lions, sea water, and black people. BUT——

I do NOT believe that they saw any wild women in Borneo.

The clumsy, colored ladies who edge hesitantly into the underbrush in the last reel ARE, quite likely, natives of Borneo, but they are certainly not wild. I can pick you up a wilder one at a moment's notice any day in Chicago. I suspect them of being good family fraus who, for the price of a bead or two, agreed to peer, pose, and shoot a few harmless arrows for the incomprehensible white gentlemen and the beaming young woman with them. But that's all anybody COULD suspect them of.

This picture—produced by the Television company, which may or may not have anything to do with television—is the most unimportant, uninteresting, and unconvincing travel picture I have observed.

Sic 'em, Carveth Wells!

See you soon.

Visiting Nurse Association Is Family Affair

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

When the Navarre Macomb household on East Scott street was awakened one night recently by a strange disturbance, Mrs. Macomb quickly switched on the light and announced that she was only trying to find a pencil to write down the names of Robert Carr Hodgkins and Edward Crossett French.

"You see," she explained to Mr. Macomb and the assembled servants, "these babies will be excellent juniors for the Visiting Nurse association and I wanted to put down their names before I forgot them. Maybe a dream suggested them. I don't know. Anyway it's a good idea."

Mrs. Macomb is chairman of the junior membership of the Visiting Nurse association which is making an active campaign to find new little boys and girls to add to its list, a list that already reads like the social register of a quarter century hence. There are the Lester Armour children, Betty and Lester Jr., Cynthia, Elizabeth, and Mary Louise De Long, all of them children of the Charles De Longs of Lake Forest, James Douglas III., and his brother, Robert Stuart Douglas, Isabel Greenlee Farrar, Barbara Finlay, and the three John B. Drake sons and daughter—John B. IV., Barbara, and George.

Strange as it may seem to those who always think of the "V. N. A." in terms of mothers and grandmothers, these juniors play an active rôle in the work of the association through their $2 contributions. They support the auxiliary-junior membership nurse whose sole duty is to care for little boys and girls in less fortunate circumstances, stricken by poverty and sickness, many of them by infantile paralysis. Last year this nurse made 3,602 calls on 118 small patients.

In fact the Visiting Nurse association is a family affair. For that "in-between" age when girls have outgrown the rank of juniors but have not yet achieved a place on the senior board there is the group known as the auxiliary workers. Mrs. Chalkeley J. Hambleton is president of these workers, who number seventy-five and work on a dozen committees ranging from flowers to surgical dressings.

The flowers come from all of the debutante parties, the weddings, and the receptions that society attends annually. And the surgical dressings are the result of weekly work on the part of a group of debutantes and young matrons, Mrs. Ralph T. Winston, a board member, explains. On the fifth floor of the Diana Court building on North Michigan avenue is a large, sunny workroom presided over by Mrs. Edwin L. Brand Jr., where these volunteers spend Thursdays cutting cotton—thirty rolls at one clip—rolling bandages, and packing bags.

As for this family interest, take for instance Mrs. George A. Ranney, who is now the president of the senior board which makes her automatically the president of the association. Her mother, Mrs. Lawrence Williams, was a member of the board of directors from 1890 to 1895, and Mrs. William's cousin, Mrs. Charles Stedman Hanks, was one of the charter members of the association forty-four years ago. The present generation in this family is represented by Miss Dorothy Ranney, who as an auxiliary member takes charge of the collection of toys for sick families and assists with office detail.

Then there is the Payson family. Mrs. George S. Payson is an honorary member of the board; her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Randolph Payson, is a member of the auxiliary, and her little daughter, Betsy, is a junior. Betsy's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Kinney Smith, has for years given generously of her time making baby outfits. And still another instance. Little Sarane Otis Burns, her mother, Mrs. Robert S. Burns of Los Angeles [the former Sarane Otis], and her grandmother, Mrs. Ralph C. Otis, are all members of the "V. N. A."

The association has won nation-wide repute because during these 44 years, ever since Mrs. E. C. Dudley, now a resident of Paris, became its first president, it has worked effectively without blare of trumpets or palaver. No paid solicitors are employed.

But all the patients, old and young, black and white, are the sick children of Chicago for whom home care is needed. Last year they numbered 91,544. The visits totaled 432,258.

Bride Today

Miss Alice Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert A. Smith of 7729 Jeffery avenue, will be married to Edward Taylor Tilley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew J. Tilley of 7958 Constance avenue, this morning at 11 o'clock at the English Lutheran church. Mr. and Mrs. Tilley will go to Florida on their honeymoon.

'Bride Retires' Typical Play of Title Type

Edna Hibbard Has Leading Role in Comedy.

"THE BRIDE RETIRES."
THE CAST.

Victorine.....Mrs. Jacques Martin
Madame Herbel...Edna Archer Crawford
Claude Herbel.....Edgar Mason
Monsieur Cortinat.....Gilbert Douglas
Raymonde Cortinat.....Edna Hibbard
Edouards.....Roy Karvin
Gisele.....Enid Markey

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

A specimen of French comedy as found in the minor playhouses along the so-called grand boulevards of Paris is now on view at the Blackstone theater, with Edna Hibbard, who confidently hurls herself upon Chicago's bosom whenever she finds a play that contains a bedroom scene, in the leading rôle. "The Bride Retires" is its title, and in a flirtatious Gallic manner it dallies with the intimacies of the nuptial chamber, devoting its entire second act to that environment.

The play is typical of a trend in the exhausted drama of France which has been evident for almost a generation. Having wrung every possible titillation out of the theme of illicit love, having worn the situations that concern the "maitresse," the "amant," and the cuckolded "mari" completely threadbare, Parisian playwrights turned for suggestive material to the conjugal relationship.

Here, the bright-eyed writing lads of the Eighth arrondissement said to themselves, are fresh fields and pastures new, where sexy comedies will grow in abundance, putting forth exquisite passion flowers under the fair sky of lawful union and moral behavior. Thus inspired, they produced shoals of light, lascivious pieces, of which "The Bride Retires" is a fair sample.

Curiously enough, however, the world at large was moving so much faster than the French drama that all of these plays were old-fashioned at their birth. Gallic salt is no longer a satisfactory condiment for the hard-boiled present, and the prurient hints and sexly allusions in the dialogue of "The Bride Retires" which hope to evoke blushes in a great, big modern way merely remind one of the tone of sporting life in the Victorian era.

The play presents Miss Hibbard in a departure from her customary vein of tough, witty little wenches with loose habits and lively tongues. She appears as that famous character of French mythology, the "jeune fille" who believes that storks and cabbage leaves have important functions in the process of reproduction.

This is indeed a strange Edna Hibbard, pretending to be a star-eyed ingenue, utterly lacking in the rudiments of biology, without a wisecrack to call her own, without a hint of night-club slang to savor her speech. Even in the disrobing scene this is a new Miss Hibbard. She submits fresh proof of her skill by acting this character, which became extinct even in France a generation ago, with decided plausibility.

The others in the cast give a fairly good account of themselves, and the performance may be called satisfactory although it does not achieve the necessary Parisian veneer. Edgar Mason is effective as the rakish bachelor who turns out to be a sentimental bridegroom; Mrs. Jacques Martin, quaint old comedienne of many a hit in the past, is mildly diverting as a remonstrating domestic; Enid Markey puts on the affectations of a gay lady of the Parisian world; Gilbert Douglas fusses about gracefully as the bride's father, and Roy Karvin earnestly strives to approximate the French idea of an unsophisticated youth.

The first performance of "Katinka," this week's revival by the Chicago Operetta company at the Civic Opera house, has been postponed until tomorrow afternoon.

"Juno and the Paycock," Sean O'Casey's drama of the revolutionary period in Dublin, will be tonight's bill in the repertory of the Abbey theater company at the Harris theater.

Finals in Religious Drama Tournament Given on Club Stage

Finals in the religious drama tournament conducted by the Chicago council of religious education were played last night at the theater of the Chicago Woman's club. Casts from First Methodist Episcopal church, Evanston; the Maywood Congregational church, First Presbyterian church, and the First Congregational church, Oak Park, presented the winning plays of the city-wide contest.

During the winter 32 churches entered the contest, with more than 400 younger persons of those churches participating. The plays presented last night will be shown at the hall of religion during A Century of Progress exhibition. The Rev. L. C. Jensen of the Englewood Baptist church is the city chairman of the tournament.

Mrs. Roosevelt in Inaugural Gown

The inaugural wrap is of Anna blue crystelle velvet, a darker shade than the Eleanor blue. The Anna blue was named for Mrs. Roosevelt's daughter, Mrs. Anna Dall. The clothes were designed and executed by Arnold Constable, New York.

Mrs. Roosevelt Selects Pumps for Inaugural

New York, Feb. 27.—(AP)—With the purchase of a pair of dark blue kid pumps—and they had to be comfortable, for she expects to be on her feet most of the time from 10 a. m. until midnight Saturday—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt completed today her shopping for the inauguration.

The pumps are size 7-A, and they have straps across the instep. Mrs. Roosevelt directed that the heels be lowered and widened a little.

"They may not look quite so smart," she said, "but I've got to do a lot of standing in them."

Much of the standing will be done in the White House, where she is to entertain 500 guests at lunch, more than 1,000 at tea, and 75 for a buffet supper on inauguration day.

The pumps she selected are of a color that will blend in with her coat, hat, and purse of "Anna blue," a shade a trifle lighter than navy.

Simple Knit Outfits Give Way to Frills

Feminine Details Appear on New Models.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

According to authoritative and lengthy lists of statistics, knitted dress buyers are legion . . . evidently the colorful casual charm of all the new models will add just a few more enthusiasts to the already appreciative collectors, for the newer arrivals are stunning. Strictly simple costumes have vanished, these new things are as feminine and attractively detailed as any afternoon silk crêpe frock. Puffed sleeves, lacy necklines, unusual blouse tops are featured with every possible color and color combination.

Silk boucles are not new, but the intriguing new styles to be found in some fashion wise shops are decidedly different from any you have seen . . . lovely soft blues, dusty reds, almond greens, smoky grays as well as practical and smart black, brown and navy combined with contrasting light colored tops are unusual in color and startling and eye filling as to sleeves, slim silhouette and patterns.

You can find some silk boucles with long sleeves and some with sleeves that have a gathered frill at the end of the three-quarter length sleeve to match the frill around the surplice closing.

Another thing you'll appreciate about these silk or knitted boucles is the information that stretching and bulging proclivities are well under control . . . that is, this troublesome weakness of any knitted garment is minimized to the last degree in the new 1933 models and, of course, every shopper should know that these knitted beauties can be reconditioned most successfully for a very small sum.

You'll see some extremely wearable knitted boucles (not silk) with hip length capes . . . perfect travel togs for any one! These costumes are available in three or four pieces . . . a skirt, jacket and matching cape, or a dress and short jacket and cape. High colored sweaters of good contrasting color can be worn under the separate jacket costumes with great distinction.

Lots of these boucles have been knitted in good looking tweed patterns, stunning black and white diagonals, brown and white stripes, navy and gray broken checks and small plaids as well as all the flat, one colored ensembles in new fashion colors such as sapphire blue, battleship gray, robin-hood green, garnet and some audacious browns flecked with vivid orange and white.

Matching hats or berets that can be slapped over your head in record time are usually tempting buys for the shopper who likes matched accessories, and for this same shopper there are clever handbags of bumpy, nubby, fabrics of many mixtures and plain colors, with wooden clasps and frames.

Simplicity Will Mark Wedding of Florence Higinbotham April 5

Ceremony Will Be Read at Old Homestead of Family at Joliet; Many Parties for Bride-to-Be.

BY JUDITH CASS.

WHEN Miss Florence Higinbotham exchanges wedding vows at 4 o'clock the afternoon of April 5 with John Skelton Williams, the Higinbotham, the Crane, and the Patterson families will gather in a setting dignified by generations of Higinbothams.

For Harlowarden, the Joliet home of Miss Higinbotham's father, Harlow D. Higinbotham, is part of the original farm on which her grandfather, Harlow Niles Higinbotham, president of Chicago's first World's Fair and a partner of Marshall Field, was born in 1838. In later years this pioneer Chicagoan built his well known residence at 29th street and Michigan avenue, but until his death maintained strong attachment for his Joliet birthplace, to which his son returned to make his home.

As the late afternoon sun plays through the west windows of the large house, Miss Higinbotham will be married in a ceremony marked by simplicity. She is to be attended by Mrs. Hubert L. Williams of Detroit, sister-in-law of her fiancé, and by her cousin, Mrs. William A. Robinson (the former Florence Crane), if she has returned from her honeymoon. Miss Higinbotham expects word from Mrs. Robinson this week.

Little Miss Margaret Winston, daughter of the Charles Winstons of Joliet, and Jean Williams, daughter of the Hubert Williamses, will be the flower girls and William Sims Metzel and his young brother, Jeffrey Metzel of Chevy Chase, Md., will help stretch the ribbons. The two little Metzel boys are grandsons of Admiral Hutchinson I. Cone. It was Mrs. Cone who served the late Mrs. Higinbotham as matron of honor in her wedding at Norfolk, Va.

Will Reside in Richmond.

After her marriage Miss Higinbotham will renew acquaintance with many of her mother's old Virginia friends since she is to move to Mr. Williams' home city of Richmond. Mr. Williams' father was an eminent citizen of Virginia's capital and assistant secretary of the treasury during the world war.

In the few weeks intervening between now and April 5 Miss Higinbotham is to be entertained at a round of luncheons and dinner parties. Today she will receive everything from a dish towel to an egg beater at the kitchen shower Mrs. Kinney Smith and her daughter, Mrs. Hyde Gillette, are giving for her at Mrs. Smith's apartment, 1120 Lake Shore drive. On March 8 Mrs. William K. Myers is to have a linen and lingerie shower for her and some time between these two dates Miss Elaine Blackman, with whom Miss Higinbotham has worked in the Junior league's children's theater, will have a party.

Rostislavs Insist on Giving Party.

Prince and Princess Rostislav will be an absent host and hostess Friday night to the twenty friends they had invited to be their guests at the dinner dance for the benefit of the Russian fund for war disabled, but they insisted at a committee meeting yesterday afternoon at Miss Frieda Foltz's that plans for the affair go ahead and that their own personal sorrow be not allowed to interfere with anything that will help so many who are in need.

The prince's father, Grand Duke Alexander, died on Sunday at Mentone, France, and so the Rostislavs and his younger brother, Prince Vassili, and his wife, Princess Natasha, who had planned to come from Cincinnati for the party, will not be "among those present," which will lend a touch of sadness to the affair, for the Rostislavs are among the most popular young Russians in society and last summer Vassili and his lovely young bride made many friends while they were visiting the Rostislavs here.

The dinner dance is to be at the Maisonette Russe, 2800 Sheridan road, and William Madlener is in charge of reservations. There is to be a program of special entertainment, one number of which will be a song composed by Col. Voedovsky and played by him. The singer of the song has not been selected.

Announce Lenten Lecture Series

Always one of the best attended lecture courses is the one for the benefit of the Convent of the Cenacle arranged by the Chapel Guild of the Cenacle. This year the first lecture will be given next Monday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. William H. Wildes, 1500 Lake Shore drive; the second one the following Monday at the Lake Shore Drive hotel through the courtesy of Mrs. Henry C. Murphy and Miss Gertrude McCarthy; the third on March 20 at Mrs. David F. Bremner's residence, 1430 Lake Shore drive; the fourth on March 27 at the residence of Edward I. Cudahy, 1501 State parkway, and the last on April 3 at Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody's, 1525 State parkway.

The late Mrs. Cudahy started these Lenten lectures some years ago and up until her death last summer was the head of the guild. Prominent Catholic clergy and laymen give the lectures. Mrs. William Roy Carney is president of the guild now and Mrs. George B. Crowley is the lecture secretary.

Cards were out yesterday for the afternoon of opera the members of the American Opera society are to have Thursday at the home of Mrs. Hal Crompton Bangs, 1336 North State street. Henry Hadley's one act musical drama "Bianca" is to be given by a cast including Alice Phillips, Kaf de Vermond, William Phillips, David Johnson, and Rex Cushing. Miss Emily B. Larned, president of the society, will be hostess and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde, Mrs. Frank J. Loesch, Mrs. John H. Coulter, and Mrs. Henry H. Reuss will assist at the tea table.

Today Mrs. Bangs will preside at the tea table at the meeting the Evanston and North Shore Kentucky society is to hold at the home of Mrs. William Herbert Avery at 1217 Michigan avenue, Evanston. The Kentucky society was founded by the late Mrs. Eugene Buffington and supports the Hindman school in the Kentucky mountains.

Church to Hold Spring Festival

Miss Emeline Bush will preside over a Spanish patio and Miss Susan Folansbee will sell flowers at the spring festival and bazaar the Woman's guild of the New England Congregational church is to hold from 3 to 9 o'clock today at the parish house. There will be tea at 4 and dinner at 6. The hostesses include Mrs. Porter Heaps, Mrs. Theodore C. Hume, and Mrs. Harold Eldridge.

The Montague Ferrys of Winnetka will have front row seats at the annual Mirror production, "Take a Look," Friday and Saturday evenings at Mandel hall at the University of Chicago, for their daughter, Miss Phyllis Ferry, is to play one of the leading rôles. Robert Graf, son of the Robert Grafs of Woodlawn avenue, is another who will be seen behind the footlights in this play, which depicts campus life from the first World's Fair through next Saturday's presidential inauguration.

Assisting with the business of the show are Miss Margaret Joan Washburne, daughter of the Carleton Washburnes of Winnetka, and Miss Molly Mason, daughter of Max Mason, the former president of the university. In the list of sponsors are Harold Swift, Mrs. Howard W. Fenton, and Dr. and Mrs. Fay Cooper-Cole.

Tea Today for Irish Players

Today each one of the Irish Players is going to pin a green carnation in his lapel and sip tea with the members of the English Speaking union at the Palmer House. Mrs. Arthur Meeker will introduce at least three or four of the Thespians who will in turn relate some of their experiences on the stage.

And on Thursday these same three or four will tell still other stories to the members of the Chicago College club, for the players—all 14 of them—are to be the club's guests at luncheon in the large dining room of the clubhouse at 196 Delaware place. Early reservations indicate that there are to be many parties, small and large, on this occasion.

Mrs. E. Ogden Ketting [the former Elinor Farwell] is expected home any day from her extended sojourn abroad. After her arrival in New York a week ago she went down to Charleston, S. C., for a short visit with her parents, the Arthur Lincoln Farwells, who are vacationing there this winter. Mr. Ketting came direct to Chicago, arriving last Wednesday. He is staying at the Farwell home in Ritchie court.

The latest cruise planners are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Ashcraft Jr., who are taking their daughter, Virginia, with them on a trip through the West Indies. Miss Barbara Eldridge, one of the season's debutantes, is a schoolmate of Miss Ashcraft's and she is joining them. They will sail on the Mauretania March 18 from New York.

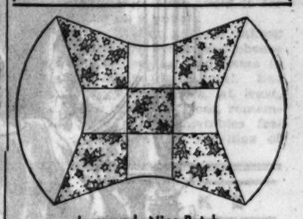
Opportunity Here to Develop Novel Color Contrasts



Improved Nine-Patch.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Simply by a stretching of the four corners of the basic nine patch pattern and the addition of melon shaped pieces at two opposite sides we have what is known as the "Improved Nine Patch." Quilt enthusiasts will recognize this as another ring design. There is plenty of opportunity here for showing originality in color.

For a pattern of this quilt design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street.

FOLLY ISLAND

By Wallace Irwin

SYNOPSIS.

Bart Burgess is marooned in a catboat on Peconic bay, fifty miles from his Long Island home in Wyattville. His companion, Ingalls Frederick Warren, spoiled child of a new-made fortune, known as "Nosey Ingy," rows to town and sends Bart help and taxies home. A girl in a canoe invites Bart over to her family's island. Bart learns that she is one of the Bayleys, who have lived in seclusion on the island fifteen years. The father travels. He invites the girl, Alice, to visit him in Wyattville. Less than a week later Trevor Burgess, Bart's father, dies suddenly from a heart attack. He confesses in a letter left for Bart to being a bigamist. The Bayleys of Folly island are his second family. They know him as Matthew Bayley. He asks Bart, for his invalid mother's sake, to guard the secret, and leaves a fortune to provide for the Bayleys. Bart calls on Mrs. Bayley, posing as a lawyer, and finds her a lovely woman, not the harridan he expected. Bart is happy to learn from her mother that Alice isn't Matthew Bayley's daughter. But to keep her from visiting his home and seeing his father's pictures is now a problem. When Bart realizes he loves Alice he resolves to stay away from Folly island. He sees a lot of Lora Sackett, a distant relative and recent divorcee and soon finds himself unexpectedly engaged. The Bayleys visit New York and Bart sees them. Ingy Warren has been visiting the island and has invited Alice to Wyattville. Bart tells Alice of his engagement. Alice and her mother are guests of the Warrens for the annual Wyattville flower show. Alice wins first prize. Mrs. Burgess has the Bayleys in for tea.

INSTALLMENT XXXVIII.

THE REVEALING PHOTOGRAPH.

"Folly Island must be a charming place to grow up on," said Mrs. Burgess with an admiring look at Alice. "How many have you, Mrs. Bayley?"

"Three."

"All girls?" Still admiring Alice, and in mother's look there was a little jealousy.

"No. Two of them are boys."

"Alice is the veteran of the family," said Ingy, the showman. "You're rather an old lady, aren't you, Alice?"

Alice showed her dimple for him and replied, "I was eighteen in July."

Why did Aunt Augusta take up the cross-examination at this point?

"You're a Bostonian, aren't you, Mrs. Bayley?"

"No." With a tilt of the brows, telling the grand old virgin to mind her own business. "Mr. Bayley and I came from New York originally."

She who had told Bart that she had only seen New York once, going through. Aunt Augusta was arranging herself for another impertinent question, dealing with family origins, no doubt, when Lora, irrelevant as usual, broke the spell.

"Mrs. Burgess, you should have seen the flower arrangements. Even my hardened soul was touched. All massed together in ancient Roman sugar bowls. Mamma Poindexter went in heavy for Grecian urns. Wyattville's going awfully Greenwich Village."

Stealthily he was watching Aunt Augusta and Alice; over in the corner they stood apart, leaning against a wide table where the family trophies were displayed. Why were their heads close together?

This diverted Aunt Augusta, who explained, "Mrs. Poindexter's exhibit of the new tipped single dahlias, the Avis, the Doris, and the Jacqueline, was as fine as anything I ever saw at a national flower show. The Grecian urns were a happy thought."

"I'm so sorry I couldn't see them. A woman who grows flowers is usually vain about them," said Mrs. Burgess. "Last year at the early show I grouped my anemones in Venetian glass vases. My husband brought me quite a collection. Would they amuse you?"

"I should love to see them," said Mrs. Bayley.

Bart kept his seat, but he had a sensation of springing up, defying them all. The Venetian glass was in the drawing room, right under his father's portrait!

"Mother," he said, too dramatically for the trivial situation, "I'm afraid—afraid you can't get into the drawing room just now." He had arisen foolishly.

"Why not, dear?"

"Somebody's locked the door." Snatching at anything. "I tried it just now and it was locked."

"Who could have done that?" asked Mrs. Burgess helplessly. Unconsciously Aunt Augusta came to the rescue.

"Probably Ella. She's morbidly afraid of burglars. When those men came in to mend the electric bell——"

Mrs. Burgess was ringing for Ella. Bart, saying something inane about finding the key, fairly ran down the hall. The key, which was in the drawing room door, he turned softly and put in his pocket. When he came back to the sitting room he was weak as a man who has been struggling uphill. The tea party had arisen now, and a group was at one of the broad windows gazing out on the formal garden. Mrs. Burgess was scolding Ella, commanding her to go look for the key. And who could have locked the door if she hadn't?

Now Mrs. Burgess had joined the people at the window and, vivaciously chatting, was explaining about her Egyptian lotus. . . .

But Bart's eyes were not for her. Stealthily he was watching Aunt Augusta and Alice. Over in the corner they stood apart, leaning against a wide table where the family trophies were displayed. Why were their heads so close together? Already half guessing, Bart saw how carefully Alice held up a small silver frame, and how intently her eyes were studying it.

He could not see her face just then, and her question was a whisper. But Aunt Augusta's reply came like thunder to his ears:

"Yes, dear. And don't you think Bart looks like his father?"

Bart was standing in the door, but she didn't raise her head to compare him with the photograph. Her slim figure drooped a little, then straightened. Methodically she pressed down the velvet support at the back of the frame and laid the photograph face down on the table.

Like a man chained in a nightmare, unable to move or speak, Bart Burgess saw her walk in front of him toward the group by the window; her face was like fire, her eyes staring straight ahead of her. She went over to where Ingy was standing, and together they gazed out on the garden. Fool, fool that I am, Bart's voiceless mouth was saying. . . . Then strength came back to him so that he could go over to the table and whisk the photograph into a drawer. . . .

In his agony of spirit he felt that now he must tell her the truth, bawl it out before the whole roomful. Then more sanely he crossed over to Alice and said, "I want to talk to you."

But her eyes, full of pain and deeply scornful, looked blindly at him, then turned toward Ingy Warren.

Bart had to say it now. "It isn't what you think, Alice—it isn't——"

"Ingy," she said faintly, "I'm not feeling very well. I wonder if you could take me back to your house?"

"Sure I can. You bet. Awfully sorry you're not feeling fit." Ingy had taken her arm, as if to save her from falling.

But Bart was going on doggedly, "Alice, you mustn't go now! Alice, only let me——"

Mrs. Bayley must have heard them, for she came quickly over and asked with a worried look, "What's the matter, darling? Aren't you well?"

"I'm all right, mother—only—I'm tired, I think. Please, everybody—O, let me alone."

Poor Alice had become the center of helpful curiosity. Mrs. Burgess was for her lying down. Aunt Augusta proposed headache cologne; but Ingy Warren, with a mighty little gesture, was leading her toward the door.

"Good-by," said Mrs. Bayley, not too worried to be amiable. "I hope you'll forgive us and let us come and see your garden before we go. O, Alice will be quite all right."

Mother's mournful regrets that they hadn't seen her garden or her Venetian glass, and her thanks for the lovely prize winners they had brought her. . . . Mrs. Bayley was admirable, a tower of calm. Could you imagine her just a few hours ago looking into the cruel eyes of Mrs. Farnham and going suddenly pale? Now as she went down the steps she carried tightly, almost affectionately against her breast, a large silver cup with the name of Trevor Burgess inscribed across it. . . . For the dahlias which a man named Bayley had brought to Folly Island.

To Air Thoughts Is Safety Valve to 12 Year Old

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

The head of a well known school—in fact, the one I referred to yesterday—was talking recently to a group of people about education. Then gradually he switched to the subject of what goes on in children's minds. He said—what some of us of course realize—that children have an inner life of which many parents and teachers never gain a glimpse.

This is very true, but is only recognized by those who are "kin" enough with children to have caught the glimpse—who have been close enough to be admitted to some of their deeper feelings and anxieties.

"I'm sorry for the 12 year olds," said this school principal. "There are so many things that bother them at that age. And most of them are things they never talk about.

"I make many occasions to talk to my 12 year olds. And I find that at that age one of the things they do a lot of thinking about is dying. They dig deep and far. The dying of the body, what happens to it; the soul, this life and another life—underneath the everyday behavior of a normal, happy child these things are stirring and disturbing him. He wants an answer."

Sometimes we can give the children we are close to the answer that will help them in many of their wonderings and fears. Sometimes we cannot—often because we've failed to find it ourselves. But I am sure it helps them. I know it is a wholesome relief to them if they can talk all these things out. At least, you can be their safety valve, even if you feel unable to answer their more profound queries with a sure touch.

How Filmland Picks Marriage That Is Happy

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 27.—Some of the others at the Fox studio were discussing the new French star Henri Garat, who is playing opposite Janet Gaynor in "Adorable."

"We can't build up any romantic publicity about him to interest the American public in him," one said, "because Garat is not only married, but in love with his own wife.'

"How do you know that?" another asked.

"Well, he doesn't make a public fuss over her or tell everybody how happy they are together. He just takes being married to her as a matter of course and that's a sure sign a married couple are in love."

"The Finger Man," an original screen story, has been sold to Warner-First National by Rosalind Shaffer, formerly of Chicago, Tribune writer in Los Angeles for nine years. Mrs. Shaffer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Keating, 301 Wesley avenue, Oak Park.

Leslie Howard, who hasn't worked at the Warner lot since "Outward Bound" is now set for the main part in "Fellow Prisoner" and the chances are that Douglas Fairbanks Jr., who was in "Outward Bound" with Howard, will also collaborate in the present film.

Caped Shoulders Add an Interesting Accent to Junior Girl's School Dress

JUNIOR GIRL'S DRESS.

Caped shoulders give a chic effect to this practical dress for the classroom. If you want something very smart, use a rabbit's hair woolen in a light navy blue for the jumper and make the guimpe in a vivid red novelty piqué.

The pattern, No. 3418, comes in sizes 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1⅞ yards of 35-inch material for the jumper and 1¼ yards of 39-inch material for the blouse.

How to Order Clotilde Patterns.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin [coin preferred; wrap it carefully] for each number, and address your order to Clotilde Patterns, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central station, New York City.

Note—Clotilde patterns are made in New York exclusively for THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE. They are perfect in fit, up to date in style, and the easiest of all patterns to use.

GIVE YOUR STOMACH ONE HOUR'S HELP

That "lump" you feel an hour or so after eating, is a symptom of slow stomach. This very common condition can be remedied.

Instead of taking soda, or anything else you must take the rest of your life, try some diapepsin. Each tablet saves half an hour's digestion time. If your stomach is one hour slow in emptying, just take two tablets of diapepsin and all that gas, sourness, and distress after meals will be gone.

One box of Pape's Diapepsin will test your stomach and correct your digestion time. Then eat anything you like, and it will digest like crackers and milk! Keep on with diapepsin a few days, until the stomach is doing its work without need of help. When it slows down, take diapepsin again; it's good for the digestive system and can't hurt you.

Pape's Diapepsin may end all your "stomach trouble" and is certainly worth trying!

That Good Night Kiss.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going with a girl for two months. Is it proper to kiss her good night?

"BUNKY."

What do you think yourself, Bunky? It's rather nice to meet a girl who won't be a kissing bug, wouldn't you say?

BEAUTY ANSWERS

If there is any question pertaining to beauty and personal hygiene upon which you wish advice write to Antoinette Donnelly, The Chicago Tribune. Enclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

LUCY: DON'T START WETTING your hair like that at fourteen. Hair specialists agree that daily wetting of the hair without immediate drying contributes to hair losses later. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for my brushing and massaging instructions.

Unusual Meat Parts Provide Cheap Protein

BY MARY MEADE.

Some ten days ago we talked meats—went into all the facts and cookery tips about old and young beef cuts and mutton, lamb, and pork pieces. But we didn't quite get around to what a small friend of mine with a mechanical daddy calls "spare parts." You know—liver, heart, sweetbreads, kidneys, tongue, and so on. And yet these spare, fancy, or unusual meat parts, as they are most often known in the cook books, can serve quite as important a place in meals as the most orthodox chops and steaks.

And on top of that they oftener than not may be bought at economy prices and become big boosters in the job of getting muscle and blood building foods and extra doses of vitamins and mineral into the diet at little expense.

Once, before folk began to realize what a health hustler liver, for instance, was, that richly flavored organ could be had in the shops for a few cents for the best calf's liver. Nowadays the demand for liver has boosted the price on that from the young animals, but beef liver and even pork liver is still low priced and even more nutritious than that from the beef youngsters.

LIVER IN BAKED ONIONS.

5 slices bacon
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash paprika
6 medium sized mild onions

Scald the liver in boiling water for two minutes. Skin and put through the food chopper. Mince the bacon slices and fry in a skillet until crisp. Add the liver, celery, and seasoning to the bacon and blend well. Remove the outer skins of the onions, scoop out the insides, leaving good sturdy shells, and stuff each onion with the liver mixture. Sprinkle the tops with buttered breadcrumbs and bake in a slow over in a pan containing a little water (275 degrees F.) until the onions are tender—about one hour.

Sweetbreads offer themselves as another treat that deserves an introduction at your house some night. No matter how they are to be used the first preparation is about the same. Here's the way: Soak the sweetbreads in slightly acidulated water for two hours. For this a little lemon juice or vinegar should be added to the water. Then drain out and plunge into boiling salted water and cook for about 20 minutes. Drain off this water and pour on cold water. When cooled sufficiently cut out the membranes and trim off any unsightly parts. Now your sweetbreads are ready for use in any of varied ways. Here is one that I think is tip-top.

BRAISED SWEETBREADS WITH VEGETABLES.

1 pair sweetbreads
¼ cup carrots, cut in small strips
½ cup celery, cut likewise
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 cups rich meat stock or soup
Salt and pepper to taste

Blanch the sweetbreads as directed above. Place the carrots, celery, and onions in a heavy frying pan or kettle and arrange the sweetbreads broken into pieces, over the top. Add the seasoned stock or soup and cover, letting the dish simmer over a slow fire for one hour, adding more stock when necessary. Take out the sweetbreads and place in a hot serving dish. Bubble the vegetables and stock until somewhat reduced and then pour over the sweetbreads and serve spanking hot.

Kidneys are good from either young beef animals or from lamb. They also need a bit of preparation before getting them into the recipe proper. Here is the simplest method: Split the kidneys and remove the large ducts and the skin from the outside. Now wash them under running water and put to soak in cold water for four hours, changing the water frequently. Next, drop into freshly boiled water and let stand in it, covered, for half an hour. Drain out and go over the kidneys again, removing stray veins.

Delicious broiled kidneys—either lamb or veal—are to be prepared in this way: Take the kidneys—split, cleaned, and blanched as directed above—dip them in melted butter or salad oil, sprinkle with salt and pepper and broil under a moderate flame or on a top stove broiler for from 6 to 12 minutes, or until tender and brown. Serve on hot buttered toast and with curls of broiled bacon and parsley garnish.

White Accessories a Touch of Spring

Miss Louise Dewey, pouring tea at a party for Miss Paula Wilms shortly before she was married to Malcolm Siborne Henderson, and Miss Barbara Graf, waiting to take Miss Dewey's place in front of the urn. Like so many smart young women Miss Dewey and Miss Graf are satisfying somewhat that urge for new spring clothes that attacks every woman this time of year by adding crisp white accessories to their dark frocks. MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

(Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.)

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

INSPECTOR KELLEY'S ROOKIE DAYS.

"Here's one on me, Joe," chuckled Inspector Kelley as he and Prof. Fordney sat before the fireplace.

"My first assignment as a plain-clothes-man was to bring back to New York, from Toledo, 'Spark' Evans who was wanted as a witness in the Blaine murder. I didn't have a photograph but I had a good description and a tip-off that I'd find him there at the Shoremont hotel.

"The next night in the dining room of the Shoremont, I spotted two, blond, dapper, perfectly groomed young fellows sitting alone at a small table. I called the manager and with a nod in their direction asked if that was Mr. Evans. He assured me it was and said a few words of praise in the fellow's behalf. Crossing to the table, I held out my hand and inquired, "Mr. Evans?"

"The fellow pushed back his chair, gave me a hearty shake and said, 'That's right. And whom have I the pleasure of addressing?'"

"I flashed my badge and told him we had just thirty minutes to make the train for New York where he was wanted in the Blaine murder case. He didn't bat an eye! The other lad went to the station and saw us off.

"I wired headquarters that I was bringing Evans in. When we walked into the chief's office the next night, before I could say a word, he shoved a telegram under my nose. It stated that THREE HOURS AFTER I LEFT TOLEDO EVANS HAD BEEN ARRESTED THERE IN A HOLDUP!"

WHY DID THE CHIEF THREATEN TO DEMOTE KELLEY?

Display Meteorites That Hint of Life on Other Planets

Meteorites or "stone passengers" from outer space, which Dean Charles B. Lipman of the University of California has used in experiments which suggest that life exists elsewhere than on the earth, have been added to the collection in the Field Museum of Natural History.

Dean Lipman's experiments seem to indicate, according to an article in the current issue of the Field Museum News, the presence of extraterrestrial bacteria on other planets. Dr. Oliver C. Farrington, curator of geology at the museum, wrote the article.

The little Girl who wouldn't

EAT

When a youngster has no appetite, it's probably due to stasis. A little syrup of figs will soon correct this condition—then watch the child eat.

Nature knows best! Never coax a child to eat! Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite—get rid of stasis. Children who don't eat are sluggish. Not to correct this is inexcusable. It is so easy to do, if you will only use the "California treatment." Read what it is doing for listless children in every part of the country!

When appetite fails, tongue is coated white, eyes are a bilious yellow, don't give small children any constipating cathartic that drains the system and weakens twenty feet of tender bowels! California syrup of figs is the only "medicine" they need!

Sluggishness ended in 2 Weeks!

That girl or boy with a furry tongue and a bad breath should not be dosed with salts! California syrup of figs will gently stimulate the colon muscles—and the child you used to coax to eat will fairly devour his food, digest it, gain weight.

Try the California treatment! Begin tonight, with enough of the pure syrup of figs to cleanse the colon thoroughly. Give less tomorrow, then every other day, or twice a week until the child's appetite, digestion, weight, complexion, tell you the stasis is gone.

Be sure to get the real California syrup of figs. Any druggist has it, all bottled, with directions. It's a natural, vegetable laxative. Just as good for babes of two years as boys of ten. They all love its taste!

NOTICE TO MOTHERS

There are imitations of California Syrup of Figs and those who would sell you some substitute even when a child's health is concerned. Don't ever take any bottle that is not plainly labeled CALIFORNIA.

April Wedding for Florence Higinbotham

Simplicity Will Be Rule at Ceremony.

Carrell Elting) is staying at the Drake, since the apartment her parents (the Howard Eltings) have taken this winter doesn't provide for guests. Mrs. Donner, who came from her home in Buffalo unexpectedly, will spend most of her time seeing old friends she hasn't visited since she became the bride of the late Joseph Donner in 1925.

Now that Henry Bartholomay is feeling a bit recovered from his pneumonia, his younger daughter, Mrs. Simeon B. Chapin, the former Elsa Bartholomay, is returning to Greenwich, N. Y., tomorrow.

News Notes of Winter Travel

Mrs. Charles E. Brown and her little son and his nurse left last Thursday for the warmer climate of Havana and they won't be at home again until the first of May. Miss Betty Brown, Miss Paula Uihlein, and Miss Jane Brooks are all in Bermuda and they are returning north in April.

Bruce Willis Strong left yesterday to join Mrs. Strong and their infant daughter for the month of March in Palm Beach. Mrs. Strong has been with her parents, the Franklin Millers, the last several weeks at their house in Sea Spray avenue.

When the Bruce Scotts of Evanston had a letter the other day from their daughter, Roberta, a senior at Vassar, they learned that she is one of a dozen girls to have been appointed to the commencement committee.

Miss Alice Castleman, daughter of the James P. Castlemans of Louisville, Ky., motored up to Chicago with her father last Wednesday and is spending ten days here with her old schoolmate, Miss Gene Bucklin, daughter of the Vail R. Bucklins.

Two more baby girls! The Rae S. Logans of Winnetka are rejoicing over the arrival of Baby Katherine, already 12 days old. Mrs. Logan is the former Frances Dummer, daughter of Mrs. William Frances Dummer.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Mable Clare Madsen, daughter of the Adolph H. Madsens of Austin, to Dr. Edward Powers Norcross in the Thorndike Hilton chapel at the University of Chicago on Saturday, Feb. 25.

Movie Closeup

The manager of the Universal Chicago office tells me that I have been misinformed regarding the censoring of "Private Jones." It seems that the government cuts ordered for the film have not as yet come through from Washington, and that the print as it stands suffered only two small censorial eliminations.

Stars of Chicago's theaters and night clubs, including Russ Columbo, Paul Ash, and Al Kvale and a number of other celebrities, will participate in the festivities at the film relief ball to be held next Saturday night at the Medinah Athletic club. The general public is invited to attend, and the entire proceeds will go to the needy of the film and theater industry.

Real Lace Makes Wedding Gowns of the Fashionable French Brides

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Brides who have named the fatal day for shortly after Easter will be interested to know that some of the prettiest French brides are wearing wedding gowns of lace this spring. Lace, when it's real, is apt to cost real money, but that is one reason why it is so fashionable. The bridal veil of real lace is a classic, but the gown made of the lace is something different.

The Molyneux bride's dress, shown today, is made of genuine point lace in the color of old ivory. The long sleeves and the yoke which ends in a high, draped collar are of ivory georgette, but from the bust to the tip of the long train the rest of the frock is of lace, that is laid over georgette to hold it in shape.

To go with this dress Molyneux makes the veil of ivory colored tulle and sets point lace motifs in at intervals to carry out the faerie effect. The veil is attached to the back of a fitted cap made of point lace. The bouquet is of white roses instead of the usual orange blossoms or lilies.

Girl Wonders If Admiration Is Same as Love

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She sees a lot of her suitor. She admires him and knows he will carry out his promise to do everything in the world to make her happy. Their tastes are alike. When he is with her she likes him. When he's out of her sight he's out of mind. His kisses leave her cold. She'd just as soon he'd leave out that part of the program. Yet he's kind, considerate, ambitious—and crazy about the girl.

"Maybe," she muses, "being so sure of him makes me feel the way I do."

Maybe so. Maybe not. Maybe there's everything there but the divine spark that knows no doubt, the one ingredient that makes for understanding, sympathy, forgiveness, and sacrifice in the bonds of matrimony.

Admiration is good. Compatibility of tastes is good, also. Not warming to the suitor's kisses—not good. Not thinking of him when he is gone—not good.

"I am afraid," Jean explains, "that if I marry him I shall miss the greatest thing in life—love."

You probably shall miss it, Jean, if you've made up your mind now that there is a void. It may happen that you have passion all mixed up with the bigger emotion. It may be, too, that you can't bring to this union the heart, the emotions, the understanding, the appreciation of nobility of character that could very easily develop into the Big Emotion.

The question is how many women of all the married ones we know whose marriages are successful have known the divine passion for what it is dreamed by dreamers. We'd wager most of them have gone into the union with a deep capacity for love within themselves and admiration of their man's character and kindness. And found that love is not a magic potion distilled by the gods—but something grown out of faith, loyalty, and a warm heart.

Drink Milk as a Cocktail to Good Looks

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I want you women to get in on the new beauty movement—namely, applying remedies from the inside. Keep up the good external work, but let's be more sensible about beauty. Let's not go on acting on the principle that if the outside of the house is all painted and whitewashed, the inside will take care of itself.

Let's take up the subject of milk first. How much do you take into your system a day? Counting what you add to your cereals, to your vegetable dressings, do you get a pint? I'll wager there are untold women who never take a straight drink of milk from one end of the year to another.

Milk is too excellent a food to be snubbed this way. It is the best source of calcium we have. In fact, it is difficult to get enough calcium into your system for bone and teeth preservation and general health advantages without milk. If you don't take a pint a day you're holding out on yourself on a first rate beauty aid.

Children should have a quart a day. Adults are so much the better for the same amount. It may be disguised in chocolate, malted milk, or added to cereal preparations.

You needn't be afraid about its fat-making properties. Simply count the milk as food, which it is, and add it in to your day's limited total, if you are reducing. But don't avoid it for fear of putting on a pound.

You can be fit but not fat taking butter and milk and cream and cheese—if you count these as food items to be measured in the day's total. Eat two servings of vegetables, at least, per day. This beside potatoes, remember. Eat raw, leafy vegetables frequently. And have two servings of fruit a day.

MAKE YOUR TOILET as clean as NEW

You don't have to scrub and scour. Clean up your toilet without hand work . . . without hard work. Do it in a jiffy with Sani-Flush. Banish stains and film. Kill germs and odors. See the bowl as bright and clean as the day it was new.

Only sprinkle a little Sani-Flush in the toilet. (Follow directions on the can.) Then flush. And the work is done. Even the hidden trap that a brush can't reach is purified. Sani-Flush can't harm plumbing.

At grocery, drug and hardware stores, 25c. (Another use for Sani-Flush—cleaning automobile radiators. See directions on can.)

New York Herald Tribune
230 W. 41st Street
New York, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:—

You should know how exceedingly well pleased the Grace Line is with the Color Gravure page advertisement that we ran in the November 27th issue of the New York Herald Tribune, featuring Grace Line service and our four new liners.

No advertisement we have ever used developed quite so much interest and comment as this Herald Tribune Color Gravure page. The coupon response was immediate, unexpectedly large and tremendously satisfactory. Particularly pleasing was the high quality of this response.

Our new liner, the S. S. Santa Rosa, which sailed from New York to California on its maiden voyage with all cabins occupied, and the S. S. Santa Paula, our second new ship, due to make her maiden voyage on January 7, 1933 has been completely sold out for over a week now and the waiting list growing daily. This you may be sure is an excellent example of the power of selective advertising.

We are immensely pleased with the great result producing power of Herald Tribune Color Gravure advertising as so forcefully demonstrated by our use of this November 27th page advertisement.

Sincerely yours,

GRACE LINE

In addition to Colorgravure the New York Herald Tribune offers color pages to advertisers in the Sunday Magazine Section, in the Comic Section and in the literary section "Books."

If it can fill a ship with eager, joyous travellers it can sell a food product, or a toilet article or a piece of household equipment. Not only did Grace Line prove the amazing results of Herald Tribune Colorgravure — but so did Yardley & Co. and Jello and Borden's and others.

Herald Tribune Colorgravure is new! It strikes a fresh appeal. It portrays your product in a life-like, alluring, desirable manner. It compels women's response — and men's support.

Here in New York, where 10% of all America lives and where 14% of all retail products are sold, is a country in itself. Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Ohio State's rangy basketball team increased its hold on first place in the Big Ten race tonight with a 29 to 17 victory over Purdue in a rough and tumble game.

Ohio had command of the game from the start and held a 16 to 7 lead at the half.

The Boilermakers seemingly lost their basket eyes, for while they got as many shots with the Buckeyes, their attempts were usually wild. The single exception was Norman Cottom, who scored five field goals and three free throws that gave him the high point honors of the game. Cottom was the only Purdue player to make a basket.

WILDCATS BEAT INDIANA

Northwestern's last half rush defeated Indiana by a score of 45 to 32 last night at Patten gym. The Wildcats were trailing, 24 to 17, at half time.

Capt. Joe Reiff of the Wildcats, with 15 points, progressed toward his goal of breaking Johnny Wooden's Big Ten scoring record. Reiff now has 147 points. In Northwestern's last Big Ten battle of the season at Minneapolis Saturday he must score 8 to beat Wooden's mark of 154.

Elmer Johnson, taking well timed passes from his teammates, poured in a succession of tip-in shots. He collected 16 points to take individual honors for the evening and boost his second place total in the Big Ten to 107.

Manske, Rosenfeld Star.

Kehrt and Hodson gave the Wildcats and their followers a scare in the first half, Kehrt connecting from all parts of the floor. Hodson drove under the basket and either threw at the hoop or passed to Kehrt.

Manske and Rosenfeld turned the tide at the start of the second half and put the Wildcats back in the running. Manske looped in a long shot and Rosenfeld followed with a free throw. Reiff scored a basket and Rosenfeld sank a long shot from the side to even the score at 24-24. From then on it was Reiff to Johnson or Johnson to Reiff for a basket. Manske and Rosenfeld continued to cover the floor effectively and the Hoosiers were held to two free throws during the first 17 minutes of the period.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Michigan beat Minnesota in the last two minutes of play here tonight, 21 to 18, after the Gophers had played an uphill game to tie the score at 18 all.

The Wolverines held a 16 to 7 lead at half time, but could not hit the basket during the second period. A field goal by Ted Petoskey, the only one scored by the Wolverines in the

PARTY OF SECOND PART MUST WORK TO REACH CUBS

Late Comers to Arrive at Catalina Today.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., Feb. 27.—Members of the second squad of Chicago Cubs, due at this port tomorrow noon, will have to step right into things in order to be ready to play baseball contests Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday. The Thursday and Friday games will be intraclub affairs—tuneups for the William Wrigley Jr. memorial clashes with the New York Giants over the week-end.

Mark Koenig, whose spurt as a sub for Shortstop Bill Jurges last year was a heavy factor in Cub success, though his crippled left wrist collapsed before the clinching of the pennant, arrived on the boat today, 24 hours ahead of time.

Koenig Comes Back.

Koenig, salvaged from the minors as a $10,000 bargain shortly after Jurges was incapacitated last July, played in 33 games for the Cubs, made 36 hits for 52 bases, for an average of .352.

From Koenig one might easily gather that .353 is his normal hitting speed in National league competition, but as a matter of fact there was only one previous year in seven years in the American league that Koenig came near reaching .300. His major league grand average prior to last year was .278.

On his arrival here today Koenig was confident that his trick wrist would hold together this year and that he would be able to win the regular shortstop berth. While no one in camp is inclined to harp on Koenig's misfortune, Jurges, who will arrive tomorrow, is looked upon as the first string shortstop, an expectancy that scarcely could exist if there was any idea that Koenig's wrist would hold up all season and that he could approach his efficiency during the weeks last season when his left arm was sound.

Jurges Better Fielder.

Jurges led the National league regular shortstops in fielding with .964. Koenig was far down in the list with a mark of .932. Jurges made 23 errors in handling 640 chances while Koenig booted 12 on 176 chances.

But last year's figures are in the book now. The 1933 duel between Jurges and Koenig will start tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Kiki Cuyler, who is expected to report tomorrow in tiptop shape, will find his two outfield pals far ahead of him. Riggs Stephenson and Babe Herman, who reported with the pitchers and catchers, after five days of training, are rarin' to go. While Kiki probably won't bring any excess weight to camp, he'll have to go through the usual early muscle anguish before he can step along comfortably with Stevie and Babe. It's a bet, though, that Ki will be all caught up come time to bat the Giants next Saturday afternoon.

A Party Is in Order.

And speaking of the Giants' visitation, it may be said that plans are being laid for the same kind of entertainment Mr. Wrigley had planned for the Giants last year when he invited them to the island shortly before he died. Among the entertainment features will be a steak barbecue at P. K. Wrigley's ranch, up over the mountains, Saturday night. The athletes can't eat steaks at ranch barbecues, but the players will be provided with suitable entertainment while the ranch party is being attended by other members of the Cub and Giant entourage.

Manager Charley Grimm has not decided upon his lineup for the season's first exhibition game—the Saturday Giant game. At the workout today, however, Malone, Warneke and Grimes each pitched two rounds of batting practice, an indication that they are being moved along faster than the others. A round of batting practice at present means the casting of about 70 or 75 pitches. Two rounds at this point in the training season, therefore, is a rather arduous enterprise.

A BULB'S-EYE VIEW OF GOLDEN GLOVES

Maybe Magnates Are Sorry for Snubbing U. S. Control

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

New York, Feb. 27.—Something will have to be done this year to strike a balance between the costs and the gate receipts of professional baseball and the obvious method is to give the customers less baseball for their money. I am assuming, of course, that the customers cannot be induced to give more money for their baseball.

In curtailing the dollar's worth, the magnates might have their choice of several expedients. They could reduce the standard ball game from nine innings to five, with a surcharge for extra innings in case of ties, or they could diminish the big money's worth which they have always given by reducing the putouts per inning from three to two, or possibly one.

Maybe a Strike Will Do.

It is even within their right to limit the hitters to one strike and they could effect a considerable saving in the cost of baseballs by adopting an over-the-fence-is-out rule and forcing the hitters to pay for all baseballs knocked out of bounds. This would also serve to abate the home-run craze, which, in the opinion of some of the old fashioned critics, has made a mockery and a tinsel of the home run in the last ten years.

The heavy hitting outfielder would think twice before he hit a baseball out of bounds if he understood that he would have to reimburse his employer to the extent of $1.75 wholesale. It is something to make a heavy hitting outfielder think once, let alone twice, and this provision thus might prove to be a fine intellectual stimulant for heavy hitting outfielders.

The magnate cannot afford to do this very long in the present status of the business, a fact which may move some of them to regret that they turned down the proposal to place the game under government control just after the war. This proposal contemplated the establishment of a national ministry of sports under the administration of a secretary of sports, who was to have had a place in the presidential cabinet.

All the commercial sports disapproved the idea at the time, never anticipating a state of affairs in which it would be very nice to be able to send around to congress for an appropriation to meet current operating expenses.

The baseball magnates also suspected that their business might come within the field of political patronage if they were to accept the benefits of the proposed official status. Farsighted business men among them were apprehensive lest they be forced to make places on their teams for deserving Democrats and Republicans. It is one thing to appoint a conscientious party worker to an administrative job in Washington by way of reward for diligent toil in the interests of the triumphant ticket. In such cases the appointee does not go near the office very often and gives a minimum of bother to the ordinary employes who do the work.

In certain kinds of business it is possible to enlarge the dollar's worth by laying off help. Patrons of big establishments and the public services, such as the railroads, do not readily observe that the personnel is less numerous than it used to be, but the baseball magnates could not very well dispense entirely with the third baseman and the left fielder because the customers are very observant of such things and they would notice the lack immediately.

Not That There's a Difference.

Not that the elimination of these two players would make much difference nowadays, when most of the players hit to the right or the middle. For several seasons third basemen and left fielders have been demanding that the magnates provide them with ukuleles or playing blocks to give them something to occupy their time while the hitters were hitting to the right or the middle. Fred Lindstrom, late of the Giants, asked that he be transferred to center field because he got so lonesome at third base. He had nobody but the umpire to speak to, for the base-runners, scoring from second, or loping around the bases on home runs, refused to stop and converse with him.

The magnates could save some money, however, by hiring Boy Scouts at some nominal wage, such as 25 cents per game, to play third base and left field. In fact, some of them have hired Boy Scouts, but the wages have not been nominal, although they are becoming more and more so all the time.

GOLDEN GLOVES FANS NOMINATE KARA FOR CHAMP

BY FRENCH LANE.

The cheers of the crowd indicated that Teddy Kara of Cleveland was the greatest hero at the opening session of THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves tournament of Champions last night. He won two slashing battles from Sam Calin of Streator and Henry Fuscaldo of the Catholic Youth Organization of Chicago.

When Kara whipped Fuscaldo he advanced dangerously near the flyweight championship. The dopesters figured that Kara would battle Johnny Baltzer of Davenport for the championship.

It's No. 22 for Teddy.

The same dopesters were picking the Cleveland boy to win. He is a big muscled fellow for a 112 pounder and carries quite a vicious punch, but the thing about him that pleased the opening crowd was that he was ripping and dashing into the fight every instant.

The Fuscaldo bout marked the 22d time Kara ever engaged in a boxing match. And it was his 22d straight victory.

Kara, who is a high school student, is of Hungarian parentage, but was born in Cleveland. His dad is a machinist and wanted the boy to follow in his footsteps, but youthful Teddy visions himself a world's boxing champion at 112 pounds. If he can't make the grade he wants to turn actor. He is handsome enough, with those arm, leg, and shoulder muscles rippling every time he moves, to play one of those "I saved the child" roles in most any production.

Quick Rise to Fame.

While he had been winning regularly from his Cleveland neighbors, Kara didn't gain much fame until a little more than a week ago, when an amateur tournament in Cleveland sent him into action against Joe Timbi, the New York amateur athletic union flyweight champion.

The Cleveland folks gathered at the ringside to cheer for Timbi and to try and comfort Kara. Their calculations were all upset. They cheered all through the struggle for Kara as he carried the New York boy off his feet, and they tried to sympathize with Timbi.

Sock Kurtz Back to Trade Socks for a Golden Glove

BY ARCH WARD.

Golden Gloves fans will recall R. F. [Sock] Kurtz, hard hitting heavyweight from Lafayette last year, who was eliminated in the second round by Duffy Dvonch in one of the outstanding slugfests of the tournament. Sock is back again this year, determined to make the grade. He is a two sport man at Purdue, having won letters in football and basketball.

You can't keep a good man down, and George Vanderheyden, featherweight with the South Bend contingent, is just that. This is George's third bid for a Golden Gloves berth. For the last two years he has fought his way to the quarter-finals. This year the South Bend crowd is enthusiastic about his chances of going through. He has won 52 out of 55 fights.

Accompanying the Green Bay team this year is one of the greatest athletes ever turned out at the University of Michigan. His records in track and field events still stand in the Big Ten. He is Joe Horner Jr., at present business manager of the Green Bay Gazette. Joe attended Michigan in 1908-'11.

Jack Kranz, Gary heavyweight, is back for another struggle. Jack was Golden Gloves light heavyweight champ in 1931, winning his international bout against France. He has since moved up to the heavyweight class. His brother, William [Teeny] Kranz, won a place on the Gary team in the 160 pound class but was forced to give way to an alternate because of a broken hand received in his final bout.

Three years ago Ralph Carnegie, the colored 147 pounder from Benton Harbor, created quite a sensation in the Golden Gloves. He earned a place on THE TRIBUNE team and went on to win his intercity bout. Ralph is back again this year as a member of the South Bend crew.

Leslie Browne, flyweight, and Poggie Wilson, bantamweight, members of the Danville Golden Gloves squad, are veterans. Browne was defeated by Albert Soukup in the 1932 Tournament of Champions. Wilson was eliminated by Max Maker of Milwaukee in 1931 and in 1932 Leo Rodak whipped him. Browne just barely made the required weight of 113 pounds yesterday.

Four of the eight champions on the Gary team are brothers. Two of these brothers, Joe and Jack Loosemore, are Irish-Canadians. Their native hearth is in Hamilton, Ont. Joe is the 112 pound and Jack, 126 pounder. The brothers Zale, Anthony and Francis, both won championships in the Gary tournament. Anthony competes in the 147 pound division and Francis is a 160 pounder.

Jesse Robinson Jr., flyweight member of the South Bend squad, comes from a line of athletes. His father

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago's sixth annual Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions began last night at the Chicago Stadium. For more than five hours the steady thumping of gloves, in two rings, held the interest of the crowd of 7,500 as the contestants from seven states marched toward the diamond studded golden gloves, annual award of the titleholders.

Boys in the flyweight, bantamweight, featherweight, and lightweight classes fought through two rounds last night. This morning the eight survivors in each of these classes are ready to take their well earned rest preparatory to the quarter-finals tomorrow night.

Heavier Boys Fight Tonight.

Tonight, again in two rings, the heavier amateurs are scheduled to make their appearances. The first bouts will start at 7 o'clock. Admission will be 40 cents, 75 cents, and $1.10 for ringside and center mezzanine seats. Doors will open at 5 o'clock.

The Golden Gloves candidates in the welterweight, middleweight, light heavyweight and heavyweight classes will fight through two rounds tonight. This will leave 64 amateurs in all weights in the Tournament of Champions for the windup of this week's program. The semi-finals and finals will be held March 3 at the Stadium.

Excellent Material Uncovered.

The battles last night uncovered a tremendous amount of excellent material from which, within the next two weeks, Chicago's intercity team will be chosen.

In the 112 and 126 pound classes there are several boys who would prove a worthy champion. At least three of the best boys drew opponents of their own caliber, and these provided the highlights of the night.

Consider these flyweights: At the same time Henry Fuscaldo of the Catholic Youth team was fighting Ted Kara, Cleveland's champion, in the east ring, Frankie Sanello, the Central A. A. U. champion from Trafton's gymnasium, was fighting Bobby Blake from Lafayette, Ind. And both battles were replete with action, skillful blocking, countering, and attack.

Both Close Decisions.

The Sanello-Blake fight ended first after three rounds of action such as only ambitious amateurs can crowd into six minutes. Sanello won by a mighty close margin, but Blake had many of the crowd on his side of the argument, judging by the brief reception tendered the official verdict. Blake was most effective when he shot his punches to the body.

Then the Kara-Fuscaldo scrap was concluded. This, too, was a 2 to 1 vote of the officials and was a mighty close affair. Fuscaldo started at a fast pace in the first round, which he won, but Kara showed better later, blocking well and, when he got set, whipping home his right hand several times. The unofficial voters at the ringside accepted the verdict without the demonstration accorded the defeat of Blake.

Lenny Cohen of Trafton's gymnasium, who was a member of the inter-

There will be 112 bouts tonight and 56 tomorrow night in two rings at bargain prices never before offered for an event of its kind. You can see the finest amateur boxers from Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa and Tennessee for 40 cents, 75 cents or $1.10. All seats are reserved.

And don't forget—the Golden Gloves championships will be decided March 8. Tickets are on sale at The Tribune Public Service Office and at Room 530 Tribune Tower. Address mail applications to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Chicago Tribune. Prices are 75 cents, $1.50 and $2.20.

FONSECA PICKS SOX INFIELD AT FIRST PRACTICE

Appling at Short, Hayes Plays Second.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., Feb. 27.—Spring training took on a serious aspect today for those who hope to remain enrolled as members of the 1933 White Sox. Under a sun that needed no alibis from the local boosters, the boys went to work for the first time on the matter of getting themselves in trim to make a creditable showing in the impending American league race.

As is usually the case on inaugural day, the majority of the candidates were carried away by their enthusiasm and had to be cautioned throughout the three hour drill on the subject of conserving high priced throwing arms. The infielders especially were throwing in a way that means either an epidemic of lame wings in 24 hours or that they quietly slipped in a little preliminary hardening up before quitting their winter retreats.

Fonseca Lines Up Infield.

In the way of enthusiasm Manager Fonseca was about the biggest boy on the lot. He couldn't resist the temptation of drilling what he hopes will be his regular infield. Usually this procedure is reserved for about the fourth day of practice. The session hadn't been under way an hour before Fonseca put himself on first base, Jack Hayes at second, Luke Appling at short, and Jimmy Dykes, the former member of the Athletics, at third. The inner defense will line up that way on April 12, unless something goes wrong.

As soon as Dykes decided he had enough, Red Kress slipped in at third. The ex-Brown wants a regular job and doesn't care just what it happens to be. If he can make an impression at third it would be a simple matter to move Dykes to any other infield position that might need help. He has played them all.

Lyons Feels Sea Trip.

Ted Lyons, the ace of the pitching staff, arrived in camp this morning but, being a veteran, took his first drill in small portions. He's a bit overweight, but nevertheless has been slightly indisposed for the last month. He went to Japan during the winter and, being a poor sailor, is still feeling the effects of the sea journey. Like all folks who have been to the land of the cherry blossoms, Lyons now wears, among other things, silk shirts, silk underwear, and silk pajamas.

The only absentees are young Ed Walsh and Joe Chamberlin, a shortstop recruit from the Waterloo, Ia., club. They signed their contracts several weeks ago, but since then nothing has been heard from either.

IOWA, 30; ILLINOIS, 27

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—The University of Iowa basketball team won its final home game of the season here tonight, defeating Illinois 30 to 27. It was the eighth victory of the season for the Hawkeyes. The game, played before 7,500, was rough throughout, the visitors getting 14 personal fouls and Iowa 10.

Frank Froschauer, Illinois' forward, was carried from the floor midway in the first half with a fractured ankle. Illinois was further handicapped later in the game when A. C. [Chin] Kamm was ejected from the game on four personal fouls.

The half ended with Iowa ahead, 17 to 16. Lineups:

SCHOOL STRIKERS CALL FACULTY METHODS LAX

Anderson, Ind., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—After demonstrations at the courthouse square here today, striking high school students held a dance for two hours in the school gymnasium. They had two orchestras from the high school band providing music, and having recruited practically all students in the other departments, were urging junior high school pupils to join.

Principal J. L. Thalman asserted he would pay no heed to the "down with Thalman" banners displayed in the courthouse square. Police decided not to interfere except to avoid traffic delays.

Anderson High school was suspended from the Indiana High School Athletic association Saturday for one year. Its basketball team, a favorite for the state championship, was ruled out of the state tourney that begins on Friday. The I. H. S. A. A. asserted athletics here have not been under proper control of school authorities, and a scheme to split gate receipts with coaches as a bonus was criticized. The pupils blame high school officials for the suspension. They say better supervision should have been exercised.

W. A. Denny, school superintendent, promised the pupils today a thorough investigation of that action will be made.

SARAZEN BEATS OLIN DUTRA FOR "TITLE," 11 AND 10

Miami, Fla., Feb. 27.—[Special.]—Gene Sarazen, holder of the United States and British open golf championships, defeated Olin Dutra, Santa Monica, Cal., P. G. A. champion, in a seventy-two hole match for the "unofficial" world's title today. The score was 11 and 10. Dutra also won the metropolitan championship last year.

Sarazen scored a 67 on the morning round, while Dutra was taking a 70. The stocky Italian increased his lead in the afternoon, holding a 12 up edge at the fifty-ninth hole. Dutra won the sixtieth and the match ended when they halved the sixty-second.

QUARTER-FINALS FOR PREP LIGHTS OPEN THURSDAY

Prep Pairings

FOLLOWING are the pairings for the quarter-final round of play for the Chicago Public High School league lightweight and heavyweight basketball championships:

LIGHTWEIGHT.

Thursday—Phillips vs. Fenger at White City, 4 p. m.; Bowen vs. Hyde Park at White City, 5 p. m.

Friday—McKinley at Roosevelt, 3:45 p. m.; Austin vs. Lane at Loyola gymnasium, 7:30 p. m.

HEAVYWEIGHT.

Friday—Crane vs. Lane at Loyola gymnasium, 8:30 p. m.; Lake View vs. west section runner-up.

Saturday—Phillips vs. Parker at White City, 3 p. m.; Bowen vs. Lindblom at White City, 4 p. m.

Wendell Phillips, defending champion, and Fenger, south section representative, will open the quarter-final round of play for the Chicago Public High School league lightweight basketball championship at White City Thursday. The dates and sites of the lightweight and heavyweight games were selected at a meeting of coaches and officials in the offices of A. H. Pritzlaff, director of physical education, yesterday.

The Phillips-Fenger game will be played as part of a double header, for it will be followed by another quarter-final contest between Bowen and Hyde Park.

Play for the heavyweight championship, which was won last year by Crane Tech, will not start until Friday. Before setting the dates of the heavyweight contests officials made an effort to solve the muddled west section situation. The sectional title was won by Crane Tech. Harrison Tech now is in second place with six victories and three defeats, but it must meet Crane Tech in the playoff of a postponed game.

Harrison plays Crane Tech today. If Harrison wins it will qualify for the quarter-finals. If it loses it will fall into a tie for second place with Tuley and Marshall. In this event Harrison will meet Tuley at Harrison tomorrow and the winner will meet Marshall at the latter's gymnasium Thursday.

Crane's first opponent in the quarter-final round will be Lane Tech of the north section at Loyola gymnasium. On the same court Lake View plays the west section second place winner. On Saturday Phillips will meet Parker and Lindblom faces Bowen at White City in the other two quarter-final games.

Stadium Gets O.K. on Ross, Petrolle Bout

The Chicago Stadium Operating company yesterday canceled its dates of March 10 and March 24 for boxing shows at the Stadium and received permission from the Illinois athletic commission to present a card on March 22. Billy Petrolle, Duluth, Minn., 138 pounder, and Barney Ross of Chicago will meet in the 10 round windup on the new date.

Sammy Wolff's request for permission to offer his next show at the Coliseum on March 10 was refused. Frankie Harmon, Washington Boulevard arena promoter, received that date when he made the request first. He will present a return bout between Johnny Pena and Varias Milling. Harmon originally had the contest at the Washington arena scheduled for next Monday. The commission sanctioned March 17 and March 31 for programs at the Coliseum.

Packey McFarland, state boxing commissioner, yesterday warned the Coliseum promoter that considerable open betting was on display at the Otto Von Porat-Tuffy Griffith bout last Friday and that in the future the bettors would be ousted from the premises.

Joe Molitor, Rainbo Fronton wrestling promoter, has been set down by the commission until he fully reimburses John Evko for Evko's bout against Richard Shikat at the fronton last Jan. 25.

YANKEES' FIRST SQUAD OFF FOR ST. PETERSBURG

New York, Feb. 27.—[Special.]—The New York Yankees prepared to start the 1933 campaign for another world's championship today with the departure of the first squad of players for the training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Only three players, all pitchers, left this morning under the guidance of Road Secretary Mark Roth. They were Charles Devens, Harvard's only contribution to major league baseball; Pete Jablonowski, who performed well at Newark last season, and Russell Van Atta, from St. Paul. All the batterymen except Herb Pennock are due Wednesday. The infielders and outfielders will not start work until March 8.

TWO UTILITIES RETIRE INSULL MEN ON BOARDS

Edison, Pub. Service Stockholders Act.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Sweeping reorganizations of the directorates of the Commonwealth Edison company and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois were voted yesterday at the annual meetings of shareholders. The board of each company was reduced from thirteen to nine members and the "Insull" directors were replaced by outsiders not connected with the old régime.

Protests were made by minority stockholders at the Commonwealth Edison meeting against the reëlection to the board of Stanley Field and Edward J. Doyle, who were indicted yesterday by the federal grand jury along with 17 other persons on fraud charges. Doyle is president of the Edison company. The objections were voted down and the entire slate proposed by the management was elected.

Uphold Pension to Insull.

At the same time James Simpson, chairman of the companies, told stockholders that the directors have upheld the pensions granted last year to Samuel Insull, the elder, on his retirement from the companies. Insull is now receiving $6,000 a year from each of the concerns and also $6,000 a year from the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company.

The companies are legally bound to pay the pensions to Insull under the provisions of their annuity funds which were set up to retire veteran employés, in the opinion of the companies' lawyers, Mr. Simpson declared.

"A recent careful consideration of the matter has confirmed the board in its former opinion that notwithstanding the continued criticism of Mr. Insull, it is for the best interests of the company as a whole, and for the morale of its service, that the payment of this pension should be continued," Mr. Simpson said.

Protest on Indicted Men.

The Edison meeting, which was held at the company's offices at 72 West Adams street, was attended by nearly 2,000 persons.

When the names of Field and Doyle were proposed, along with 7 others, John H. Wild, who held proxies for 103 shares, demanded that their nominations be held in abeyance pending the outcome of the federal indictments. Shouts of protest were made by several stockholders while Wild spoke and the chair finally ruled him out of order.

Chairman Simpson asked Wild if he was connected with the Utility Investors and Consumers league.

"I am not," Wild answered. "I am a citizen and am holding proxies for 103 shares which are trusteed with the Continental bank."

Wild was applauded by a number of the stockholders present but the objectors were in the minority. The regular nominees were elected by an overwhelming majority.

Criticize Pension and Salary.

Criticism was also voiced against the pension of the elder Insull, as well as the salary which Samuel Insull Jr. is now drawing from the Edison company.

"Why is young Insull getting a salary of $35,000 when many of us who invested in his father's stocks have nothing!" a stockholder shouted. Others yelled approval but when the votes were tallied it was found that the minority was more articulate than powerful.

Chairman Simpson repeatedly explained the reasons upon which the directors based their decision. Stating that he held no brief for Insull, he declared that he believed the granting of the pension was wise when all factors were considered.

Protests were also heard against the Insull pension at the earlier meeting of Public Service stockholders, which was held in the Peoples Gas building, 122 South Michigan avenue.

Changes in Directorates.

James Simpson, chariman of the company.

J. J. Mitchell, Chicago capitalist and son of the late banker.

Edward P. Russell, investment

Banks Offset Deposit Fall by Loan Cuts

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Banks in principal cities throughout the country have been offsetting a decline in deposits by reducing their loans and investments an almost equal amount, according to the federal reserve board's statement yesterday on the condition of weekly reporting member banks in leading cities.

The report shows that these banks as a whole have been able to maintain their extreme liquidity, despite increased withdrawals since the beginning of the moratorium in Michigan.

Net demand deposits of the reporting member banks on Feb. 21, the report shows, totaled 11 billion 286 million dollars. This was a decline of 265 millions for the week. Time deposits of 5 billion 499 million were off 109 millions for the week.

Loans Cut as Deposits Fall.

The drop of 374 millions for the week in demand and time deposits combined was largely compensated for by a reduction of 314 millions in loans and investments. Member banks reported a 6 million dollar reduction in loans on securities and a cut of 212 millions in all other loans. Their investments in United States government securities declined 91 millions and investments in all other securities were off 5 millions.

Against their total deposit liability of $16,785,000,000 on Feb. 21, member banks had $1,560,000,000 in cash and equivalent, $5,115,000,000 in United States government bonds, $2,865,000,000 in loans—of which $4,199,000,000 represented loans against securities—$3,277,000,000 investments in municipals and other securities, and $1,814,000,000 of reserves with the federal reserve banks.

Reserves carried by member banks with the federal reserve banks increased 20 millions during the week and were 398 millions more than the amount of reserves carried a year ago.

Money Market Rates Stiffen.

Reflecting the action of banks in increasing their cash to meet demands, the money market stiffened sharply yesterday. The American Acceptance council announced an advance of one-half of one per cent in yield rates on bankers' acceptances. This applies to all maturities.

Yesterday's rate changes followed similar action a week ago and were made to protect dealers against a dumping of bills by banks in connection with any movement for additional liquidity.

The rate on 30-90 day bills was moved up to 1¼ per cent bid, 1¼ per cent asked; on four months' maturities to 1⅜ to 1¼ per cent; and on five to six months maturities to 1⅜ to 1½ per cent.

The upping of acceptance yield rates by dealers was followed by similar action by the reserve authorities. The New York Reserve bank restored its bill buying rate to 1 per cent, after holding it at ½ of 1 per cent since Feb. 16.

Change Is Unusually Large.

Yesterday's advance in acceptance rates was unusually large. In the past, so drastic an alteration has been made only on days in which the New York federal reserve bank has announced a change in its discount rate. The new rate on 30-60-90 day paper is the highest since May, 1932, and is ⅛ of 1 per cent higher than the level in January and early in February.

The change in the bill market, always the most sensitive indicator of monetary conditions, came abruptly yesterday after some dealers had offered to the federal reserve bank in New York some acceptances at the ½ of 1 per cent buying rate. The New York Reserve bank established this rate on Feb. 16 and maintained it in force during last week, accumulating about 150 million dollars of bills.

The federal reserve system yesterday again seemed to be battling the tightening of money by purchasing United States government bonds in the open market. Bankers could offer no other explanation for the advance of both Liberty and treasury issues on the stock exchange.

J. H. PERKINS IS NAMED HEAD OF NAT'L CITY BANK

Chief of Affiliate Resigns Post.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 27.—The National City bank, the second largest bank in the world, changed its executive head today and the National City company, one of its affiliates, accepted the resignation of its president in ten minute sessions of their respective boards of directors.

J. H. PERKINS.

The directors of the National City bank met at 9 a. m. and in ten minutes accepted the resignation of Charles E. Mitchell as chairman of the bank. They immediately chose James H. Perkins, president of the City Bank Farmers Trust company, a National City affiliate, as his successor, although in a slightly different position as chairman of the board of directors.

Two hours later, the directors of the National City company, another affiliate, met and accepted the resignation of Mr. Mitchell as chairman and Hugh B. Baker as president. They appointed no successor for either, and set no date for a later meeting.

Vice President in Charge.

Both Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Baker were absent, testifying before the senate banking committee in Washington. Mr. Mitchell's resignation, given out last night, was admittedly because of the criticism directed at him for the financial acts he testified to before the senate committee.

The reason for Mr. Baker's resignation was not announced, but it was recalled that he, too, gave sensational testimony before the senators last week.

Mr. Mitchell resigned from all his connections with the National City group and the other affiliate and subsidiaries that have not already acted will do so in the near future. The directors of the City Bank Farmers Trust company announced that they would meet on March 7 to act on the Mitchell resignation.

The other members of the group are the National City Realty corporation, the National City Safe Deposit company, the International Banking corporation and the General Sugar corporation.

Statement of Bank.

"When asked about the future of the National City company he said that 'pending legislative determination of the status of securities affiliates, the policy would be so confine the company's activities to government, state, municipal and corporate bonds of the highest character'."

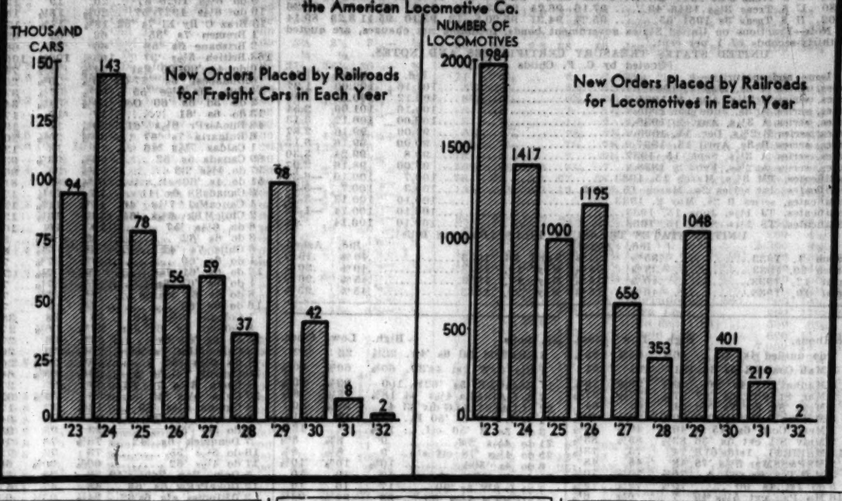
The legislation he referred to is that expected to follow the present senatorial inquiry, abolishing securities affiliates of national banks.

Coca-Cola Shows Earnings of $8.67 a Share for 1932

New York, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The Coca-Cola company and subsidiaries had net profit of $10,712,672 in 1932, equal to $8.67 a share on the common stock after dividends on the class A shares. This compares with $14,023,622, or $11.82 a common share, in 1931.

The New Secretary of the Treasury Doubtless Is Well Aware of the Depression

Note: Mr. William H. Woodin, announced as the new secretary of the treasury by President-elect Roosevelt, is President of the American Car & Foundry Co., and Chairman of the Board of the American Locomotive Co.



Sears, Roebuck Has First Loss in 11 Years

Sears, Roebuck & Co., leading mail order and chain store organization, operated at a loss last year for the first time since 1921.

The company more than broke even on its merchandising business, but its moderate profit was wiped out by losses sustained in other activities and special nonrecurring charges. Operating loss was $2,544,000 for the 14 months ended Jan. 28, 1933, against 1931 net profit of $12,170,000, or $3.50 a share.

The report covers 14 four-week periods because of the change in the fiscal year. This contributed in a measure to the unprofitable record, because January operations in both years are included. January is the poorest month in the retail year and normally shows a substantial loss.

Heavy Reserves Set Up.

A striking feature of the statement is the heavy reserves which the company has set up against various contingencies. These reserves, totaling $12,336,000, are charged to surplus.

"We may not need all of these reserves," Gen. Robert E. Wood, president, said yesterday. "We may use only half of them, but they protect us against various contingencies."

The company's mail order business showed a profit of $3,105,000. The mail order profit resulted in the face of a severe decline in sales, which carried volume to the lowest level since 1915, closely paralleling the shrinkage in farm income.

The retail stores were operated at a loss of $4,303,000. The company abandoned 28 stores during the year and losses incident to the closing, including lease settlements, were charged against current operations.

Fewer Class "B" Stores.

Four new class "A" stores, handling a general line of merchandise, were opened and $610,000 in expenses in this connection are charges to current operation.

Gen. Wood said yesterday that the process of eliminating the unsatisfactory stores is practically completed.

"The stores we have closed are those that we believe could not be operated profitably by any management," he said.

Rents paid under leases rose last year in relation to sales volume, but were less than 4 per cent of sales. Thus, the company escaped the misfortunes which overtook so many chain organizations last year as rent charges made heavy inroads on income.

Two other sources of loss last year were the home construction division and the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The latter is controlled by the company and turned in a loss of $514,000 for the year. Sales in the home construction division declined 40 per cent and a loss of $1,155,000 was incurred. The number of properties reacquired by default increased until November, but has declined since then.

Inventory depreciation was $4,000,000 in excess of the normal for the years 1925-'31 inclusive. At the close of the year inventories stood at $49,000,000, against $52,000,000 at the end of 1931.

Audit Reveals Trustees Co. Notes Covered

The thousands of investors holding the socalled 6 per cent gold notes of the bankrupt Trustees System Service, Inc., will realize 100 cents on the dollar, it was indicated in an audit of subsidiary of Trustees System Service. The report was filed yesterday with Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson on behalf of the co-receivers, F. O. Birney and R. L. Stewart by Attorney Robert N. Golding, counsel for the co-receivers.

The audit shows the subsidiary had $122,000 cash on hand last Oct. 28, the day of receivership. Another substantial asset is $709,000 of loans and discounts, from which $141,000 is deducted as a provision for doubtful loans, leaving $568,000 of presumably good loans.

The principal assets is real estate with a listed value of $2,931,000. Of this amount the home office of the Trustees System Service, a building erected in 1930 at 201 North Wells street, is carried at $2,240,000. It is encumbered by a $1,500,000 mortgage.

Balancing the $5,429,000 of liabilities against these assets, the auditors find a deficit of $2,324,000, as of last Oct. 28. Principal among the liabilities were the 6 per cent gold notes which the company sold in $50 units to the amount of $2,892,000. Attorney Golding estimates the net assets are more than sufficient to cover these notes. Indications in the audit are that the common stockholders have been wiped out, but that a substantial amount may be realized on the preferred in the final liquidation.

No Money of Sen. Couzens in Bank Rescue

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 27.—The vast fortune of Senator James Couzens played no part whatever in the rehabilitation of Detroit banks. Henry Ford accomplished it with the assistance of a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan. The Fords own every share of stock in two great banking institutions, assuming the liquid assets of both the First National bank-Detroit and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce.

Ford money and Ford prestige will back the two new banks, which probably will be opened for business within 72 hours, when depositors will be privileged to withdraw the remainder of their 35 per cent of deposits, both savings and commercial.

Couzens Replies to Rumor.

Persistent rumors last week were to the effect that Senator Couzens had withdrawn some extra large deposits from Detroit banks just prior to the announcement of the banking holiday. The editor of a local paper, therefore, wired the senator as follows:

"Persistent rumor here says you withdrew substantial sums of deposits from Detroit banks shortly before the bank holiday. Do you care to answer?"

The senator wired back the following:

"Your telegram received. This will be authority to examine my account in any bank in Michigan."

Evidently Senator Couzens wished to refute the rumor.

Ford Denies Friction.

In addition, a formal statement was given out this afternoon in which Ford denied reports that he was at odds with Senator Couzens. The statement follows:

"My relations with Senator James Couzens have been the subject of several misstatements during the last two weeks.

"I have known Mr. Couzens about 40 years—ever since the time his employer supplied coal for the Edison plant where I was engineer.

"After that we were in business together, and we got along fine. Couzens had a taste for public life, and I had a preference for manufacturing; so our ways parted. I want to say that he has made an excellent record in public life.

"As to the recent statements attributed to me in several newspapers with reference to Couzens, I want to say this:

"Throughout the whole bank holiday I have not discussed the local condition or Senator Couzens with any reporter. Senator Couzens never proposed to me any plan of action regarding the Detroit situation. I have spoken to him twice by long distance telephone during the last two weeks, once to repudiate some statements concerning him which were indirectly ascribed to me, and again on Sunday to tell him I thought the banking situation here was nearly settled.

"Senator Cousens and I are in closer agreement on many things than seems to be understood."

FORD REVEALS UNUSUAL PLANS FOR NEW BANKS

Favors Two Classes of Deposits.

Two States Pass New Bank Laws

Two states—Pennsylvania and Ohio—rushed emergency bank bills through their legislatures last night, which were immediately signed by the governors. The Delaware legislature passed a similar bill, but it was as yet unsigned. All three provided the state banking officer with authority to "freeze" a portion of bank deposits, permitting depositors to withdraw only a certain per cent, and at the same time permitted unrestricted withdrawal of new deposits.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 27.—Henry Ford's unusual plans for the two banks which he will own, due to his "rescue" of First National and Guardian National, were revealed today by one of his officials. Ford himself announced his intention of working fast in an effort to get into circulation millions of dollars that have been tied up for the last two weeks.

Only a word from the Fords is necessary to start from Washington under heavy guard $78,000,000 in cash. Notice is awaited from the Fords as to just when the new banks will be ready to receive the Reconstruction Finance corporation loan. In Detroit, three shifts of R. F. C. clerks working 24 hours a day were checking collateral and the 1,700,000 accounts at both banks today, it it is expected that notice of the opening of the new Ford banks will not be later than Thursday morning.

Pay 35 Per Cent Immediately.

It is stated unofficially that depositors will be paid a total of 35 per cent at once which will include the 5 per cent already drawn since the banking holiday was declared effective by Gov. William A. Comstock. If this percentage of deposits as of Feb. 11, is available with the opening of the banks, depositors might receive approximately $150,000,000.

The extent to which Ford may revise the banking system of the city, as told by one of his officials, indicated radical changes may be made. It was indicated personal loans would be made by one of the banks, and business loans by the other.

It was predicted by this spokesman that the outcome of the present situation will be the merger of the two banks into one great financial concern

To Holders

Hungarian External Dollar Bonds

Because of the stoppage of foreign exchange effected by the Hungarian transfer moratorium of December 23, 1931, interest has not been paid to the bondholders on any of the Bonds set forth below since the terms of the transfer moratorium became effective.

Individual bondholders are in a precarious position; the Hungarian debtors or the Hungarian Government have no agency representing the actual bondholders with which to deal in reaching any general policy of settlement, adjustment or refunding of the principals and services.

The problem of resuming services on these bonds, some of which have large pengo credits in Hungary, is serious while the transfer moratorium continues. A solution requires more than reports. Though solution or negotiations therefor may not come tomorrow, individual bondholders are helpless while unorganized. Traders in Hungarian bonds may purchase from American holders at a price below the real value. Indeed it is reported that nearly 30% of these bonds have been brought back to Hungary. Organization of the bondholders requires months of continuous and energetic work on the part of the Committee. Work covering months of preparation has been performed on behalf of this Committee prior to this announcement. This Committee now maintains contact in Hungary with the debtors.

There will shortly be undertaken a general revision of the entire Hungarian debt problem. The holders of the Hungarian Long Term Bonds must unite so that as bondholders they will be then and there represented.

The Issues represented by this Committee are:

Hungarian Consolidated Municipal Loan, 7½% of 1945
Hungarian Consolidated Municipal Loan, 7% of 1946
City of Budapest, 6% of 1962
British & Hungarian Bank, Ltd. 7½% of 1962

National Central Savings Bank of Hungary, 7½% of 1962
National Hungarian Industrial Mortgage Institute, Ltd., 7% of 1948
Rima Steel Corporation, 7% of 1955

Copies of the Deposit Agreement, which limits the charge for expenses against deposited bonds to a maximum of one per cent (1%) of the principal amount, and appropriate forms for Letters of Transmittal, may be obtained from the Depositary or the Secretary of the Committee.

Inquiries and other correspondence should be addressed to the Secretary.

The Committee considers it extremely important for the Bondholders to unite and holders are, therefore, requested to deposit their Bonds promptly with the Depositary of the Committee.

INVESTMENT DATA

OVERDUE INTEREST: The total amount of overdue interest and rents at the close of 1932 on our invested assets amounted to $112,464.23.

MORTGAGES: The rule of this Company is to loan not more than 50% of the conservative appraisal value made by the Company of the property. These loans are distributed in general classes as follows: Farm properties, $5,439,267.23. Other properties, $84,546,045.15. The small amount of delinquent interest attests to the excellent quality of our mortgage loans.

BONDS: Our bonds consist of high grade state, municipal, public utilites and real estate securities. The few issues on which interest has become delinquent have had the book value written down on account of this delinquency.

REAL ESTATE: Our principal real estate holding is our fine Home Office building property, located in the heart of the city of Los Angeles and constituting one of the choicest business sites in the entire Pacific Southwest. In addition to this site we possess twenty-two pieces of property carried on the books at a figure of $1,027,250.50. Practically all of these properties are contributing to our income. The rate of return on our entire real estate holdings for the year 1932 was 6.54%.

COLLATERAL LOANS: These represent 3.4% of our total assets. They are secured by stocks and bonds of well established corporations which have been conducting business successfully over a period of many years. During 1932, due to the present condition of the market, the book value of these assets was written down to conform with the present market conditions. On December 31 there was no delinquent interest on these loans.

PREFERRED STOCKS: A small proportion of our invested assets (1.2 per cent) consists of preferred stocks in firmly established business institutions whose earnings guarantee beyond doubt a general continuance of the established return.

LOANS TO POLICYHOLDERS: In no instance does a policy loan exceed the cash surrender value of the contract. The security of these loans, therefore, is beyond question.

MISCELLANEOUS ASSETS: Include premiums in course of collection, accrued interest and other items which, by their nature, draw little or no interest.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 27.—The bond market was considerably improved in tone today, although irregular price declines outnumbered gains.

Speculative railroad issues benefited most from the lifting of selling pressure, scoring fractional gains in many instances. High grade bonds declined only moderately, while United States government securities were firm in the face of a ½ per cent rise in bill rates.

A somewhat better feeling toward the banking situation, as a result of the Couzens bill and Henry Ford's entry into the Detroit banking field, was responsible for the decline of selling activity. Fresh buying, however, is on a small scale, owing to fear of a recrudescence of difficulties.

Federal Issues Rally.

United States government securities rallied about ½ point in early trading, reflecting short covering by dealers. Such declines were largely wiped out in later dealings, owing to the influence of higher money rates.

Short term treasury securities, chiefly those due in less than a year, displayed a soft tone as a result of the increase in bill rates. This class of securities comes into direct investment competition with bankers' bills.

An easier tone ruled in high grade domestic utility bonds. Losses included American Telephone debenture 5s, Brooklyn Edison 5s, Consolidated Gas of New York 4½s, Detroit Edison 4½s, Laclede Gas Light 5½s, Public Service Electric and Gas 4½s, Virginia Railway and Power 5s, Westchester Lighting 5s, and others.

Defaulted Issue Drops.

Otis Steel company 6 per cent bonds dropped more than 3 points following announcement that the company had determined to omit interest due March 1.

Announcement that the province of Buenos Aires will soon pay interest on various of its dollar bond issues failed to stimulate prices.

The foreign bond list scored slight gains, with some of the German issues taking the lead. Bonds of the German central agricultural banks and German government 5½s rallied a point or more. South Americans, however, averaged lower.

Pillsbury Flour Mills, Inc.

Will you please advise me with reference to Pillsbury Flour Mills bonds and stock?—B. D. J.

Pillsbury Flour Mills, Inc., is a holding company whose assets consist exclusively of stock of Pillsbury Flour Mills company, one of the major independent United States milling companies.

Most of the latter's sales are made directly to large users, such as chain stores, bakeries, etc., and credit losses are therefore small. Large expenditures for advertising and other forms of sale development work have built up a substantial demand for its products.

Major source of business is flour. Of increasing importance are its packaged specialties, which include pancake flour, cake flour, farina, and bran. Price fluctuations in these items are less pronounced than in flour, and in times of declining wheat prices profit margin on them is increased.

In the year ended June 30, 1932, net income was $530,000, or $1.51 per share, less than half of net of $1,979,00, or $3.60 per share, for the year ended June 30, 1931.

The decline was due to a number of causes. The lower price of wheat caused a drop in the price of flour and reduced the profit margin. Unsettled foreign affairs reduced export business. Crop shortage in the northwest, where the company derives most of its wheat, made raw material costs higher than those of competitors.

Net income for the year ended June 30, 1930, was $2,225,000, against $2,815,000 for the preceding year and $2,475,000 for the June 30, 1928, year.

Fixed charges were earned 2.52 times in the year ended June 30, 1932; 3.70 times in the preceding year, 2.62 times in the June 30, 1930, year, and 4 times in the 1929 year.

On June 30, 1932, current assets were $9,647,000 and current liabilities were $958,000. Cash and marketable securities alone were $2,725,000. Working capital was $8,689,000, against $8,673,000 the year before.

Funded debt was $6,772,000. Capital stock consisted of 549,225 no par shares. The stock pays 15 cents a quarter.

La Jara Gold Mines.

I have 2,000 shares of La Jara Gold Mines company. Please give me some information on it.—S. R. C.

La Jara Gold Mines company (Maine) was holding company for La Jara Gold Mines of Mexico. The latter's property has been idle since 1916. Title to it was in dispute. No value was found for the stock for inheritance tax on April 22, 1918.

STOCK MARKET DECLINES ANEW AFTER A RALLY

News of Banking Situation Causes Selling.

BY FRED HARVEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 27.—Certain strategists of the Stock exchange spent a lot of their surviving coin to jack up the market and give the speculative community something to smile about today, but the bank holidays made the task too much for them. They did succeed in getting a creeping rally afoot along about midmorning and pushed some of the leaders ahead as much as 1 or 2 points.

The street hailed the announcement that Henry Ford had come to the rescue of the Michigan banking situation and made it the excuse for some buying in the unsustained rally which got under way toward noon.

An outburst of selling in the final hour, however, wiped out the hard won array of early plus signs in short order and submerged the list below its previous closing levels. Closing prices showed net losses of 1 to 2 points in all departments. Trading was again fairly heavy, volume rising to around 1,250,000 shares.

Rail Shares Resist Decline.

The break in the final hour was on a broad front and values crumbled rapidly. Railroad shares offered about the stoutest resistance of any group and the minus signs in this department were mixed with some rather heartening gains. Delaware and Hudson, a recent trading favorite, held 2 points of its earlier 4 point gain against the selling tide, and such recognized leaders as Atchison, New York Central, and Union Pacific finished either unchanged from Saturday or showing only slight recessions. While the rally was on, bidding for some of the rails was quite lively at intervals and some very likely looking advances were chalked up.

Tobacco shares also made a good showing, being helped no little by the sharp gain in cigaret production for January. American Tobacco, Liggett & Myers, and Reynolds issues all emerged slight gainers on the day.

Sellers of stocks weren't very particular about other groups. Motor shares, with some new trade figures of the wrong color to consider, eased off without a struggle and General Motors, Nash, and Mack Truck went to new lows.

Utility Issues Recede.

American Telephone lurched heavily as bears returned to the attack and most of the utilities followed it to lower territory. Peoples Gas gave up nearly a point and bumped a new low for the year at 53¼.

In the amusement sector, Loew's was singled out for heavy selling and broke more than 2½ points, as traders liquidated their holdings and shorts put out new lines in anticipation of a sharp cut in the corporation's dividend. In the last few minutes the issue recovered a part of its loss on precautionary covering. At its worst, the issue was at a new low for the bear market.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST

Wisconsin—Generally fair Tuesday and Wednesday, except unsettled in east and south portions; much colder in northwest portion Tuesday or Tuesday night; colder Wednesday.

Lower Michigan—Partly cloudy to cloudy, possibly some light rain or snow in north portion, slightly warmer in east portion and along Lake Michigan Tuesday; Wednesday clouds to partly cloudy and colder, possibly local snows.

Upper Michigan—Probably light snows Tuesday or Tuesday night; Wednesday cloudy and colder, with local snows.

SMALL SUPPLIES SATISFY BUYERS OF LIVE STOCK

Hog Prices Are Firmer; Cattle Steady.

Live stock markets continued quiet and showed little response to the influence of light receipts yesterday. In the main, prices were not much changed from last week's closing quotations.

Some headway toward a mild recovery in hogs was made at the opening, but the upturn was nipped when local houses balked at the strength. They intimated that they were satisfied to have small Monday droves, notwithstanding the rally in the wholesale market for fresh pork loins.

The general average price of hogs at $3.35 was 5 cents above Saturday's price and equal to that of last Friday. The extreme top at $3.60 was 5 cents under the best price paid last Friday.

Cattle Dull and Steady.

Some strength was found in top grades of young stock. New York butchers paid $7.15 for a shipment of fancy 993 pound yearling steers, the highest cattle sale in 12 days. Another eastern house paid $7 for a shipment of mixed steers and heifers averaging 751 pounds.

The demand was decidedly in favor of the light weights. Few cattle with weight passed $5.75, while the bulk of the beef steers exceeding 1,300 pounds sold at $5 and under. Thin light cattle with little "kill" ranged downwards to $3.25. Butcher stock maintained a steady basis, despite the influence of the approaching Lenten season. Bulls were strong to 10 cents higher. Calves ruled steady to weak.

Spring Lambs at $7.50.

The first shipment of native spring lambs arrived yesterday and sold at $7.50 to Swift, the price being $1.80 above the highest paid for any of the "fed" lambs. They averaged 52 pounds. In 1932, the first springers were here on March 21 and sold at $9.50, or $2 above the top matured lambs of that day. The market for "fed" lambs strengthened after opening weak to a shade lower, and closed strong to 10 cents higher, with big local packers leading the buying in the better grades. Big packers paid up to $5.70 at the close, 5 cents higher than the top sale last week. The bulk of good grades cashed at $5.60.
